SUBJECT CLASSIFICATION

For the American Educational List, 1907.

The names refer to the preceding author list, where prices, publishers, etc., are entered.

Supplementary reading will be found under Reading and elocution (Readers) or as a division under other classes. Where such subdivisions as "complete," "elementary," and "higher" are used, books are placed under them only if so designated by publishers. Otherwise they may be found under the larger division. Series are entered only under "complete."

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish in the fall a bibliography of Ralph Waldo Emerson, by George Willis Cooke. The author's "Ralph Waldo Emerson," published in 1881, by James R. Osgood & Co., and intended "as an introduction to the writings of Mr. Emerson," will be conspicuous in the "Bibliography," for it includes many things not found in any editions of Emerson then existing.

The Bulletin of Bibliography and Magazine Subject-Index for July contains the quarterly Magazine Subject-Index for April to June, 1907; the second part of "A Bibliography of Articles Relating to Holidays," by Robert M. McCurdy, revised and brought down to date by Edith M. Coulter; a "Reading List on Modern Dramatists—d'Annunzio, Hauptmann, Ibsen, Maeterlinck, Phillips, Rostand, Shaw and Sudermann," by Clara A. Mulliken, an annotated list which aims to cover the best English editions or translations of the dramatic works of these authors, whether published in collections or separately; the fifth part of the bibliography of Prose Fiction, by Nathaniel L. Goodrich, of the N. Y. State Library; and the department of "Births and Deaths," that is, the changes in the periodical world.

H. L. SOUDIER, 174 Boulevard Saint-Germain, Paris, has brought out his useful "Annuaire de la Librairie Française" for 1907, forming the fourteenth volume of the series. The volume, though larger than ever, does not yet reach the editor's ideal as to completeness because of the indifference of a number of the trade to furnish him, at no expense to themselves, with the required information. As it is the annual gives the addresses of upwards of 6000 firms arranged in one alphabet and geographically, the Paris booksellers separately and the remaining firms under the name of the Departments or the Colonies. Besides these sections there is a division of the specialties of publishers, a list of technical journals, legislation relating to the press and to literary and artistic property, directories of municipal officers, ambassadors and consuls, postal rules and regulations, tables of sizes of paper and formats of books and other information for publishers, booksellers and those connected with the allied trades. The volume is prefaced by an account of the officers of the Cercle de la Librairie, de l'Imprimerie, de la Papeterie, du Commerce, de la musique et des estampes. (6+460 p. 12°, flex. cl., 6 francs.)

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. L. RYPOLDT.

JULY 27, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

EDUCATIONAL LITERATURE AND ITS CLASSIFICATION.

THE concentration, a few years ago, of so large a proportion of educational publishing under the management of one great concern neither did away with the further development of educational literature nor resulted in driving competitors out of the business. In other words, no trust has a monopoly of the school-book business, despite the advantages incident to so large and far-reaching an organization as that of the American Book Company. Indeed, there are more rather than less individual publishers than of yore, although there are not so many competing publishers of the first rank as there were before so many were corralled by merger or purchase. In fact, it is practically impossible to create a monopoly trust in any branch of the book business.

The difficulties in the way of retail trade in school-books have, however, scarcely been growing less. These difficulties arise partly from trade methods and partly from the great complexity of subject and multiplicity of books which modern requirements have developed. Nevertheless, the alert retailer should not give up the business of school-book selling as a lost field, because, added to his other business, it still has its possibilities in sales and profit, though the latter may be close, and also it helps to keep in relation with him an important constituency for general purposes. The retailer must of course confine his stock of textbooks to books required by the local demand, but he should be on the alert to obtain from school-book publishers the fullest information as to new school-books and new developments in education, so as to be a help to local school authorities, and by such service to retain their good will. That the school-book trade is still worth handling is suggested by the success of at least one house in New York which has a central jobbing depot for school-books and of more than one retail house in our large cities that still make a specialty of school-books, which is especially possible where, as in some of our cities, a considerable number of private schools still exist.

Not more than two generations ago Webster's Spelling Book was the cornerstone of American education and sold literally by the million. Brown's Grammar and like well-known textbooks, each dominant in its special field, supplied a large portion of the higher needs of the grammar school. The colleges had not yet developed their elective systems, and they also required a limited range of well-known textbooks for their generalized courses. Evolution has changed all that, as it has changed almost everything in this modern world. The subjects of study have been increased, differentiated, and specialized into sub-divisions, and textbooks galore have multiplied to meet the new variety of demand.

The Classified Index to our "Educational List" has been more or less modified from time to time to include new subjects, but we have to confess that it had not kept pace with the development here outlined. During the past year we have been in consultation with leading educational publishers, school-book dealers, and educational authorities, as to a classification on more modern lines, and with the "Educational List" for 1907 we present the new classification. It is not on the Dewey decimal system, or indeed on any logical system such as would satisfy the bibliographer or the librarian, but it represents an endeavor to meet the practical conditions of the school-book trade and of the educational demand. The principle adopted has been to classify in rather large main classes—seventeen in all—subject groups analyzed into divisions and subdivisions on a systematic rather than an alphabetic arrangement. To this classified index is prefixed an alphabetical index to the divisions and subdivisions which will point the seeker for books on any specific subject to the special place in which they may be found. It has not been attempted to do more than guide the reader by entry of the author's or editor's name to the alphabetical list in which full information as to publisher and price may be found, nor has it been practicable to make, as a rule, more than one entry for one book. Related subjects should, therefore, be carefully scanned in looking up the textbooks of any particular subject.

A brief study of this Classified Index will illustrate what we have said above as to the differentiation of educational literature, and a count of the pages of the alphabetical list will suggest the growth in supply of school and college textbooks. We present the "Educational List" for 1907 as a useful help alike to publishers, retailers and teachers.

FREE TEXT-BOOKS.

TWENTY-SEVEN States have a free text-book law of some sort. In some instances the law compels the furnishing of all text-books and supplies. In others only the text-books with no supplies. In some the law is mandatory; in others optional. The following statement contains the gist of the laws in the twenty-seven States with information as to the pupils, grades and branches to be supplied:

Maine—Mandatory; school books, apparatus and appliances; not limited.

New Hampshire—Mandatory; text-books and other supplies; not limited.

Vermont—Mandatory; appliances, supplies and text-books; to certain specified elementary branches.

Massachusetts—Mandatory; text-books and other school supplies, including tools, implements and materials used for instruction in the use of tools and cooking.

Rhode Island—Mandatory; text-books and other school supplies; not limited.

Connecticut—Optional; text-books and other school supplies; not limited.

New York—Optional; text-books; to pupils in schools in union free school districts.

New Jersey—Mandatory; text-books and school supplies; not limited.

Pennsylvania—Mandatory; books and supplies; not limited.

Delaware—Mandatory; text-books; to pupils, including colored, of public schools outside Wilmington.

Maryland—Mandatory; text-books; introduced into the grades successively, beginning with the first; annual expenditure limited to $150,000, appropriated by the State.

District of Columbia—Optional; text-books and supplies; to grades below high school. No law upon the subject. Congress makes annually the necessary appropriation upon the estimate of the board of education.

West Virginia—Optional; text-books; not limited.

Ohio—Optional; school books; to the elementary branches specified in the compulsory educational law.

Michigan—Optional; text-books; to certain specified elementary branches.

Wisconsin—Optional; text-books; not limited.

Minnesota—Optional; text-books; not limited.

Iowa—Optional; text-books; not limited.

North Dakota—Optional; books and supplies; not limited.

South Dakota—Optional; school books; not limited.

Nebraska—Mandatory; text-books and school supplies; not limited.

Kansas—Optional; text-books; not limited.

Wyoming—Mandatory; text-books and school supplies; not limited.

Colorado—Optional; text-books; not limited.

Utah—Mandatory; text-books and supplies; to pupils below high school.

Idaho—Optional; text-books; not limited.

Washington—Optional; text-books; not limited.

In addition to this there are about 100 cities of 25,000 population and over which furnish free text-books and supplies to the pupils of the public schools.

Generally where the State pays for the books and supplies under a mandatory law the purchasing is done by a central agency or board, which buys everything wanted in a lump and distributes as needed. Of course, the books and supplies are not all shipped to a central point, but are shipped under the direction of the central board, as wanted in different parts of the State.

Wherever a central agency buys all the books and supplies the office of the board is usually in the Educational Department at the State Capitol.

PRINTING IN TIBET.

THE principal printing press in Tibet is situated at Nartang, near Shigatse, within the jurisdiction of the Teshi Lama. "It was visited," according to the London Academy, "by Sarat Chandra Das, and a correspondent of the Anglo-Indian Pioneer who has lately returned from that part of Tibet gives the following interesting particulars of the system of printing. The Tibetan printers are still at the stage of the block-book, for which each page had to be carved separately on a single block of wood, and many thousands of such blocks are kept in stock at Nartang. Each wooden block is about twenty-four inches long by twelve inches wide, one face having carved upon it a complete page of lettering. The method of printing is primitive in the extreme, and consists in laying the paper on a flat surface and levering the block upon it with a long handle much as the village blacksmith works his bellows. Sarat Chandra Das endeavored to simplify the process by presenting a lithographic press to the Tibetan Prime Minister, but it fell under the suspicion of being intended to diffuse smallpox, and no one ventured to unpack it for many months. As the correspondent mentioned found the old system of block printing still in use the other day it evidently never became popular."

NEW BOOKSTORE AND PUBLISHING FIRM IN CHICAGO.

It has just been announced that The Dial Company of Chicago is to open in that city a large and well-equipped bookstore early in October, and will later inaugurate a general book publishing business. The company will, of course, carry on actively the three periodicals with which it has so long been identified, and which are so well known to the trade throughout the country: The Dial, the acknowledged leading literary journal in America; the "Trade Book List," a monthly bulletin of new books, supplied in imprint editions to booksellers throughout the United States; and "What's in the Magazines," devoted to the interests of periodicals as the first two are to books.

A special point is to be made of the decoration and fittings of this new shop. It is said that the beauty and distinction of the interior, as well as its comfort and convenience, are so unusual and striking that Browne's Bookstore, as it will be called, is likely to be unique among bookshops on this side of the water. At the same time no essential feature of a modern general bookstore will be overlooked, and a large miscellaneous stock of new and standard books of all kinds will be carried. Exceptional space for the main salesroom, as well as for the offices, storerooms, etc., has been secured in the Fine Arts Building on Michigan Avenue. This building, by the way, is a unique institution in Chicago, and does not quite have a parallel in New York or Boston. In a location of peculiar advantage on the city's water-front, overlooking Lake Michigan, this beautiful and populous structure now contains many of Chicago's literary and artistic interests, as well as some of the best retail shops, leading clubs, etc., making it a place of peculiar fitness for the new bookstore.

The general direction of this enterprise will be in the hands of Francis F. Browne, president of The Dial Company and founder of The Dial, who will continue the editorial management of the journal begun by him in 1880; and Waldo R. and Herbert S. Browne, who have assisted their father in the affairs of The Dial Company—all practical and experienced men who have been intimately associated with the booktrade for many years. The direction of the bookstore will be the special interest of W. R. Browne, seconded by R. S. Anderson, who for the past thirteen years has been in the buying department of A. C. McClurg & Co.; while H. S. Browne will be the treasurer and financial man of the house. Another recent accession is H. B. Harvey, who has been in charge of McClurg & Co.'s advertising department for the last six years.

This accession to the ranks of the book-selling and publishing trades is most cordially welcomed. Few men in this country have done more for letters and the best interests of those connected with the disseminating of good reading than the founder of The Dial and those associated with him in this new enterprise.

CONVENTION OF NATIONAL ASS'N OF STATIONERS AND MANUFACTURERS.

THE third annual convention of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers was held at the Hotel Ryan, St. Paul, Minn., on July 15. About 200 members and their friends were present, representing sixteen of the larger cities of the United States. Charles H. Mann, the president of the Association, acted as chairman. After disposing of the routine business Mr. Mann, at the second day's session, presented his report of the work done during his term of office. According to the secretary's report the Association now numbers 581, an increase of thirty-eight members. The treasurer's report indicated a slight deficit. Reports were then submitted by the committees. In the evening Fletcher B. Gibbs read an excellent paper on "Making of Prices," the leading note of which was to mark nothing at a price that yields less than 33½ per cent. margin on the selling price, to withdraw all leaders at cut prices and to cancel all special discounts to retail customers. George M. Courts, of Galveston, Tex., read a paper on "Business Methods." O. H. L. Wernicke, of Grand Rapids, Mich., spoke on "Good Fellowship;" Samuel Ward, of Boston, presented a paper on "Itemized Expenses," and W. H. Hopkins, of the Globe-Wernicke Company, of Cincinnati, delivered an address on "Freight Classification."

At the third day's session the following officers were elected:

President, William J. Kennedy, of the Kennedy Stationery Company, St. Louis; first vice-president, Emil Berolzheimer, of the Eagle Pencil Company, New York; second vice-president, William St. Gilkey, of the Brooks Company, Cleveland, O.; third vice-president, William H. Kistler, Kistler Stationery Co., Denver, Col.; secretary, James T. Lacey, Woodward & Tiernan Printing Company, St. Louis; treasurer, Abner K. Pratt, of J. L. Fairbanks & Co., Boston; auditor, Charles A. Stevens, of Stevens, Maloney & Co., Chicago.

After the election of officers and the appointment of directors, Millington Lockwood read a paper on "Competitive Prices;" James T. Lacy, of St. Louis, a paper on a "Perpetual Inventory for the Stationers," and Theodore L. C. Gerry, of New York, a paper on "The Relation of the Manufacturer, Jobber and Retailer."

The last day's session was taken up by the discussion of a number of subjects brought up by different members, and the appointment of a committee to prepare a Year Book of the Association, to include the papers read at the convention, the Constitution of the National Association and an outline of a constitution for any prospective local association.

The convention concluded with a dinner at the Hotel Ryan, at which President Kennedy acted as toastmaster. Each day was filled in with excursions, picnics and sight-seeing under the direction of the local association.

The next convention is to be held in Boston, July 13 to 16, 1908.

THE LONDON TIMES REPUDIATES THE NEW PUBLISHING COMPANY.

IN an advertisement in the London Times of the recently-formed New Publishing Company, Ltd., to be supported by members of The Times Book Club, for the purpose of smashing "the publishing ring," the following remarkable statements are made: (1) "The company is not in any way connected with The Times," and (2) "The company is not in any way connected with The Publishers' Association."

As the London Publishers' Circular puts it: "It is clear that the first statement cannot be correct. Even if no shares are held by The Times or those connected with it, the concern is closely connected with The Times Book Club and with the whole misguided policy of The Times, of which it is admittedly the outcome. As regards the second statement that the New Publishing Company, Ltd., is in no way connected with The Publishers' Association, it can only be regarded as a feeble bit of pleasantry bordering on insult. . . .

"Booksellers know that the sole object of The Times is to make money by selling new books at second-hand prices direct to the public, even directly they are published—they know that this policy must be as damaging to authors and to publishers as to themselves; they are therefore not likely to be hoodwinked by the statements put forth by the directors of this New Publishing Company, Ltd., viz., that 'its operations will be specially designed to encourage the revival of the Retail Booksellers,' and that it will be prepared to 'offer generous terms to all local distributing agencies, whether retail traders or book clubs.'"

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

UNFAIR QUOTATION.

IN an action brought in London by Harper & Brothers against the proprietors of The Electrical Engineer, the court, on June 26, gave judgment to the plaintiffs. It appears that after favorably reviewing a work entitled "Elements of Electric Traction for Motormen and Others," published by Harper & Brothers, the editor published extracts from the book to which, though extensive, the publishers made no objection. In later issues these extracts were continued, at first with full acknowledgment, but by degrees with less until all indication of the source was omitted. Harper & Brothers then brought suit, claiming that the reprint of the important parts of the book was hurting its sale. The judge in giving his opinion said that the copying far exceeded the fair and reasonable limits of a review. The review proper had been published on February 1, but after a week had been allowed to elapse these extracts had been printed without comment, and in one case without any notice or acknowledgment. It was clear there had been an infringement of copyright in this book, and from the defendant's evidence it was clear he knew the extracts were too long to appear with the review and would be inserted in future numbers. The only question was what damages should be given—£5 which had been paid into court was too little, but the plaintiffs were only entitled to such damage as they could prove they had sustained, and that was not more than £15. There would be judgment for £10 in addition to what had been paid in, and the plaintiffs were entitled to costs, for which he would certify on the high court scale.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE FALSE ETHICS OF THE BOOKTRADE.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: The trade in books from publisher to purchaser is conducted on a false basis. Unlike the trade in other commodities, it is not grounded upon just principles nor honest methods. The dealer in cloths purchases a cloth of the manufacturer or his agent, say, at one dollar per yard. He fixes $1.25 as its selling price, which gives him a fair margin of profit, can buy one or more pieces at the uniform price of a dollar per yard, and so long as the texture is good and the style prevails he holds to that price.

Now, take the retail bookseller. The current published price of the cloth bound novel is $1.50; but this is a fictitious price to start with, for no retail dealer, in any bookstore, from Greenland to the tropics, ever thinks of asking the published price of $1.50. In towns remote from the publication office, possibly, he may ask and readily secure $1.25 or $1.35; but the current price varies in the larger towns from $1.08 to $1.20. He buys on a graduated scale at from 81 to 90 cents, and this price prevails for one year from the date of publication. What then? Many of these books are thereafter sold at prices varying from 30 cents to 36 or 38 cents, and the publisher's price is 75 cents (another fictitious list price, as the books are everywhere retailed at from 40 to 50 cents).

Can you advise me of any branch of trade where the same methods are now, or ever have been, similar? If so, I wish you would. Now, who is to blame for this condition of things? Certainly the fault does not rest with the retailer. Then who is at fault? Primarily, we believe the fault rests wholly with the publisher. He it is who owns and absolutely controls the copyright. He should establish a retail price which the public should be made to believe is a true and not a fictitious price and then sell at a price, not for a year only at three times the price which he is willing to sell the same book for twelve months hence. Book buyers are not all fools. They know that so long as they can purchase a $1.50 book after a year has elapsed for 50 cents that either the 50 cent price is an unprofitable one alike to publisher and the retail dealer, or that the first selling price affords, one or the other, and perhaps both, publisher and retailer, an enormous profit.

Books are not sold so readily as groceries and clothing and consequently they should bring a somewhat increased profit over that of such commodities. It is not too much to seek for—30 or 35 per cent. profit. Then let the published price be placed at $1.25 for the book now published at $1.50 and supply this book to the retail dealer at 25 per cent. discount and hold that price for years. Then give the jobber, not the library purchaser, an extra discount sufficient to enable him to do a successful business, and not sell the outside man who purchases for a syndicate at any better rates than you give the retailer.

When this condition of affairs prevails you may look to see a revival of the booktrade, and never till that day. Then the small dealer in all our remote towns will take courage, and we shall see such a revival and such increased demands for books as never yet prevailed.

OBITUARY NOTES.

FRANK DENHAM HARMON, for a number of years the head of the Burr Printing House, 18 Jacob Street, New York City, of which his father-in-law, Henry A. Burr, was the proprietor, was thrown from his touring car while speeding down Bradley Hill on a trip from Boston to Nantasket Beach on July 22, and so seriously injured that he died within an hour.

HECTOR HENRI MALOT, the French journalist and novelist, died in Paris on July 19. Malot was born in La Bouille, Seine-Inférieure, May 20, 1830. He first practiced law and later became a writer for the Paris newspapers. In 1859 he published his first novel, "Les Amants," which was the first of a series of three books known as "Les Victimes d'Amour." Malot next undertook to write critical articles for the then new magazine, L'Opinion Nationale. He went to London as correspondent, and published later "La Vie Moderne en Angleterre," made up of letters on British customs and life. He later on furnished up several English court cases as novels. "Vices Français" told the story of the Dilke divorce case. He also wrote a book reviewing the case of Lady Colin Campbell, in which he took up the cudgels for the lady. Life under the Second Empire appealed to him particularly as worthy of being portrayed. M. Malot was a bit of a sensationalist, a keen analyst and a sympathetic writer. He wrote several books for and about children. His book "Sans Famille," widely read here in a translation called "No Relations," was crowned by the French Academy. Besides the books mentioned some of his best known are "Les Aventures de Romain Kalbris," "Mme. Obernin," "Souvenirs d'un Blessé," "Le Docteur Claude," "Paulette," "Mondaine," "Mère," "Amours de Jeunes" and "Amours de Vieux."

BUSINESS NOTES.

BATH, ME—The Shaw bookstore, which has been famous for over fifty years, has passed into the hands of the Crocker-Shaw Company. Wallace E. Shaw, who was for many years associated with his father, the late John O. Shaw, has formed a partnership with S. C. Crocker, of the Crocker Pen Company, and the two will endeavor to make this one of the best book and stationery stores in Maine.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—A. J. Rodger's central news room has removed to larger and more convenient quarters in the Kasson Opera block, 34 North Main Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The publishing business which has formerly been conducted in the name of T. J. McBride & Son was transferred, on July 1, to The John McBride Co., who are liable for all accounts made in the name of the former firm. This, however, applies only to the publishing department.

QUEENS, N. Y.—The Marion Press has been incorporated to print, publish and sell books, papers, stationery, etc. The incorporators are Gilbert B. Sayres, N. D. Llewellyn, Clarence A. Ludlam, all of Jamaica, N. Y.

VERNAL, UTAH.—F. M. Young has sold his book and stationery store to the Bracken Clothing Company.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A. B. PIERSON, 1530 Van Ness Avenue, San Francisco, Cal., has just brought out "Back Log Philosophies," by L. W. Harris, author of the "Damndest Finest Ruins."

THE OAKWOOD COMPANY, Boston, is about to publish a book of advice on "How to Get a Job and How to Keep It," by Nathaniel C. Fowler, Jr., author of "Starting in Life," etc.

BRENTAKO'S have just ready "Lucy Gort," a story of English life, by Lucy and Claude Askew, authors of "The Shulamite," a South African story, which was staged in this country last year.

BEGINNING August 10 and continuing until September 14 the Saturday issue of the New York Times will contain articles on educational topics, in which parents and guardians will be interested.

W. A. WILDE & Co., Boston, have in preparation the "Select Notes" by the Rev. Dr. F. N. Peloubet and Professor Amos R. Wells. This, as is well known, is a commentary on the international Sunday-school lessons for 1908.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY is issuing a special New England and Boston edition of James Bell Naylor's "Old Home Week," with a portrait of Rollins, who invented the "week" and a picture of his home at Concord.

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. will publish shortly "The Road to Damascus," by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell Keays, author of "He That Eateth Bread With Me." They will bring out in September Camille Flammarion's "Mysterious Psychic Forces."

MITCHELL KENNERLEY announces "Cherub Divine," a novel by Sewell Ford; "Wisdom of Dickens," by Temple Scott; "Children's Plays," by Florida Pier; also, a book on Ibsen, by Montrose J. Moses, author of "Famous Actor Families in America."

THE BROADWAY PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York City, will publish shortly a controversial work, entitled "The Story of the Covenant and the Mystery of the Jew," by J. L. Woodbridge; "Pocahontas," by Virginia C. Castleman; also, "The Doomed City," by J. Salmon Maclean.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY is now ready with a full line of school supplies for the fall trade, and dealers should send for a copy of the new catalogue, that gives all information of the stock, which includes all the standard goods and many new articles shown this season for the first time.

THE Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune reports that M. Nicoullaud had decided to give the world another volume of memoirs by the Comtesse de Boigne. It will presumably be put promptly into English and issued here by the Scribners, who brought out the first volume a short time ago.

THE ANGEL GUARDIAN PRESS, Boston, will publish early in the fall a work in three volumes, entitled "Our Church, Her Children and Institutions," edited by Henry Coyle and Theodore Mayhew. The book will contain instructive and interesting articles concerning the Catholic Church and religion, with many fine illustrations.

GEORGE EDMUND PLATT, eastern representative of the Reilly & Britton Co., Chicago, will establish headquarters at 395 Broadway, New York, in the offices of Hurst & Co., on August 1. Mr. Platt will have a complete line of samples, including the immensely popular Teddy Bears Series and "Ozma of Oz," the new Baum book, which has had a very heavy advance sale.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a new collection of Voltaire's short stories, in their Classiques Français series which will contain, besides an admirable introduction by Gustav Lanson and a very useful bibliography, the following stories from the Contes Choisis: "Zadig, ou La Destinée;" "Memnon ou La Sagesse Humaine;" "Micromégas;" "Histoire d'un Bon Bramin;" "Le Blanc et Le Noir," and "Jeannot et Colin."

MRS. GEORGE CORNWALLIS WEST is engaged in writing her memoirs, and they are to be published simultaneously in England and America in the course of next year. Since the memorable April day in 1874 when the marriage of Jennie Jerome, daughter of the late Leonard Jerome, of New York, to Lord Randolph Churchill took place at the British Embassy in Paris, she has been in close touch with all the most interesting people of her adopted country.

THE A. I. ROOT COMPANY, Medina, O., will publish in September a German edition of the "A B C of Bee Culture," ("Das A B C der Bienenzucht.") by A. I. Root, revised by E. R. Root, and edited by Friedrich Greiner. The work is a compendium of all known information relating to the bee, its food and its care, the cultivation of honey and honey-bearing plants, manufacture of hives, etc. The revised (86th) edition of the original work in English is just ready.

It is proposed to reissue the "Dictionary of National Biography" in a less expensive and more compendious form. This step is in accordance with the wishes of the founder that the work should be brought within reach of the students and libraries to whom the price and size of the "Dictionary" have hitherto been prohibitive. The entire work in the existing type will now be comprised in 22 volumes, instead of 66 as at present; and it is hoped that the publication may begin in the course of next year.

STORIES by Dickens, hitherto unpublished, (as his,) are promised. Recently there turned up an old ledger belonging to Household Words, the publication for which Dickens wrote much, showing payments made for articles in that journal, the account covering many years. By means of this book the contributions by Dickens have been identified. A number of stories, sketches, and miscellaneous articles not since repeated and altogether unknown to this generation, are shown to have been written by Dickens, while of several stories which have been attributed to him it is now certain he was not the author.

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY will publish in the early fall a new illustrated edition of that incomparable animal story, "Beautiful Joe," by Marshall Saunders, with eight full-page illustrations, a colored frontispiece, illustrated title-page, and illustrated chapter headings, by Charles Copeland, the well-known artist, who has so successfully illustrated a number of the best animal story books. They will publish shortly a new song book for Sunday-school, gospel services and church worship by Charles H. Gabriel, entitled "Praise and Service." The book consists largely of new hymns and music, and is not burdened with from ten to fifty pages of songs to be found in almost every book issued, for which the people must pay over and over again, because they are "popular," but is filled with new and fresh compositions, many of which will no doubt become popular favorites, supplemented by a selection of the choicest church hymns which are always serviceable and useful.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have in preparation for young readers a "Life of Theodore Roosevelt," by James Morgan, which should find a large number of readers as the next Presidential campaign draws near; a book about the birds, by Mabel Osgood Wright, with the delightful title "Gray Lady and the Birds," and a new story for girls by Christina Gowans White, author of that admirable tale, "The Story-Book Girls." In biography there is a treat in store for many readers in the first English translation of the Memoirs of the elder Dumas, which is to appear in six volumes, the first volume being announced for the first of October. No less interesting will be "An Artist's Reminiscences," by Walter Crane, who is almost as well known in America as in England; and the "Letters of Dean Hole" will also be attractive to many readers. In history, besides the second volume of Professor Edward Channing's "History of the United States," the concluding volume of Dr. Henry Charles Lea's "History of the Inquisition of Spain," and a new volume in the Cambridge Modern History, an important new work is promised on "British Colonial Policy, 1754-1765," by George Louis Beer.

DUFFIELD & COMPANY'S fall list will include a new and copiously illustrated volume of art criticisms by Kenyon Cox, author of "Old Masters and New," to be called "Painters and Sculptors;" also, "Houses for Town or Country," by William Herbert, with many half-tones; "Historic Churches of America," by Mrs. N. U. Wallington, illustrated, and with an introduction, by the Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale; "Plays of Our Forefathers," by Professor Charles M. Gayley, of the University of California; "Poems of Edgar Allan Poe," edited by Edmund Clarence Stedman and George E. Woodberry; "House Health," by Dr. Norman Bridge; a posthumous drama by Richard Hovey, called "The Holy Graal;" "Gypsy Verses," by Helen Hay Whitney; "Familiar Faces," a new book of comic verse by Harry Graham, author of "Misrepresentative Men;" and a new and especially illustrated Vermont edition of Miss Theodora Peck's successful novel, "Hester of the Grants." Of their fall books for children undoubtedly the leader will be Jessie Willcox Smith's and Helen Hay Whitney's "The Bed-Time Book," a volume of Mrs. Whitney's children's verses with an accompaniment of Miss Smith's ever-welcome pictures in color. Other juveniles from the same list are Kate Dickinson Sweetser's "Boys and Girls from Thackeray;" Paul Harboe's "Child's Biography of Hans Christian Andersen;" Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale's "Stories from the Old Testament for Children," with pictures in color by Roscoe Shrader and Herbert Moore, two promising young pupils of Howard Pyle; and a new edition of Virginia Gerson's "Happy Heart Family," containing the two original volumes in one. In the line of fiction they announce a new novel by Neith Boyce, (Mrs. Hutchins Hapgood,) dealing with modern marriage, and called "The Bond." Richard Pryce's novel, "The Successor," already announced, will appear positively on August 24.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have in preparation "Magda, Queen of Sheba," the story of the visit of the Queen of Sheba to King Solomon and of the early life of their son, translated into French from the original Ghesé, the language of the Ethiopian priests, by Hugues Le Roux and from the French into English by Mrs. John Van Vorst, with an introduction especially prepared for this edition by Hugues Le Roux; "The Emancipation of Miss Susanna," by Margaret Hannis, a little tale which unfolds the moving story of the means by which a spinster, thought to be hopeless in her spinsterhood, accomplished a matrimonial ambition; "Smiling 'Round the World," a new book by Marshall P. Wilder; a new edition of Mabel Wagnalls' "Stars of the Opera," containing much new matter; "A Standard Bible Dictionary," prepared under the editorial direction of Melancthon W. Jacobus, Dean of Hartford Theological Seminary; three new volumes of sermons by Alexander Maclaren, "After the Resurrection," "Leaves from the Tree of Life," and "Last Sheaves;" a Teachers' edition of Forbush's "The Boy's Life of Christ;" "The Union Prayer-Meeting Helper," a vest-pocket commentary on the prayer-meeting topics for 1908; "The Semi-Insane and the Semi-Responsible," by Professor Joseph Grasset, translated by Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe; "Sex Equality," by Dr. Emmett Densmore; "Home Gymnastics on Ling's System," by Professor Anders Wide, who treats of the system devised by Pehr Henrik Ling, which has been taught in the Stockholm Royal Gymnastic Institute with ever-increasing efficiency since 1813; "Humorous Hits and How to Hold an Audience," by Grenville Kleiser, author of "How to Speak in Public," a book that found immediate favor with public speakers; also, "The New Encyclopedia of Social Reform," revised from the edition of 1897 and edited by William D. P. Bliss, which gives the very latest information, together with the expert opinions of the highest authorities from both sides of all important sociological questions.

A. C. McClurg & Co.'s further announcements for the fall include "Our Country Home," by Frances Kinsley [Mrs. Charles L.] Hutchinson, a chronicle of the planning, the building and the arranging of an attractive country place, with notes on gardening, etc., illustrated with reproductions of upwards of one hundred photographs; "The Great Plains," by Randall Parrish, describing the romantic and picturesque events in the development of the West, with a number of illustrations; "The Campaign of Santiago de Cuba," by Colonel H. H. Sargent, a study in modern military science, in three volumes with twelve maps; the second part of Pompeo Molmenti's interesting work on Venice, translated by Horatio F. Brown, which is devoted to "Venice in the Golden Age;" "A Handbook of the Philippines," by Hamilton M. Wright, which follows the lines of Mr. Clement's very successful "Handbook of Modern Japan," a useful book for manufacturers and exporters as well as for travellers, with maps and 130 illustrations; "Literary Rambles in France," by M. Betham-Edwards, uniform with the author's work on "Home Life in France;" "Thomas Gainsborough," by William D. Bolton, a competent biography of the great painter, with forty illustrations; "How to Identify Old Chinese Porcelain," by Mrs. Willoughby Hodgson, which will appeal to collectors; "Old Oak Furniture," by Frederick Roe, useful in collecting and identifying old oak furniture, with a frontispiece in colors and many illustrations in the text by the author; also, "Dame Curtsey's Book of Novel Entertainments for Every Day in the Year," by Ellye Howell Glover, who conducts a popular column in the Chicago Record-Herald under the pseudonym of "Dame Curtsey," who has prepared this book to fill a definite need for a practical book of holiday observances. They have also in press eight volumes in their Ooze Leather Series, including "The Religion of Cheerfulness," "Catchwords of Cheer," "Gems of Wisdom," "The Rubaiyat," "Lincoln at Gettysburg," "The Lincoln Year Book," "The Franklin Year Book," and "Shakespeare's Christmas Gift to Queen Bess;" ten volumes in The Maple Leaf Series, four volumes in The Holly Series and twenty-six volumes in the Special Limp Leather Series. These series are well printed and attractively bound.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Young Folks' Nature Field Book

By J. ALDEN LORING

A SHORT, timely nature story, or seasonable hint for every calendar day in the year, telling the reader just what time in the successive seasons to look for the different birds, beasts, flowers, etc., how to recognize and study them when taking observation walks for pleasure or instruction. Recognition of different creatures, etc., is assisted by numerous excellent illustrations, and alternate pages are left blank for reader's notes or record of things seen. A yearly record so kept, either by a single young person or a small group or club, cannot fail to be a source of continuous interest, not only while being made but after its completion. A club competing for the best and most complete record so made should produce pleasure and instruction throughout the year. Cloth, illustrated. $1.00 postpaid.

EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS

"A genuine love for nature should be cultivated in youth. Young people in the country as well as in the town need helps to direct them in their observations, and for this purpose a new book has just been issued."—The Watchword, Dayton, Ohio.

"This is a volume that will appeal to all lovers of out-door life. . . . It is a unique book and one that must commend itself to those whose children are beginning to take an interest in nature's affairs."—St. John Globe.

"The scheme is admirably adapted to arouse interest in the sights and sounds of the way-side. Mr. Loring's advice as to methods of observation is always most sensible."—Providence Journal.

"There can be no royal road to knowledge, but to a knowledge of nature and her ways there are many quiet paths yielding varied delights beyond the joys of a regal triumph. The book is a companion rather than a guide."—Toronto Globe.

"Of incalculable value to children who are interested in any branch of nature study."—Boston Courier.

"To all who love natural history and are fond of studying the habits and haunts of the common animals and plants this book will prove a treasure trove."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"It will make the walks in the woods and parks more enjoyable, as it is a letter of introduction to the wild things whose home is in the woodland trees."—Nashville American.

LIPPINCOTT'S

Mental, Elementary and Practical ARITHMETICS

In the preparation of Lippincott's Arithmetics, the author has kept constantly in view the fundamental principles of sound teaching. The aim is to prepare students for practical life by the development of thought-power, while making them masters of the mechanical processes.

LIPPINCOTT'S

First, Second and Third Books of PHYSIOLOGY

These books are pure Physiology. The language is easily understood and is marked by the avoidance of technical and stilted expressions. The treatment of alcohol and narcotics is strong, logical and sensible, and the physical side of the subject is given the prominence it deserves.

MORRIS'S

Primary, Elementary and Advanced HISTORIES

Prof. Morris's language is clear, concise, forcible, and adapted to the capabilities of the pupils for whom the books were written. The style is calm, truthful, and free from all partisan or sectional prejudice.

POWER'S

GRADED SPELLERS

Complete and in two parts

This work represents the best of the old and the new methods, and is intended to meet modern requirements. It is not based on any fad, but upon good results obtained by actual experience.

SCHWINN AND STEVENSON'S CIVIL GOVERNMENT

Containing Six Two-page Colored Maps

This volume presents a description of the various forms of government—local, state, and national—together with a discussion of the government of the United States from a historical point of view. The close relations of history and the Constitution are specially described, and numerous outlines and tables inserted.

This novel is also concerned with New York society at its wealthiest, wickedest and best. It is a glowing love story with this theme: the safety of society rests with the newer generation for it has hopes, illusions, ideals. It is written with all the irresistible charm of the author, who is recognized as the master story teller of America.

A spell-binding story of love, mystery, heroic-daring and moral-courage. It will stir the warm blood of any true-hearted man or woman who reads it.

A fascinating, realistic story of the Ozark regions of Southern Missouri. Helpful, strengthening and uplifting.

Dr. Parker Stockdale, B.A., says:

" . . . If you can read it without the tears your heart is hard, and if you do not laugh at times, humor plays a small part in the drama of your life. . . . No heroine in modern fiction can compare with her unless it be Virginia Carvel."

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY will publish on September 13 "The Mauleverer Murders," a detective story, by A. C. Fox-Davies.

DANA ESTES & Co. have just ready "Jimmy Jones, the Autobiography of an Office Boy," by Roy L. McCardell, an effective antidote against the blues.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will publish on the 15th inst. a new story by Hallie Erminie Rives, author of "The Castaway," etc., entitled "Satan Sanderson."

THE DODGE PUBLISHING COMPANY will bring out on the first of September the Pease edition of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," with illustrations in color by Bessie Pease Gutmann. The text will be printed on fine rag paper with border designs in color.

THE REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY will bring out, as exclusive-selling agents to the trade, on September 10, "The Shepherd of the Hills," a realistic story of the Ozark regions of Southern Missouri, by Harold Bell Wright, author of "That Printer of Udell's," now in its 60th thousand. The book will have eight illustrations by Weddell.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY expect to issue shortly the volume on "Antony and Cleopatra" in Dr. Furness's Variorum edition of Shakespeare. They have in preparation an elaborate work entitled "Below the Cataracts." It is written and illustrated by Walter Tyndale, who has drawn sixty full-page illustrations, which will be reproduced in all the brilliant coloring of that region.

B. W. DODGE & Co., New York City, will publish in the fall a book on "New York in Literature," by Rufus Rockwell Wilson, author of "New York Old and New." The new book will deal with the sites and places not only of New York City, associated with authors of the past and their work, but also with those of Long Island, of the Hudson River and Lake regions and of New Jersey.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish on August 22 a new book by Robert Hichens, author of "The Garden of Allah," "The Call of the Blood," etc. The book is entitled "Barbary Sheep," and tells the story of a wealthy Englishman and his wife who visit North Africa and how the woman meets the seductive allurements of temptation. The background of the story is the Algerian Desert with its fascinating coloring. They will also publish this month in the "Stories of Adventure" section of the Harper's Young People Series, a volume of "Adventures of Uncle Sam's Soldiers," a collection of stories by General Charles King, Captain Charles A. Curtis, John Habberton and others that tell fascinatingly of the real exploits of American soldiers. They will bring out in September "Discoveries in Every-day Europe," by Don C. Seitz, a record of delightfully amusing facts, with numerous pen-and-ink sketches, which amusingly and adequately supplement the text; "Stories of Symphonic Music—the meaning of important symphonies, overtures and tone poems from Beethoven to the present day," by Lawrence Gilman, which is of value because it gives the "stories" which underlie the most important works in the orchestral repertoire; also, a new story by Joseph Conrad, entitled "The Secret Agent," a story of anarchistic plot and counterplot, in which a small, commonplace, ordinary-looking little shop in London furnishes "the secret agent," who plays against the existing order of things.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk **, and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. †

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Ts. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fo. (48mo: 20 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Bagot, R: Temptation. N. Y., Macmillan, 1907. 374 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

Author of "Casting of nets," etc., again places his scene in Italy among the lesser nobility of the present day. Count Ugo Vitali, the last of a powerful family, absorbed in developing his impoverished inheritance, has married a beautiful daughter of the people. All goes well, until a craving for excitement takes possession of this sensual woman, unscrupulous and unprincipled. Her instrument, as well as victim, is the cousin and heir of her husband. The story works out the idea of temptation of a higher by a lower nature, and its tragedy emphasizes the cumulative effects of uncontrolled emotions.

Dixon, T., jr. The traitor: a story of the fall of the Invisible Empire; il. by G. D. Williams. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1907. c. 331 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

An episode in the closing of the "Reconstruction" period in the Southern states, 1865-1870, when the odious Conspiracy acts began to be oftener honored in the breach than in the observance. The author gives a vivid picture of the political and social conditions in the South during the most critical period in the history of our country, and also describes pathetically the scene attending the dissolution, in North Carolina, of the original Ku Klux Klan, or Invisible Empire, founded to deliver the "Reconstructed" states from negro rule. The organization of a bogus "Klan" for the purpose of wreaking personal vengeance and its kindling of fierce neighborhood feuds, during which a treacherous member of both organizations, to secure his own immunity, denounces the Grand Dragon of North Carolina and five hundred of his men forms the crux of the story. A charming love story moves quickly through the book.

Dodge, Walter Phelps. The real Sir Richard Burton; with a frontispiece. [Brooklyn, N. Y., A. Wessels Co.,] 1907. 7-240 p. por. O. cl., *$1.80 net.

Author is Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society and also Fellow of the American Geographical Society and a lawyer by profession, attached to the Middle Temple, London. The book is not intended to compete with the well-known "Lives" of Burton by Lady Burton, Miss Stisted, Thomas Wright, etc., but the author makes a short study of "the fascinating career of romance and hard work of one of the greatest of modern Britains." He thinks it time that the name of Burton should be placed with those of Livingstone and Stanley as explorer, and he makes clear that Burton's great knowledge of men, languages and literatures also entitles him to a recognized place among the great literary men of all time.

Fernald, Chester Bailey. John Kendry's idea; with front. by C. D. Williams. N. Y., Outing Publishing Co., 1907. c. '06, '07. 6+348 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A young millionaire, with a great enthusiasm for reforming the world, makes the acquaintance in a strange way with a beautiful but uneducated girl in California. She is his "idea." Her beauty and grace impress him, and he resolves to raise her above her rather sordid surroundings, and give her a higher culture. The experiment is only partly successful, inasmuch as the altruistic motive soon gives place to a warmer one.

Forman, Justus Miles. A stumbling block. N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 310 p. D. cl., $1.50.

David Rivers is talented and ambitious; to gain an important end he follows the advice of grim old Robert Henley, who is his guardian, and leaves Rose Mary Crewe, a charming young girl he loves, and travels in Europe for several years. But he is so unfortunate as to meet Violet Winter, a brilliant, fascinating woman, whom he marries; she becomes a "stumbling-block" and endangers his career, although she loves him truly. The scene changes from Croydon, a small town, to New York City. By the author of "Buchanan's wife."

Fox-Davies, Arthur C. The Dangerville inheritance: a detective story. [2d ed.] N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 9-312 p. D. cl., $1.50.

It would be unkind to reveal the secret of this detective story involving a murder which the author so skilfully guards to the very end. It is original and wholly unexpected. An impecunious old English earl marries late in life to spite his family; this changes the fortunes of cousins. One of these, ruined by horse-racing, is found dead, and the detective work leading first to one clue, then to a totally opposite one, makes the story.

Brief essays under general and special headings relating to work, the home, marriage, education, books, perfect love, worrying, government, capital punishment, the Old Testament, etc. The author hopes that "the new ideas herein expressed" may contribute some feeble aid to the common effort to eradicate the fables, myths and false traditions which have long distracted human advancement."

Gallon, Tom. Tinman. Bost., Small, Maynard & Co., 1907. 9-315 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The principal character is a man who has borne the horror of twenty years' imprisonment for the deliberate murder of the slanderer of a woman he loved. He re-enacts the same crime for the sake of her daughter when released from prison. He achieves his way to final happiness by devious paths. Grim as the story is, it has a very human side.

OLD BOOK NOTES.

THE copy of the Genevan version of the Bible, printed by C. Barker, 1588, with the signature of John Milton, dated 1654, which was purchased at Sotheby's on February 25, 1901, for £225 by B. F. Stevens, is to be resold at Anderson's, New York, during the coming season.

AT Sotheby's, on July 26, a second folio of Shakespeare in imperfect condition sold for $1250. A third folio sold for $1300. A rare and finely-decorated English manuscript psalter, from the library of the great Lord Burleigh, probably of the thirteenth century, brought $3500, and a rare first edition of "Pilgrim's Progress," $2600.

RARE FINDS.—The story of historic finds reminds one of how John Payne Collier was offered for 1s. 6d. a fine copy of the Kilmar-nock Burns, in the original state, as he was wandering through the Turnstiles, Lincoln's Inn Fields, one day in 1892. He thought he would buy it on his way home. This was one of the well-laid plans that gang aft agley. When he came back later in the day the Burns was gone, and left never a trace.

POST-CARD NOTES.

THE postmaster at New York has issued an order that hereafter articles made wholly or partly of celluloid must be enclosed in a metal box with tightly closing cover before they can be admitted to the mails. This order has been issued because of the danger from ignition to which the articles may be subjected under some circumstances.

BUSINESS NOTES.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—On July 15 the business of R. M. Mansford, Inc., (founded in 1875 and incorporated in 1893,) was purchased by William L. Clark from the heirs of the late E. J. Carrington, the president of the company. Beyond the election of new officers and directors, there will be no important changes. On August 1 W. E. McCracken resigned his position with the firm of E. H. Clarke & Bro., of this city, to renew his connection with R. M. Mansford, Inc.

NEW YORK CITY.—The American News Company has taken the first public step looking toward its eventual removal from Chambers Street to Nos. 11 to 15 Park Place, by filing plans with the Buildings Superintendent to alter the buildings on the new site, which run north to Nos. 8 to 12 Murray Street. The new quarters for the present will be used for storage of their stationery and other goods.

NEW YORK CITY.—The business of Thomas Whittaker has been incorporated under the firm name of Thomas Whittaker, Incorporated. The officers are: Thomas Whittaker, president; W. S. Silver, treasurer, and Thomas H. Topping, secretary. The incorporation dates as from June 1.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Brentano's, who removed nearly three years ago from their well-known location on Pennsylvania Avenue, where they had been for nearly a quarter of a century, to the corner of F and Thirteenth Streets, have made arrangements to occupy the large building at the corner of F and Twelfth Streets, where they will have a store three times larger than their present location. They expect to move about October 15.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. J. RYPOLD, DT

AUGUST 3, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament therunto."—LORD BACON.

PACKING OF GOODS FOR EXPORT TRADE.

For years merchants in foreign countries and freight agents of transportation lines to foreign ports have complained of and strenuously objected to the inadequate packing of goods shipped from American ports. Neglect in this respect has caused loss of goods not only to foreign merchants, but loss of trade to the American manufacturers as well. Advice and warnings of our foreign customers and consuls abroad having been disregarded, the freight agent of one line—the Panama Railroad Company, (Panama Railroad S. S. Line)—has taken the first step in an action to reform this shortcoming, which, no doubt, will in time be adopted by other lines. This action is outlined in the following circular addressed to shippers:

"Complaints have come to us recently so persistently from our General Manager at Colon and from the Freight Traffic Manager of the Pacific Mail S. S. Company, at San Francisco, concerning the inadequate packing of goods shipped from this port by our steamers that we feel compelled to bring the matter to the attention of our patrons.

"European manufacturers have learned by experience that adequate packing is an excellent investment, as contents reach destination in good shape, whereas American manufacturers are neglectful in packing for export, to the detriment of merchants, transportation companies and the manufacturers themselves.

"We ask the co-operation of all shippers and consignees in an effort to diminish frail packing, as it is to their benefit as well as to that of the transportation lines to have shipments delivered in good condition.

"We shall hereafter refuse packages too frail to hold contents or not in condition to stand necessary handling during the voyage, as we decline to assume responsibility for the shortcomings of packers.

"Special attention is called to the fact that ours is a water route with transshipments, and hence better packing is required than if the cargo were to be transported with little or no rehandling."

The traffic manager of the Southern Pacific system, in a recent letter to the Merchants' Association of New York, on this subject says:

"One thing more in this connection might be undertaken with profit to both parties, in our estimation, and that is to check the tendency of many shippers to cheapen the cost of the package. Material for crates, boxes, packages, etc., is doubtless more expensive now than ever before, and this has resulted in the use of light and inferior material which has shown itself in greater damage to freight when so packed. Carriers have had to stand a greater burden from this cause, and receivers of freight have also been subjected to much inconvenience and loss and damage to their goods."

Publishers, especially, whose books and other printed matter are of such unusual heavy weight, who desire to promote export trade with foreign countries, should give the requirements of that trade as to proper packing, etc., careful study with a view to improving present methods. Not only should the material of the cases be of strong lumber, but the joining and "strapping" should be absolutely close and firm and the lining be substantially waterproof. Models in this respect are the cases constructed for export trade by the English, French and German publishers and manufacturers, which, literally, often make the circuit of the globe without "springing" or loosening or exposing their contents to damage. Even in casing books for transportation in this country greater care should be taken than is ordinarily taken, many cases becoming "wobbly" even on so short a journey as from the warehouse to the railway station, and thus exposing their contents to the risk of damage by rains unless covered with tarpaulins by some thoughtful freight agent. And freight agents are not all thoughtful, as many a shipper has found to his own loss.

A $60,000 man who sells that amount of goods at a good advance over cost to reliable customers is a more valuable man to the house than the salesman who disposes of $120,000 worth of goods at close prices to Tom, Dick and Harry—in fact, to anybody who will give him an order.

BOOKSELLING IN MOSCOW.

"I HAPPENED to witness, writes the Moscow correspondent of the London Evening Standard, "in one of the principal streets of Moscow recently the ceremony of 'closing a bookshop,' one of the favorite police methods of repression. The district chief of police was affixing his seals to the door in the presence of an amused crowd, while sotto voce passed around good humored remarks which may be rendered 'At it again!' 'The same old game!' and the like.

"In fact people rather pitied the police, the ordinary police, for their futility. The ordinary police rather pity themselves. They have secured pretty good pay by threatening strikes in the last year, but they are still under the orders of the secret political police, or gendarmerie, the 'blue pigeons,' whom all Russia hates, fears and despises. It is by orders based on gendarmerie spies' information that bookshops are shut and almost every other act of senseless tyranny is carried out. These are the officials who spend lavishly the resources of an impoverished treasury in creating 'political crimes' and incidentally demoralizing the public by their universal spy system.

"... In the last twelve months bookshops dealing with the literature now solely in demand in Russia have sprung up like mushrooms after rain in every street of any importance. As fast as one is closed on suspicion of selling political pamphlets which do not propagate the ideas of the 'Government' another opens. There is very little difficulty in procuring publications of every kind, whether forbidden by the police or not. When there is a public to buy for cash a hundred thousand copies of a book in one day no amount of despotic repression will prevent the demand being met.

"One of the last successes, the record by an ex-governor of his career in office, sold 25,000 copies in a week and is now eagerly sought at a high premium. These are not isolated instances by any means. Russia is making up for lost time; for a century or more past she has been denied access to the knowledge most vitally interesting to the nation; now it is coming suddenly upon her. Five years ago Russia was living on translations from English, French, German, Swedish, Italian, etc.; to-day the only translations to be found are those of political pamphlets. Novels are a drug on the shelves; poetry of the modern kind, which aims at the crown of a Tyrtæus, is eagerly sought; but history and political philosophy are the staple in demand.

"Why are bookshops closed? Why are newspapers fined? No one knows; it cannot be—yet on second thought it very well may be—that the 'Government' believes in the possibility of making the torrent run uphill, back to the course and limits of a half century ago. Meantime the game goes on: a book is confiscated by order, referred to the jurisdiction of the law courts, which in the course of a month or two exonerate the publisher and author of all blame and allow the book to be issued.

"The publisher emerges from jail and the author rejoices; but the police, 'acting on orders,' again confiscate the book, for the local authority stands far above any decree of a law court in these days. Thus the bookshops go on selling and the public buying under the protection of the law, while the police go about sealing up bookshops and imprisoning and fining publishers, stopping their printing offices and otherwise rendering distinguished service to what they suppose to be the cause of law and order."

THE PENNELLS CAN USE WHISTLER LETTERS.

THE question of the publication of certain information contained in the private letters of Whistler by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pennell and William Heinemann, the London publisher, in a biography of Whistler now being written by the Pennells, was settled in London on July 24, when the court to which the matter had been presented handed down a judgment that the Pennells were entitled to make use of the information in question.

The Pennells claimed that Mr. Whistler frequently expressed the desire that they write his life, saying further that he was willing to place all material he had at their disposal. Objection to this was raised by Miss R. B. Phillip, a sister-in-law of the late artist, who, as executrix of his estate, brought suit to restrain the Pennells. Miss Phillip asserted that she was only authorized to make a selection from the letters to be published after the lapse of a number of years, and that that time had not yet arrived.

THE FRIENDS OF ARTISTS AND POETS.

"HENRIK IBSEN's 'lost manuscript,' announced for publication in the autumn," as the New York Evening Sun again reminds its readers, "went astray during his sojourn in Italy in the '60s. He died in the belief that it was no longer in existence. It now appears, however, that it was found on a bookstall in Rome nearly fifteen years ago by 'a Danish gentleman.' The Danish gentleman evidently valued it, for in his will he left it to the Royal Library of Copenhagen upon the condition that a friend of his should have the right to publish it. It never occurred to the Danish gentleman to hand over the lost property to its owner. For seven years he held it in secret, and then he made a present of it to one of his friends without ever dreaming of consulting Ibsen or Ibsen's friends.

"Common honesty and plain dealing are seemingly of small account in the traffic of poets' and artists' wares. A few weeks ago Robert Ross exposed the scheme of a certain publisher who is about to issue an unauthorized edition of Wilde's writings with the help of the hackney writer known as 'Le Gallienne.' Such undertakings are of everyday occurrence. The author and the author's kinsmen and friends are not considered at all.

"As soon as Aubrey Beardsley was dead the ghouls were quick to publish and profit by drawings which he had 'vehemently refused' to publish while he lived. And so with Whistler; his death was the opportunity of every toadeater who used to brag about his friendship. We do not refer to Mr. and Mrs. Pennell, who were apparently the biographers chosen by Whistler himself, nor yet to the amiable enthusiasts who began at once to publish every paltry scratch of the pencil they could lay their hands on. Some of these were fatuous and insignificant enough, and it may be doubted if Whistler, in spite of all his inordinate vanity and self-conceit, would ever have consented in their publication. They were, however, generally published in good faith, just as many of his feeble witticisms were published by that sickly, anæmic crew of worshippers he gathered about him, who were unable to discriminate between what was excellent in the man and what was petty and contemptible.

"But what are we to think of the unspeakable book of Mr. Mortimer Menpes? It might have been written by Whistler's valet for all it contained concerning the artist. Mr. Menpes had an eye apparently for mean things only, and all that was insignificant or despicable in his subject he saw with infallible accuracy and paraded—in the sincere belief, perhaps, that he was doing Whistler an honor. But, however, from the testimony in the recent action, Phillip vs. Pennell, we learn that he was warned against publishing the book. We do not wonder that Whistler had, as Mr. Heinemann said, 'a great aversion to being written about, and in particular by Mr. Mortimer Menpes,' whom, we are further told, he had 'a perfect horror of.' The book abundantly justifies his aversion, with its flunkey-like adulation and the utter inability it shows on the part of the writer to perceive anything of real worth in a character which in some ways was unquestionably small and weak. Mr. Menpes must have known that Whistler despised him. His own book shows it; he even seems to glory in being treated like a menial by the little great man. Yet he wrote about Whistler, knowing that Whistler did not wish him to do so.

"Instances of this sort, as we have said, are common, yet this one may possibly be an exception. Is it not just conceivable that Mr. Menpes's book was a revenge for all the indignities he suffered at Whistler's hands?"

THE HARM OF A MINIMUM PRICE.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to the London Stationery Trades Journal that "one result of interfering in other people's bargains is to force their hands. The advertising or notifying of a 'minimum' selling price amounts to saying that sellers cannot get more, because every stationer realizes at once that there must be many people selling at that rate before the manufacturer will fix it as a minimum, and therefore that it will not do for him to ask for more. Hence, the effect of the price fixing propaganda has unfortunately been to lower prices of all similar articles to the minimum fixed in their class by perhaps but one. That is, to make them lower generally than they were before.

"When an isolated instance of cutting occurred at one time no one was any the worse, and full prices could be got without fear of it, that is if it were thought advisable. Now single instances are blazoned abroad to make all insecure, while minimum prices instead of levelling up rates cannot have any other effect than to level them down."

COMMUNICATIONS.

PUBLISHERS' CARD CATALOGUES OF NEW BOOKS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I believe that the scheme adopted by the John Lane Company, of New York, in sending out descriptive cards of their new publications if followed up and taken hold of by all the prominent publishers would appeal strongly both to booksellers and to librarians. The bookseller by filing such cards and having the file where clerks and customers could get at it readily, would be enabled to make more sales, and the librarian when the books were purchased could file the printed card and so save much time.

I hope that other publishing houses will follow suit.

H. GREGORY.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 29, 1907.

A SOUTHERN BOOKSELLER ON REFORM.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your report of the Booksellers' Convention would say that the small dealer is to be justly criticised for his seeming lack of interest; yet he probably feels that he would not have consideration—his needs being termed "quibbles" or "kicks."

This lack of mutual understanding is most regrettable.

Improvements can only be had by making our wants known.

To the majority of book dealers, the "net system" seems only for the good of the publishers and some dealers in the cities, as the express charges consume up such a large part of the profit, and no dealer can ask more for a book which is marked "net $1.50."

Some time ago, I asked a large publisher if the price could not be turned around to say "Postpaid $1.65" (in big type) "Net $1.50" (in small type). McClure, Phillips & Co., I think, did something like this at one time, but they came to the conclusion that it would produce confusion.

Now you know the dealer has not had the slightest consideration at the hands of the school book men—not even being credited with the proverbial ability of being able to "turn."

When one firm publishes both fiction and school books, different business systems prevail in the two branches of the one house.

Let any school boy or girl order a few books and he or she gets the "usual 1-6 or 1-5%": but show any publisher, or even any first-class wholesale house, that would give the full discount on fiction.

All praise to them.

Now as nearly every stationer and book-seller comes into contract with school books and their many troubles, try your hand at bringing them together in the laudable effort of "abolishment of indiscriminate discount-giving."

Some of the school book publishers will even allow teachers to order books and return unsold copies at the end of the term—this not being only upon their adoption the first year, but at all times.

How many publishers would permit even a 10% exchange?

Unless I am too utterly in the wrong, start a discussion and let us all, large and small, feel that organization is for the general good and get expressions from other dealers, provoking a wider interest.

ALBERT G. EYRICH.

JACKSON, MISS., July 23, 1907.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ONE of Mrs. Humphry Ward's daughters has been married to a grandnephew of Thomas Babington Macaulay.

"TOM MASSON" is no more. With his autumn book, which will be entitled "A Bachelor's Baby," Thomas L. Masson has taken his place. "The change was first suggested to me," said Mr. Masson, "by Edward W. Bok, who insisted that, in spite of Mark Twain, Jack London and Tom Payne, it was extremely undignified for me to pose in such a youthful garb. After I decided to make the change I received the proof of a story in Appleton's Magazine, which was signed with the old name, and I changed the old to the new, and it was printed. My friend, Trumbull White, editor of Appleton's, did not notice the change until it was too late. He said he had bought the story from Tom Masson and paid him a great deal more than it was worth on account of the name, and he naturally felt chagrined when it appeared under a new and wholly different name. Personally, I do not think it makes a great deal of difference. Perhaps the dignity which is supposed to attach itself to the new name is counterbalanced by the greater length over the shorter."

OBITUARY NOTES.

MRS. SUSAN BULLITT DIXON, widow of Archibald Dixon, U. S. Senator from Kentucky, fifty years ago, died in New York City, July 25. She was born in Oxmoor, Jefferson Co., Ky., February 20, 1829. She wrote "The True History of the Missouri Compromise and Its Repeal," on the preparation of which she spent twelve years; "Slavery in American Politics," and a number of other works.

RICHARD MEADE BACHE, a lineal descendant of Benjamin Franklin in the fourth generation and a cousin of General Meade's, died in Philadelphia July 17, aged seventy-seven. Mr. Bache was for forty years connected with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. He devoted his spare time to historic research and current literature. The most notable work was his life of General Meade, published in 1897. Other of his books were "Vulgarisms, and Other Errors of Speech," 1869; "American Wonderland," 1871, and "Under the Palmetto in Peace and War," 1880.

DAVID CHRISTIE MURRAY, journalist and novelist, died in London, August 1. Mr. Murray was born April 13, 1847, at West Bromwich, Staffordshire. He began his journalistic career as reporter for the Birmingham Morning News, and, going to London, served on the Daily News, The World and The Times, for which he reported the Russo-Turkish war. Upon his return from the war he turned his attention to fiction. His first work, published in 1879, "A Life's Atonement," was followed by "Joseph's Coat," "Val Strange," "Coals of Fire," "Hearts," "By the Gate of the Sea," "The Way of the World," "A Race for Millions," and many other works. Mr. Murray travelled extensively. He came to this country in 1895, and delivered lectures and gave readings from his books. He also lectured in Australia and Canada.

EDWARD J. H. TAMSEN, the head of one of the oldest German bookstores in New York City, died July 24. Mr. Tamsen was born in Hamburg, Germany, February 25, 1849. Having served a year in the army he came to New York in 1869, and early in the seventies, with a relative, Mr. Krause, purchased Schroeder's bookstore, founded late in the forties by his uncle. The business was removed to 52 Avenue A, and conducted under the firm names of Tamsen & Krause, and Tamsen, Krause & Dethlefs. In 1876 Mr. Tamsen became sole owner of the business, which, besides being a book and stationery business and lending library, had also become an important steamship agency, advertising exchange and a banking business. His store was the literary centre of the "Kleine Deutschland" of New York City, extending from Houston to Tenth Streets and from Avenue B to First Avenue, which fifty years ago numbered more Germans than many large towns in Germany to-day. Recently he opened a branch on Third Avenue, near Eighty-fourth Street. Mr. Tamsen was prominent in German social and political circles, and filled the office of sheriff of New York City during Mayor Strong's administration, 1894 to 1897.

JOSEPH HATTON, journalist and novelist, died in London on July 31. Mr. Hatton was born in Andover, Eng., February 3, 1841, and early in life devoted himself to journalism. He first wrote for his father's paper, The Derbyshire Times, one of the first of the British penny newspapers. For a number of years he edited The Gentleman's Magazine, and acted as correspondent for the New York Times, the Berlin Kreuz-Zeitung and the Sydney Morning Herald. He was a voluminous contributor to the periodical press, and his "Cigarette Papers," published in The People and widely syndicated, were favorably received in Great Britain and in this country when published in book form. He was in the United States for The London Standard at the time of the assassination of President Garfield, and sent the news of that tragedy to The Standard in a cable message of record length. He was also the author of numerous popular novels and of several plays, some of which have been acted in America. Among his miscellaneous works are "Irving's Impressions of America," "Toole's Reminiscences," "To-day in America," "Old Lamps and New" and "The New Ceylon," a volume descriptive of North Borneo. Among his best-known novels is "The Old House at Sandwich," "The Princess Mazaroff" and "The Dagger and the Cross."

COLONEL WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE HAYS, ("Will S. Hays,") journalist and song writer, died at Louisville, Ky., on July 24. Colonel Hays was born in Louisville, July 19, 1837, and early became reporter on the Louisville Democrat. He was for four years clerk and captain of steamboats on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and then resumed his journalistic work as river editor for the Courier-Journal and Times. Colonel Hays always claimed the authorship of the original words of "Dixie" and that he was responsible for the arrangement of the music. His version of "Dixie" was written at the outbreak of the war between the states, but the words were considered so seditious that the writer was arrested and compelled to change them. By that time, it is said, Dan Emmett, the minstrel, had written his song and his publisher had it copyrighted. Colonel Hays's most famous song was "Mollie Darling," the sales of which reached two million copies in Europe and America. Among his other songs were "Keep in De Middle ob de Road," "The Old Log Cabin in the Lane" and "Signal Bells at Sea."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE THEOSOPHICAL PUBLISHING COMPANY, 244 Lenox Avenue, New York, have in preparation for the fall, "Kabalah Unveiled," a translation of the esoteric scriptures of the Jews, by S. L. MacGregor Mathers.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just gone to press with a fifth printing of "Beatrice of Clare," by John Reed Scott; also, with a second edition of "The Truth About the Case," a book of true detective adventure by M. F. Goron.

W. A. WILDE & Co. announce "Six Girls and the Tea Room," a tale of brisk work, talk and fun, by Miss Marion Ames Taggart, whose "Six Girls and Bob," issued last year, caused The Interior, of Chicago, to say "it really seems as though dear Miss Alcott has returned."

THE issue by the American Baptist Publication Society of an elaborately illustrated edition of "Beautiful Joe," marks the printing of 500,000 of that delightful story which took the prize offered by the American Humane Society for the best essay on the treatment of the wrongs of animals.

BENZIGER BROTHERS have just ready a new book by Robert Hugh Benson, entitled "A Mirror of Shalott—a collection of tales told at an unprofessional symposium," in which the author is said to "display in the narrative a skill as subtle and as charming as his imagination has been subtle and weird in the conjuring up of incidents."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will bring out this fall under the title of "Human Bullets" a story of the Russo-Japanese war, by Tadayesum Sakurai, which in the original has already sold to the extent of 40,000 copies. The work has been translated into English by Masujiro Honka, edited by Mrs. Alice Mabel Bacon and supplied with an introduction by Count Okura.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just ready "The Children's Creed," by Agatha G. Twining, an illustrated series of talks on the Apostles' Creed, designed for the use of parents and teachers; "That Land and Ours," by Gertrude Hollis, being allegories following the Christian year; and a new and popular edition of "The Battles of Peace," sermons by Dean Hodges, of Cambridge, Eng.

THE HILLS & HAFELY Co., 27 East 22d Street, New York City, have just ready an entirely new line of cards for the Jewish New Year, which this year occurs on September 9. They are unlike anything made in this line heretofore, and appeal to society trade. There are nearly fifty varieties ranging at retail prices at from five cents to one dollar, with a liberal discount to the trade.

UPTON SINCLAIR'S "The Industrial Republic," of which a German translation is being prepared, has been interdicted by the prosecuting attorney of the Federal Court of the First Division in Berlin. The advance sheets sent to the local papers caused unfavorable comment. Several statements contained in the book were construed as unwarranted attacks on the German Emperor.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have added six titles to their popular Handy Volume Classics—"Best American Tales," edited by Trent and Henneman; "Cape Cod," by Thoreau; "Little Flowers of St. Francis of Assisi," "Meditations of Marcus Aurelius," "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," by Drummond; and "Religio Medici," by Browne. The series now includes 183 volumes.

RUTGER B. JEWETT, manager of John Lane Company, New York, has arranged for the publication of a new novel by William J. Locke, author of "The Belovéd Vagabond" and "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne." Both these books have been dramatized and will be seen on the stage in New York the coming season. Mr. Locke's time has recently been much occupied with the dramatic work thus entailed, but he is now actively engaged upon his new book.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready Dr. Louis Albert Banks's latest volume of sermons, "The Sinner and His Friends." Dr. Banks's previous sermons in book form have achieved popularity because of their trenchant style and evangelical power.

He is a preacher who does not mince words when attacking evil—he strikes straight from the shoulder and his blows tell, and his sermons are models of epigrammatic utterance and evangelical grace.

FORBES & Co., Chicago, have in preparation a volume of "Thoughts on Business," by Waldo Pondray Warren, whose work is the outgrowth of a business experience gained through many years of association with one of America's greatest commercial institutions; also, "Sonnets of a Budding Bard," by Nixon Waterman, an optimistic poet, who in this volume writes for an aspiring youth some clever verses in mock heroic style, which will be illustrated by John A. Williams.

THE CENTURY COMPANY has in preparation for early issue a new and enlarged edition of "Medieval Civilization," containing new chapters on the "Life of Gerbert," "Saint Bernard," "Southern France and the Religious Opposition," "The Intellectual Movement of the Thirteenth Century," "Antecedents of the Renaissance," "St. Louis," "Relations of Antiquity to the Renaissance," and the "French Army in the Time of Charles VII." The new edition will sell for $2 net.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish early this month "A Voyage with Captain Dynamite," by Charles Edward Rich, author of "Pearl Island," an attractive book for young people. In September they will bring out another juvenile, entitled "Little Travellers Around the World," by Helen Coleman, with pictures by George Bonawitz. This book will contain the story of a party of children who travel around the world and who describe what they see from their own standpoint. It is a fascinating and instructive series of pictures of children of other lands interspersed with characteristic stories.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have in preparation the following books for young people: "Moral Songs for Anxious Children," by John A. and Rue Carpenter, quaintly illustrated and bound uniform with "When Little Boys Sing;" "A Book of Nursery Songs and Rhymes," edited by S. Baring-Gould, illustrated and decorated; also, four new volumes in the series of Life Stories for Young People, translated from the German by George P. Upton, including "Joseph Haydn," completing the group of old music masters; "Frithiof Saga," "Herman and Thunselda," of the period of Julius Cæsar and the invasions of Germany by the Romans, and "The Swiss Heroes," of the period of William Tell.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. publish this week a second edition of "Submarine Warfare, Past and Present," by Herbert C. Fyfe, revised by John Leyland, with an introduction by Admiral Sir Edmund Freemantle; "Fortification, its past achievements, recent development and future progress," by Sir George Sydenham Clarke, with a map of Port Arthur and 57 illustrations; "The Discoveries in Crete and Their Bearing on the History of Ancient Civilization," by Ronald M. Burrowes, Professor of Greek in University College, Cardiff; "A Handbook of Egyptian Religion," by Adolf Erman; in The English Library, "The Small Library, a Guide to the Collection and Care of Books," by James Duff Brown; and in the New Universal Library, "Jane Eyre," by Charlotte Brontë; and "Sesame and Lilies," by John Ruskin.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will bring out shortly a volume on "Money and Credit Investments, in Their Relation to General Prices," by Professor E. W. Kemmerer, of Cornell. This is the first volume of the new Cornell Studies in History and Political Science. The author has long been a student of monetary science, and for several years past director of the currency in the Philippines. His examination of the quantity theory of money is both on its theoretical and on its practical sides, and will be of interest to every student of monetary questions, and to bankers, financiers and legislators. They will also publish shortly a work on "Plant Physiology and Ecology," by Professor Frederick E. Clements, of the University of Nebraska; and Hoffmann's "Meister Martin der Küfner," edited for school and college use by Professor R. H. Fife, of the Wesleyan University.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in preparation a work on "Trusts and Corporations," by James R. Day, Chancellor of the Syracuse [N. Y.] University, embodying the author's view as to giant combinations of commercial interests, the science of organized charity and kindred subjects; "Current Finance," by ex-Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, a study of national finance; "Corporation Finance," by Professor Edward S. Meade, of the Wharton School of Finance, a study of the science of financing large corporations; also, "The Modern City Problems of City Government," by Leo S. Rowe, professor in the University of Pennsylvania, a very original and suggestive discussion of municipal questions by an eminent authority. They announce that the book by Mme. Bernhardt, to be brought out by them in October, will be entitled "Memoires of My Life," instead of "Memoirs of Sarah Bernhardt," as originally announced.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS is bringing out under the title of "English Poems—the Nineteenth Century," a selection of the best English poetry of the nineteenth century, edited by Dr. Walter C. Bronson, of Brown University. The book is intended primarily for the use of school and college classes, and in the endeavor to meet the needs of teachers Dr. Bronson has kept several points in mind: (1) the selection, in the main, of complete poems only; (2) the admission of the best minor poets; (3) neither too much nor too little commentary; (4) serviceable bibliographies. The result is a volume of 635 pages, of which 525 will be given to texts, (averaging 41 lines to the page,) 90 to notes, and the remainder to bibliographies. The poets represented, with approximate number of pages assigned to the selections are as follows: Wordsworth, 50; Coleridge, 43; Scott, 17; Byron, 53; Landor, 12; Shelley, 48; Keats, 37; Tennyson, 65; Browning, 64; Arnold, 25; Rossetti, 20; Morris, 18; Swinburne, 23;

Rogers, Bowles, Campbell, Southey, Moore, Hunt, Mrs. Browning, Clough, Miss Rossetti, 50. Great pains have been taken to make the volume attractive and serviceable in material form. A special library edition on heavier paper is also being prepared.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will publish shortly a novel of romantic adventure by William Frederick Dix, author of that delightful romance of old furniture, "The Face in the Girandole." The title of the new book is "The Lost Princess." Its atmosphere is intensely modern, and its stirring plot will hold the reader fascinated to the last page. They also announce a series of anonymous frank letters from a brother in New York to a sister in Cincinnati, detailing the view men take of women and their affairs, under the title of "Her Brother's Letters;" "The Blue Ocean's Daughter," by Cyrus Townsend Brady, a story of the sea during the Revolution—a high-spirited romance set against a background of exciting adventure; "Semiramis," by Edward Peple, author of "The Prince Chap," who in this forthcoming volume has written a romance making the barbaric age live again in all its splendor and excess; also, "Ted in Mythland," a dainty volume by Hermine Schwed, which translates into charming verse and prose for children of all ages the stories of the gods and goddesses of Greek and Roman mythology, serving the double purpose of a highly entertaining story-book and a complete outline of mythology, carefully studied from the best sources, with twenty-eight charming drawings by M. H. Squire.

PAUL ELDER & COMPANY announce The Abbey Classics, a series of the shorter of the great English and American poems—those which can be easily read at a sitting and which should be read often. The series is edited, with short critical introductions to each volume, by Walter Taylor Field. The first group will be Burns's "Cotter's Saturday Night," Milton's "Ode on the Nativity," Lowell's "Vision of Sir Launfal," and Longfellow's "The Building of the Ship." The new series, Western Classics, will be made up of gems from the literature of the Pacific Coast, each volume with an introduction by a well-known writer. Stevenson's "The Sea Fogs," with an introduction by Thomas Rutherford Bacon; "The Case of Summerfield," by William H. Rhodes. (Caxton,) with an introduction by Geraldine Bonner; Bret Harte's "Tennessee's Partner," with an introduction by William Dallam Armes; and "A Son of the Gods," by Ambrose Bierce, with an introduction by W. C. Morrow, are soon to be ready. Each volume is to be set in an individual scheme of typography designed by John H. Nash. A frontispiece in photogravure, Italian hand-made paper, a binding of sheepskin parchment backs and Italian hand-made boards are a few of the details of manufacture. A poetical rendering of the love letters of Abelard and Heloise, by Ella C. Bennett, is soon to be published by this firm. The volume is to be printed on Arche's hand-made paper and to have a frontispiece in photogravure after a painting by Will Jenkins.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

✎ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

✎ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE TRAITOR

Like all of Dr. Dixon's books, the vital interest in this story grips the reader from the start. The author gives us the picture of a gentle Southern woman turned into a demon by the spirit of just revenge.

A thrilling story of love, adventure, treason, and the United States Secret Service, dealing with the fall of the Invisible Empire, or Ku Klux Klan.

Promote Your School Book Business

Booksellers can add to the volume of their business materially by developing carefully the sale of school books in their territory. While the margin of profit appears to be small it must be kept in mind that many schools, especially private schools, colleges and universities, order in quantities; the sale-season, though short, is "snappy" and there is a minimum of danger only in accumulating "dead" stock. When you make a customer for school books, be he the school principal or the pupil, you have a customer for other supplies as well and very often you form business friendships with "book-lovers" of the future.

To aid the bookseller in this branch of his business, we publish yearly an up-to-date "Educational List" containing the titles of current school books and their prices, together with a classified index of subjects. This catalogue we supply at a very low rate in quantities with the dealer's own imprint on front page—cheap enough to warrant any bookseller distributing it freely among all the educational institutions in his territory.

"For the ghosts in them are the most subtle sort of thing that ever terrified man to his marrow bones. They are invisible, intangible, imponderable essences, states of mind, of spirit— weird, oppressive, awful shadows that are felt but not seen—ghosts of the most modern, evolutionized, philosophical sort. . . . ROBERT NEILSON STEPHENS'S LAST ROMANCE

CLEMENTINA'S HIGHWAYMAN

With six illustrations from drawings by ADELAIDE EVERHART. $1.50

From
List

A dashing, sparkling comedy of which the heroine is as lovely and as changeable as an April day and the hero all ardor and daring. The exquisite quality of Mr. Stephens's literary style clothes the tale in most delicate word-fabric, and never before have his setting and atmosphere been so perfect.

THE TRADE NEEDS NO RECOMMENDATION FROM US OF THE

SEMIRAMIS

By EDWARD PEPLE

Author of "THE PRINCE CHAP"

TO THE TRADE

THIS novel is one of those large performances, carefully studied in its historical and traditional backgrounds and executed with great power and romantic feeling, which appear only once each few years, and occasionally sweep the country. It is a work of great breadth and fulness, replete with the romance of the period, making the barbaric age live again in all its splendor and excess. Through all, and commanding all situations by sheer force of beauty and personality, treads Semiramis, always the Queen, the dictator, the winning, seductive woman.

With Frontispiece. 12mo, $1.50*ALSO, ON THE SAME DAY

RAINY DAY DIVERSIONS

By CAROLYN WELLS

A VOLUME of diverting games, puzzles and recreations for days in the house; the book is suited for boys and girls of any age except the very young. It will be found so rich in pleasure, and so varied in scope, that, even without the aid of Miss Wells's wide popularity, it should prove an excellent selling book year after year.

"'Spirit Lake' is a book so full of the spirit of adventure and wild sport, so breezy and fragrant of the woods, that one is strongly tempted instantly to put on snow shoes without the least knowledge of how to travel upon them, to cut loose from civilization and to set forth into the trackless wilderness. . . . Such are the wild ambitions which have been aroused in a middle-aged to elderly mind by the influence of this pleasant volume."

SALAMIS

"The London critics talk of the 'mantle of Scott' in high praise of a book which they say 'will convey to the average reader what is the eternal value of Greek life to the world.' Moreover, 'there is romance and plotting of real interest through the book, a noble and satisfying love. . . . It is one of the most readable stories of recent years. . . . A masterpiece which so stirringly, truly and splendidly revives the spirit of Hellas that the reader follows with intensest interest.'"

LONG ROAD

"There is abundant testimony to the fascination of 'The Long Road' for everyone who begins it. The evident sincerity of the book, the skill with which the characters are made to live from the very first page, and the charm of an unusual setting, are probably the chief reasons for this fascination. The powerful dramatic pitch of interest to which it rises is only suggested in the opening chapters, the tone of which is idyllic and tender."—Times.

ADAM

"'Before Adam' is the modern equivalent of those folk and fairy-tales which were the delight of former literary epochs. . . . Merlin gives place to Darwin, and the marvels of science supplant those of enchantment."

—Literary Digest.

"A remarkable piece of imaginative work . . . ably done, and curiously fascinating."—Outlook.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE CENTURY COMPANY are publishing "Clem," by Edna Kenton, described as "the story of a battle-royal between Mrs. Grundy and a woman who dared to be herself."

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish in October the intensely interesting "Reminiscences of Carl Schurz." The work will be in two volumes and will be adequately illustrated.

DUFFIELD & COMPANY will issue on September 15 a new novel by Elinor Glyn, entitled "Three Weeks." In England, where the book is already a "best seller," it is called the finest thing this author has done since "The Visits of Elizabeth." "Mrs. Glyn has never written before with anything like such poetic sentiment or such admirable descriptive power," says the London Sunday Times. "Readers who can tolerate a defiance of the conventions will find "Three Weeks" a very dainty romance."

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will bring out on August 17 a historical novel entitled "Semi-ramis," by Edward Peple, author of "The Prince Chap." The author is said to have made a careful study of the legendary rules of Nineveh and the creator of Babylon and of the splendid barbaric age in which she is supposed to have lived, and to have succeeded in presenting a picture of the times aglow with life and interest. They will publish at the same time a book of home games, puzzles and recreations, by Carolyn Wells, entitled "Rainy Day Recreations."

A. C. McCLURG & Co. expect to bring out in the first week of September an able and important work, in three volumes on the strategic history of the Santiago campaign, by Colonel H. H. Sargent, U. S. A. This is to be an exhaustive treatise on the conduct of that decisive event, from the standpoint of a skilled observer, whose authority on such matters is accepted by the military world. The author will be recalled as the writer of two distinctly valuable works in the same field published some years ago—"Napoleon Bonaparte's First Campaign" and "The Campaign of Marengo"—which contributed so much to an understanding of the scientific side of modern warfare. The exact title of the work will be "The Campaign of Santiago de Cuba," and it will have a number of maps, making plain the operations about Santiago from the beginning to its conclusion.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on the 11th inst. "The Lone Star," a new novel by Eugene P. Lyle, Jr., author of "The Missouriian," who has turned some of the dare-devils of Texas, like Sam Houston, Bowie and others into picture characters, without lessing or misplacing historical facts. They will bring out at the same time "The Memoirs of Madame Ristori," which are not only interesting from a literary standpoint, but are a valuable addition to books on the drama. The author was a contemporary of Rachael, Dumas, George Sand, Daudet, Lemartine and other celebrities of that time and writes most charmingly of them. There is a critical analyses in the book of several of the famous plays in which Madame Ristori appeared—"Mary Stuart," "Medea," "Macbeth," "Myrrha, Phaedra, etc., and there are also biographical reminiscences by L. D. Venturo. They expect to publish before the end of the month "The Road to Happiness," by Mrs. Van Koert Schuyler; "To Him That Hath," a story of the New York Bowery by Leroy Scott; and "Daffodils, Narcissus, and How to Grow Them," by A. M. Kirby.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk **, and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger†. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☞

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

- Jimmy Jones is an up-to-date New York City gamin. He is versatile and "tough;" he is not bad, but some of his acquaintances are decidedly "queer." He tells his story in the old Bowery vernacular. He meets an uncle who wants to make a merchant of him, but Jimmy longs for the sea, though there is but little left to explore. While endeavoring to study and get into the Naval Academy old associations get the better of him and he simply runs away leaving all his books behind him.

Upton, C: Elmer. Pioneers of El Dorado. Placerville, Cal., Charles E. Upton, 1906, [1907.] c. 3-201 p. pls. O. cl., $1.10.

Does not so much sketch the lives of special pioneers as sketch those events in the country's annals which are most worthy of being preserved as history, and also collects anecdotes, both comic and pathetic, which best serve to indicate what manner of people the early Californians were. They were a conglomerate mass of humanity representing every grade of refinement and vulgarity, and sometimes the author dwells upon a few facts that may shock the over-fastidious.

Virginia and West Virginia. Encyclopedic digest of reports: being a complete encyclopedia and digest of all the Va. and West Va. case law up to and including v. 103 Va. reports and v. 55 West Va. reports, under the editorial supervision of T: Johnson Michie. v. 11, (Payment to sale on execution.) Wooten, Julien Potter. Typewriter shorthand: a complete system of rapid printed stenography. Burlington, Ia., J. P. Wooten, 1907. c. 84 p. D. pap., $1.

A system depending on abbreviated words in which the vowels are generally omitted. Author claims this kind of typewritten shorthand can be transcribed by any intelligent person and also believes that the day will come when letters written from dictation by this system will be sent out. His argument is that so many abbreviations are already accepted and that it will only take time and habit to write everything in abbreviated words. Sample: As u hvbn hr4 advs. Solution: As you have been heretofore advised. Lists of abbreviations occupy 50 pages of the book.

Yardley, Maud H. Sinless: a novel. N. Y., R. F. Fenno & Co., [1907.] 252 p. D. cl., $1 net.

A highly sensational plot brings two husbands from India to London to meet wives whom they had married ten years before on the eve of starting for their duties in the East. Circumstances mix up the couples and the rest of the story tells of the consequences of the mistake. A young doctor's personal influence on the one hypochondriac old husband gives a ray of humor to the impossible tale.

Zeisler, Alexander. Conversational Hungarian: a practical guide to the Hungarian language for English speaking people. N. Y., Emil Nyitray, 1907. c. 230 p. 8°, cl., $1.25.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LAYPOLDT.

AUGUST 10, 1907.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

ADVERTISING A SUBURBAN BOOK-STORE.

HAVE you ever, on a trip from place to place, wished that at the next stopping-place you might know somebody—to have some point of contact with some one or something? You have an hour, half a day, perhaps, to loaf around in, and all you know about the place is that it is a railroad centre at which you are obliged to change cars and wait for connections. You scan the signs as you approach the place, study the local paper bought a station or two before reaching the town, in the hopes of meeting with the name of some colleague or some business in which you are interested. How often has the name of a merchant who has been perhaps bulldozed into taking an obscure place in one of these mangy sheets been pounced upon by the wayfarer with a throb of delight; and how often has such enterprise, though suspected and roundly denounced by the merchant at the time he was inveigled to become a party to it, been fruitful of reward multiplied many fold.

Or, the traveller desires to purchase a certain article—a piece of jewelry, an article of clothing, a book, a post-card. He might ask for information concerning the stores at which these articles are sold at the station, or at some other point. Many persons are too shy or too independent to ask these questions of strangers, preferring rather to wander about in search of what they want, or to go without altogether. Another suggestion is that the wayfarer might get what he wants at the station itself. But there are numbers of travellers who, if they have the time to spare, would prefer to make a bee-line for a store dealing in what they want rather than to patronize the station merchant whom they somehow regard as an enemy or a pirate.

At this season of the year, when hundreds of thousands of vacationists are moving about our country, stopping at one place because the railroad obliges them to do so; or, at another place because it may have some natural or historical interest for the visitor, it might be profitable for the suburban bookseller especially to post himself at prominent points approaching his town and to call the attention of the traveller to his store and to himself. It needn't be "loud," but it should be effective; and back of it should be an establishment that will "make good" anything claimed for it in the printed advertisement. In the local paper, in his window, on the hoardings, in the station or wherever else the information can be prominently displayed, the bookseller should make the fact known that he is in business. The store should be made so attractive as to serve as the rendezvous and information bureau for natives and visitors—and the greatest attraction of all should be prompt and intelligent service cheerfully rendered.

As we go to press word reaches us that Judge Dowling, of the Supreme Court, has handed down a decision in the case of Macy vs. the American Publishers' Association which is, practically, a barren victory for the plaintiff, inasmuch as the court decides that Macy's is entitled only to damages in the case of non-copyright books. In lieu of the decision itself, we quote the following synopsis of it, from the Law Journal of August 8:

A careful examination of the testimony and exhibits herein leads me to the conclusion that it is impossible to differentiate the legal propositions now presented for determination from those which were judicially settled by the Court of Appeals by its prior decision herein, and which were raised by demurrer (177 N. Y., 473). The question is not one of the interpretation of the copyright laws of the United States, and therefore the contention of plaintiff's counsel that the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit should supersede that of the Court of Appeals is incorrect, even if there were no conflict of decisions (as there is) between the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in different circuits. The issue herein is as to the construction and application of a New York State statute (chap. 690, Laws of 1899), and the Court of Appeals of this State having defined and determined the extent to which the acts complained of are in contravention of the statute, its decision is final and conclusive. It follows, therefore, that in consonance with the decision of Chief Justice Parker, writing for the majority of the court, plaintiffs are entitled to judgment, with costs, against defendants, restraining them from interfering in any way with the sale of uncopyrighted books to plaintiffs, and for the damages which plaintiffs have sustained by reason of defendant's unlawful acts in the premises.

The court will appoint a referee, before which Macy's must prove the damages which they allege they sustained in not being able, for a certain period of time, to obtain supplies of certain non-copyright lines. In another issue we will treat the matter more fully.

JUBILEE OF G. W. DILLINGHAM CO.

IN the summer of 1857 a bright young fellow left the importing and commission house of Burnham, Plumb & Co.—considered in those days to be the most important, if not the largest, firm in that line in the country—to fledge his wings in the book world. Impatient of sordid weights and measures and yard stick the subject of these remarks, George W. Carleton, had long ago cultivated the gentler arts and utilized his talent for drawing in designing illustrations for some of the comic papers and periodicals of the day, such as The Lantern, edited by John Brougham, the actor; The Picayune, edited by Charles E. Wilbur and others, for which amateur work he received an encouraging income. Some of his designs attracted the attention of George Merriam, who asked him to design for his firm an appropriate illustration for a heading to an advertisement of "Webster's Dictionary." His sketch of two small cherubs overweighted with a very big book was accepted, and he used to tell with pride that his only payment for that drawing, which was used for nearly half a century by the purchaser, was a single copy of the dictionary bound in full calf.

As we started to say, in the summer of 1857. George W. Carleton, then twenty-five years of age, equipped with a comprehensive classical education at the institution of the celebrated Dr. Francis L. Hawks at Flushing, L. I., and a general business training in the commission house, together with one of his intimates, Edward P. Rudd, and his father, the Rev. George R. Rudd, laid the foundation of the firm of Rudd & Carleton, which after a most dazzling debut maintained itself, and under its successors, G. W. Carleton, G. W. Carleton & Co. and G. W. Dillingham Co., as a leader in its field for half a century, and bids fair to outlast another fifty years.

G. W. Dillingham

Among the first publications of the young firm was William Allen Butler's society poem, "Nothing to Wear," which, although published in the year of failure and panic, immediately became immensely popular. Mr. Carleton began designing the illustrations for the poem himself, but finally put this work into the hands of his friend, Augustus Hoppin, who made the drawings on wood.

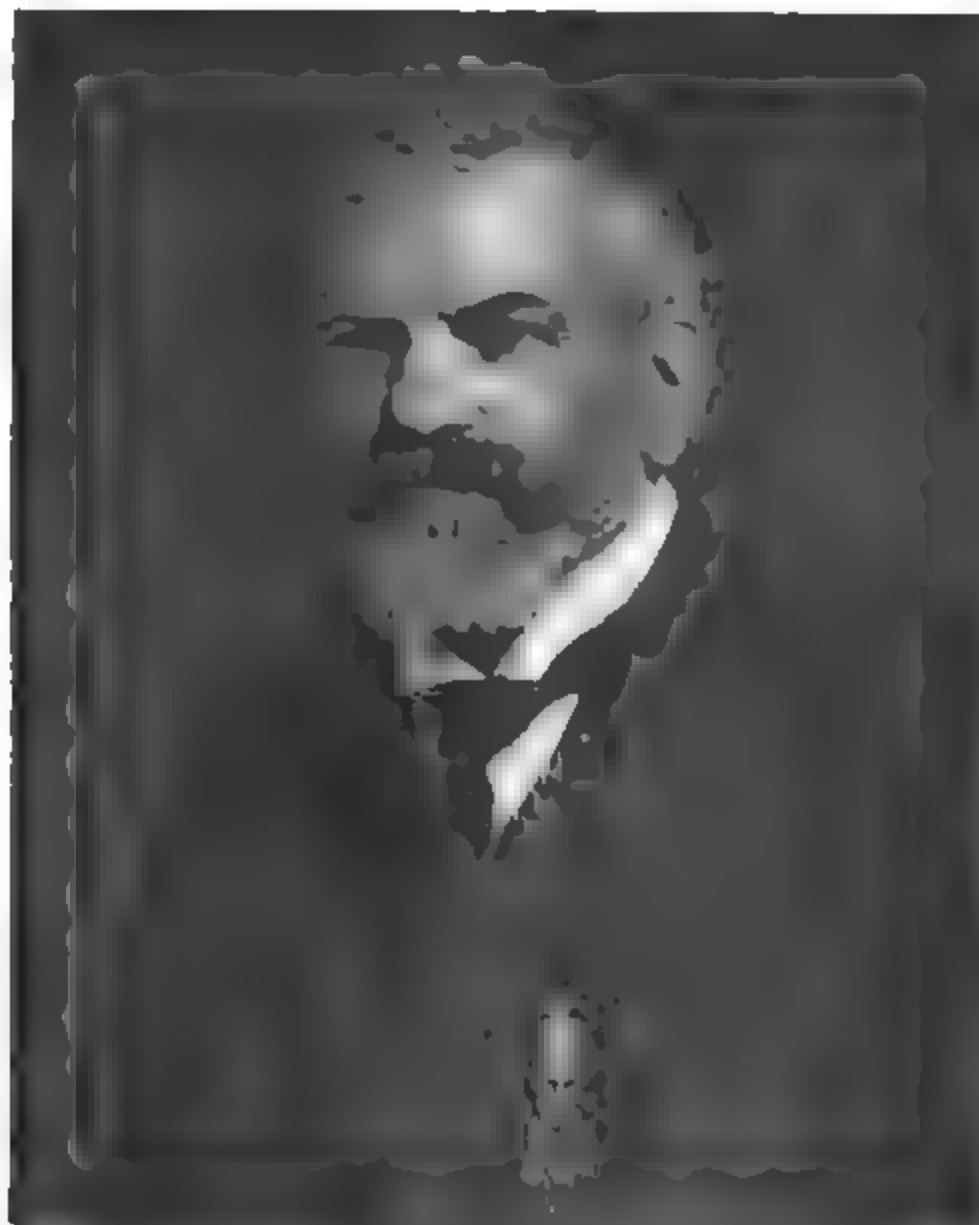

The Carleton establishment from the first was the rallying place of the younger set of American writers, such as Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Artemas Ward, Fitz-James O'Brien, Henry Clapp, Jr., Ned Wilkins, George Arnold, Richard Henry Stoddard, Charles F. Briggs, ("Harry Franco,") Frank Bellew, Charles G. Halpin, Josh Billings, Charles H. Webb, ("John Paul,") and others equally well known. Mr. Carleton and his successors never had much to do with English reprints or with that Boston circle that found a congenial publisher in James T. Fields. Throughout it was the aim of his firm to encourage local and miscellaneous writers, humorists, novelists, odd scribblers of all sorts and newspaper men, and for a number of years the Carleton firm caught the bookish sensations of the day—in New York City, at least—and pushed them often to extraordinary financial success. Indeed, the firm is estimated to have brought out more sensational books by native writers than any other publishing house in the country. Novels like those of Mary J. Holmes, Bertha Clay, Augusta Evans Wilson, Captain Mayne Reid, John Esten Cooke, Marion Harland, Allan Pinkerton, May Agnes Fleming, Fannie Fern, to mention but a few, were veritable bonanzas and were most industriously and successfully mined.

In his estimate of foreign literature, particularly of French literature, Carleton was half a century in advance of his contemporaries. His one success in this direction, but considered a great risk at the time, was the publication of a translation of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables." The result more than justified his faith in the taste of the public, and the book sold to the extent of hundreds of thousands, twenty-five thousand copies being taken by one retail dealer at the Trade Sale in 1861—the largest item ever so sold. His success in this direction encoursuddenly "caught on" and turned the year with 150,000 copies to its credit. In a little over ten years over 500,000 copies had been sold. Carleton's own books, "Our Artist in Cuba," "Our Artist in Peru" and "Our Artist in Spain and Algiers," in which he showed great talent with pen and pencil, also had phenomenally large sales.

Edward P. Rudd having died in 1861 and Mr. Rudd's father retiring, Carleton carried aged him to undertake a translation of Balzac's works—but the undertaking proved a dismal failure and had to be abandoned after five volumes had been brought out. Among more modest successes were his translations of the works of Rénan, Michelet and Housaye—but, generally, it was evident that his keen judgment in this direction far outran the public taste and capacity.

In the publishing of the works of the early humorists the Carleton house scored many successes, particularly with Artemas Ward's books, which sold by the thousands for years, and those of Orpheus C. Kerr, John Phoenix, John G. Saxe and Josh Billings. "The Farmer's Almanax" was one of Carleton's greatest successes. Starting off slowly and taking nearly a year to exhaust the first edition of 2000, it on the business alone under his own name until 1871, when he admitted his head clerk, George W. Dillingham, to partnership, and the firm name was changed to that of G. W. Carleton & Co. Mr. Dillingham, who for some time had been a moving spirit in the Carleton house, was born in 1841 in Bangor, Me., where his father, Nathaniel H. Dillingham, still lives. In the fall of 1858 young Dillingham, who had received some knowledge of the book business in the store of his uncle, Edwin F. Dillingham, still in the book business at Bangor, Me., went to Boston and became clerk in the store of Crosby, Nichols & Co., afterward Crosby, Nichols, Lee & Co., at that time one of the leading firms in New England. In 1861 Dillingham entered the employ of A. K. Loring, at 319 Washington Street, who probably was the most successful retail bookseller and publisher of his time—now the inmate of a charitable institution—and in 1864 he came to New York City and entered the employ of George W. Carleton, after which Mr. Dillingham's history was that of the firm of which he became the head in 1886, when Mr. Carleton retired.* On December 27, 1895, while out riding in Summit, N. J., then his home, his horse collided with a coach, and threw Mr. Dillingham, inflicting injuries from which, after he had rallied sufficiently to again attend to business for a few days, he died before the year ended.

Early in 1896 the firm of G. W. Dillingham Company was incorporated, with John H. Cook as president and John W. Hesse as secretary and treasurer, both connected with the firm for upwards of a quarter of a century. Mr. Cook was born in London, Eng., in 1840, and came to this country as a boy with his parents, who settled on a farm in Quincy, Ill. After working on the farm for some years Cook joined a party of pioneers who crossed the plains, making their way to Pike's Peak. Cook was captured by the Indians, from whom he escaped and made his way to Omaha, and there learned the trade of a carriage builder.

In 1862 Cook joined the Federal army and served at the front until the close of the war between the States. For conspicuous bravery at the battle of Pleasant Hill, La., on April 9, 1864, he received a Medal of Honor from Congress. After the war he opened a newsstand and bookstore in St. Louis, Mo., which he closed out in 1873 to come to New York City. From 1873 to 1879, when he joined the forces of G. W. Carleton & Co., he was travelling salesman for D. Appleton & Co., George Routledge & Sons and Benziger Brothers. Though close upon seventy, Mr. Cook is still hearty and active in the management of his company's business. Of medium height, keen sight and robust build Mr. Cook belies his age by about ten years. Frank and bluff of address he is nevertheless sympathetic and ever ready to extend and to lend a hand to the younger men in his field, among whom he has a host of warm friends, being in this respect a worthy successor to Carleton and Dillingham, whose splendid success was due in a large measure to these characteristics.

Mr. John W. Hesse, the secretary and treasurer, has held a position of trust and responsibility with George W. Carleton and his successors since 1860, giving up almost his entire life to their service, loyally and faithfully rendered.

The firm has occupied six premises since its foundation. The first one was at 413 Broadway, from which it was removed to the St. Nicholas Hotel, the site of which is now occupied by the Charles Broadway Rouss Building. In 1869 it was removed to the old Worth House, at the head of Madison Square, afterward the home of the New York Club. Mr. Carleton furnished the first floor in a sort of Pompeian fashion, as an office, retaining the upper floors for hotel purposes, conducted under his supervision, and which gave rise to the joke that he was keeping a "home for indigent authors." From this house the business was removed in 1872 to the Fifth Avenue Hotel, near the Twenty-third Street corner, where the front was occupied by a bookstore, the striking feature of which was a marble replica of the Apollo Belvedere. The next moves were to 33 West Twenty-third Street, and in 1898 to their present quarters in the Jefferson Building, at 119-121 West Twenty-third Street.

This strange symbol which puzzled so many on its first appearance on the title-page of Thomas Bailey Aldrich's little poem, "The Course of True Love Never Did Run Smooth," and afterwards on their advertisements, was simply the Arabic sign signifying "books." Mr. Carleton came across it while turning over a volume looking with Mr. Aldrich for illustrations to his book. If turned upside down the initials G. W. C. appear quite plainly, so that the sign served the double purpose of a trademark and of a monogram.

The list of the house has been built up deliberately, with keen judgment and breadth of foresight, of material which its directors knew that if backed by fearless and indomitable enterprise would sooner or later make an impression and lead to fortune. A cursory glance at the list will prove how well the founders builded. The house has still a large future before it, and a field to work in which many a golden harvest may yet be reaped. In congratulating the present directors of the affairs of the firm upon the successful completion of the first half century of its career we wish them many, many more years of usefulness and success.

ALEXANDER KLAPPENBACH RETIRES.

ALEXANDER KLAPPENBACH, one of the best-known members of the trade in the Central West, and one of the most popular German-Americans in that section, according to the Chicago correspondent of The American Stationer, "has retired from the firm of Koelling and Klappenbach, of which he was one of the founders and with which he has been actively connected since 1885.

"Alexander Klappenbach is one of the finest types of self-made men. His genial personality and native good humor have made him a favorite with all who know him. He has been prominently identified with the book and stationery business of Chicago during the whole of his career and was an active member of the Chicago Stationers' Association. He was one of the founders of the German-American Historical Society, of which he was treasurer. He was also a director of the German Aid Society for more than twenty years.

"Mr. Klappenbach was born in Texas in 1859 and went to Chicago in 1870, where he attended the public schools. After the great fire of 1871 he was compelled to earn his living, and made his first start in business as a newsboy and bootblack, from which humble callings have come many able men. In 1872 he secured a position as errand boy with the house of H. Enderis, booksellers and stationers, on West Randolph Street, and for thirteen successive years continued in the same line of business with the German Book and News Company, Floto & Meininger, and William Floto and Gustav Hinstorff. In 1885, in connection with John Koelling and F. P. Kinkel, he organized the firm of Koelling, Klappenbach & Kinkel, which was succeeded by the present firm of Koelling & Klappenbach, from which he now announces his withdrawal and the dissolution of the co-partnership "by mutual consent."

"Mr. Klappenbach retires principally on account of ill health, but will devote some of his time to other interests in which he is still jointly interested with Mr. Koelling. He will be greatly missed from his activities in the trade both by the customers of the store and the representatives of the publishers and manufacturers, who were always sure of a cordial reception in his office."

LITHOGRAPHERS' STRIKE ENDED.

THE struggle of the Lithographic Artists', Engravers', and Designers' League with the National Association of Employing Lithographers, begun a year ago, ended on the 5th inst., in abandonment of the fight by the union, according to an announcement made by Richard Kitchelt, national president of the League. When open-shop notices were posted by the employing lithographers in most of the large cities a year ago, with the requirement that all the employees should resign from the union, the men refused to obey. They were locked out in Boston, Springfield, Providence, New York, Philadelphia, Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Louis, as well as in a number of smaller cities; and the lockout continued, without any attempt at compromise or settlement by either side. The League finally decided to ask the men to vote on a proposition to return to work unconditionally, and at meetings called for that purpose the proposition was adopted.

BOOST CLUB EXCURSION.

THE BOOST CLUB, of New York, will have its annual outing at Manhattan Beach on the evening of August 22. The trip to the beach will be made in specially chartered cars of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, seating sixty passengers each, and starting from the New York side of the Brooklyn Bridge at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, sharp. The programme includes a dip in the ocean, dinner and music at the Manhattan Beach Hotel, followed by a fireworks exhibition. The tickets are $5 each.

The Boost Committee is inviting subscriptions from the members of the club to establish a sinking fund of $5000. This fund is to be raised by issuing bonds in units of $5. The club now has 205 members, and it is believed that this sinking fund can be easily raised.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE AUTHORSHIP OF "DIXIE."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I notice on page 309 a notice of the death of Will S. Hays, also a notice of his claim to the authorship of "Dixie." The original "Dixie," words and music, as it is now known the world over, was written by Dan Emmett, and arranged for the piano, here in New York. Six months before the words claimed by Hays were published I heard the music in the winter of 1860. The song was published in June, (I think,) of 1861 by W. A. Pond & Co., and the same music was afterwards set to other words by Fanny J. Crosby, I think about 1864. I cannot recall the first stanza, but there was something about "Hear Fort Moultrie's cannon rattle," "Look away," etc. I never heard that Hays ever made a claim as author or composer till within a few months. Hays ought to be satisfied with the glory of "Mollie Darling," which is altogether in his line and style. H. P. MAIN.

New York, Aug. 5, 1907.

ALDEN "COMES BACK" ON THE "WEEKLY."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Accept thanks for the most complimentary and creditable (to you) send-off given for the Bulletin of "Best-Selling Current Literature" in your issue of July 20, concerning some points in which it seems reasonable to comment:

It was clearly a part of the plan of the publication to launch it on the basis of its merits or demerits, without the prestige (?) of the Alden name, though most obviously without "dodging" that feature, as no business would or could well be consummated, without the fact appearing. You have "delicately" lifted the "veil!"

You emphasize the matter of the direct mailing in a manner to infer a probable "trick," though it is a minor and incidental feature of the plan, and most clear that any dealer not wanting to take any chances can do his own mailing. There are really some people who believe in Alden's integrity, and some others who don't quite count him a fool, as he surely would be to deliberately plan trickery, in a case where honesty and the building of confidence are so clearly advantageous. You even question, where if a dealer's order were sent through a New York City publisher, who, receiving such order would surely require reasonable evidence of due compliance with its terms before turning it over, would be reasonable guarantee against "trickery," though as a part of the plan clearly set forth indicates that bills are to be paid on the basis of mailing agency vouchers, the standing of which as well as the Alden standing, publishers would pass upon, it is quite clear that even the lists of names sent would not necessarily pass through the Alden hands at all.

As to the "crazy quilt" appearance, that of course may be a matter of opinion, and thus far yours is the only unfavorable one heard. But this preliminary issue was necessarily without much help from the publishers, who had to be "shown" before they could be even invited to co-operate with the plan, and obviously the following issues will be from their copy and pass under their proofreading, so the "crazy" part will be for the publishers to arrange.

And as to the "slap-dash" and the key to prices, that portion was most clearly indicated in circulars both to book dealers and the publishers, as being no part whatever of the bulletin plan, but was simply put in to fill out the form and show the proposed size, the front thirty-five pages showing the style.

As to certain Alden "bargain prices," in connection with which you evidently warn dealers again of another Alden "trick," that also evidently was display advertising, not admissible in the bulletin plan, put in to fill out the form. And furthermore, those Bargain Prices will afford dealers who might chance to have orders for them, (though this issue is obviously not intended for distribution at all, except as samples,) a very satisfactory margin of profit.

Clearly the matter is one concerning the merits of which dealers may judge for themselves, as they may also judge concerning the courtesy and disposition to fairness of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. JOHN B. ALDEN.

BIBLE HOUSE, N. Y. CITY, July 22.

[We took the sample issue as representative of the style and make-up of the proposed Bulletin, and naturally based our comments upon that. In referring to the disinclination of dealers to give out their lists of customers to other parties, we alleged no "trick" and made no impeachment—but no assurances were given that such names might not become part of a general mailing list.—ED. P. W.]

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM ARMITAGE MOREHOUSE, secretary of The Young Churchman Co., Milwaukee, Wis., and head of the local retail book department of their business, died on July 29, after an illness of but two weeks, from typhoid fever. Mr. Morehouse was in his twenty-ninth year, and had grown up in the business, of which his father, Linden H. Morehouse, is president.

JOHN ROSE FICKLEN, professor of history and political science at Tulane University, died at Lake Chautauqua on August 4. Professor Ficklen was born in Falmouth, Va., December 14, 1858. He was well known as a lecturer on historical topics, and was the author of "A History of Louisiana," written in collaboration with Grace Elizabeth King (1892); "An Outline History of Greece" (1894), and "The Civil Government of Louisiana" (1901).

ALBERT W. LOVERING, one of the oldest retail booksellers in the United States, died on August 3, at the Chapin Home, in New York City. Mr. Lovering was born in Exeter, N. H., June 23, 1823, and early established himself in the book business in his native place. In connection with his bookstore he maintained a bookbinding establishment which was patronized by customers in Newburyport, Salem and other neighboring cities. Early in the fifties he caught the "Western" fever, and, giving up his business, tried his fortunes in several of the Western States. After two years he settled in Boston, opening up a bookstore in the rear of the archway, under the Marlboro Hotel on Washington Street, between Winter and Bromfield Streets. Mr. Lovering succeeded in building up quite a large business and counted among his customers the best-known people in town, and men of note, such as Emerson, Whittier, Longfellow, and others equally famous in literature. Whittier referred to him in one of his poems. In 1874, owing to Mr. Lovering's good nature in endorsing commercial paper for some of his friends who subsequently failed, and becoming involved in a "prize" scheme, he was obliged to go through bankruptcy. In 1879, when the Marlboro Hotel was torn down, Mr. Lovering removed his business to 336 Washington Street, where misfortune again overtook him. In 1880 he came to New York and for a time carried on a retail bookstore for R. Worthington. Later he opened up a store on his own account at 785 Broadway, between Ninth and Tenth Streets. Some years after he removed his business further up Broadway, just above Twelfth Street. There he sold out to Samuel Rains in 1903, and shortly after the stock was absorbed by Leary's, of Philadelphia. Again he established himself in the book business on Twenty-sixth Street, near Broadway, and later at 128 West Twenty-third Street, which, in 1905, he sold to the City Bookstore, and retired to the Chapin Home for Aged and Infirm. Mr. Lovering through adversity as well as in prosperity always had a host of good friends who stood by him till the end.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ASHLAND, ORE.—Heberlie & Dubois, booksellers, have purchased the business of H. L. Sayles.

BOSTON, MASS.—After September 1 "The Archway Bookstore" will make way for the march of improvement on Washington Street, and De Wolfe Fiske & Co. will open up their headquarters at 20 Franklin Street.

COLUMBUS, IND.—George E. Ellis, bookseller, has been succeeded by Beatty & Bloch.

DALLAS TEX.—The Southern School Book Company has been incorporated by E. S. Hughes, M. P. Exline and Edmund Burke.

GILROY, CAL.—F. W. Blake, bookseller, died last month.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Owing to the death of William A. Morehouse, the manager of the retail book department of The Young Churchman Co., it has been decided to dispose of this branch of the business, because the other members of the firm are unable to give it sufficient attention. An excellent opportunity is thus offered to a man with proper amount of capital and a knowledge of this class of trade.

NEBRASKA CITY, NEB.—H. R. Young & Co., bookseller sold out to S. O. Meyers.

NEW YORK CITY.—A special meeting of the stockholders of the Robert Appleton Company was held on August 9 to vote upon a proposition to increase the capital stock from $300,000 to $500,000, $100,000 to be common stock and $400,000 preferred stock, the latter to be entitled to 6 per cent. cumulative dividends.

RICHMOND, VA.—Edward S. Evans, formerly assistant State librarian, has resigned to take a position with the Bell Book and Stationery Company of this city.

RICHMOND, VA.—The Virginia School Supply Company has been incorporated by Preston Belvin, H. D. Thatcher, and E. R. Belvin. The company will manufacture and deal in school books, supplies and furniture.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Lovick Bros. have succeeded to the book business of Harley J. Hill.

TACOMA, WASH.—The bookstore of Theodore & Little, at 905 Pacific Avenue, was entirely destroyed by fire on June 28, and the members of the firm have associated themselves with the Central News Company.

WEISER, IDAHO.—L. S. Cool, bookseller, has been succeeded by W. P. Childers.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE DIAL COMPANY are making special efforts this fall to bring their attractive enclosure catalogue to the attention of the retail booktrade. "The Monthly List of the Latest Books," as the catalogue is called, slips easily into a No. 6 envelope, and contains in reading matter form brief "Notes and News in the World of Books," and in list form, arranged under subjects, annotated titles of the important books of the month. The catalogue has a colored cover, on which space is left for the bookseller's individual imprint. In the hands of a live bookseller this little help ought to be effective in creating trade.

EARLY in 1908 a bibliography is likely to be brought out under the title "Writings on American History, 1906," which will cover books, pamphlets and articles upon the subject having any value, on substantially the same plan as "Writings on American History, 1903," edited by Professor A. C. McLaughlin and published in 1905 by the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The series not having been continued by that institution, the present endeavor rests for pecuniary support upon a group of historical societies and interested individuals, who have guaranteed for five years a sum sufficient to produce an annual volume. It is intended that the volumes for 1907 and subsequent years shall be issued as soon as possible after the termination of the calendar year. The gap represented by productions of the years 1904 and 1905 is left to be filled later.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have in preparation an important book on Japan, entitled "The Japanese Nation in Evolution," by Dr. William E. Griffis, who is peculiarly fitted for his subject, as he witnessed many of the great inner events and changes which he describes. After Perry gained entrance to the "Hermit Kingdom," Dr. Griffis was one of the earliest educators sent from America, since which time he has enjoyed the friendship of the Mikado and other leading Japanese.

D. APPLETON & Co. will bring out on the 23d inst. Robert W. Chambers's new novel, "The Younger Set," which will be completed as a serial in the September issue of Appleton's Magazine. It will be illustrated by Wilmshurst. They will publish in October a new and profusely illustrated holiday edition of Gilbert White's "Natural History of Selborne," with an introduction by John Burroughs. The illustrations are from photographs taken in and around Selborne. Another new and handsome edition of an old favorite, to be published at the same time with the "Selborne," is planned for Mrs. Browning's "Lady Geraldine's Courtship," with illustrations by G. C. Wilmshurst, and decorations by Franklin Booth.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will add to their attractive series, The Roses of Saint Elizabeth, a volume entitled "Carlotta," a story of the San Gabriel Mission, by Frances Margaret Fox, which deals with the famous old Mission in the days when lower California—before the country became a part of the United States—was really a part of old Spain as far as the people and their life were concerned. A new departure in books for young people is Theodore Roberts's "The Red Feathers," a story of adventure for boys, laid in Newfoundland in the mythical Stone Age. Indians, magicians and giants are the heroes, and so real are their struggles and encounters that the reader quite believes in their one-time existence. The story is fascinating and the illustrations by Charles Livingston Bull give it an added attractiveness.

THE BLOCH PUBLISHING Co., ("The Jewish Book Concern,") 738 Broadway, New York, have prepared for the Jewish New Year, (September 8,) a number of new and attractive cards and novelties, descriptive price lists and samples of which will be sent on application. They are the American agents for "Tales and Maxims from the Midrash," by the Rev. Samuel Rapaport, late Rabbi of Port Elizabeth, and Eastern District of Cape Colony. Rapaport gives a brief account of the character and history of the Midrash, (a running commentary on the Old Testament, in which the authors have incorporated a large number of noble thoughts and pleasant or curious stories,) which is followed by four chapters of Midrashic anecdotes, and selections arranged under the heads of the respective Biblical books of the Midrash from which they are extracted.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

NOTE In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

NOTE Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

The Lone Star

By EUGENE P. LYLE, JR.

Author of "The Missourian"

THE story of "Neutral Ground," and Texas with its hobgoblin-dream of dare-devils, has never before been told as Mr. Lyle has told it in "The Lone Star." He has turned Sam Houston and Bowie into picture characters without losing or misplacing historical facts, in a way to make a man burn his light all night, or till he has finished the tale. It is an epic of the Southwest—the Iliad of Texas.

CLEM

By EDNA KENTON

"She might have been the primeval Woman, walking untrodden sands, pressing the springing earth when the world was young — she was so nobly unashamed and so purely human. The very atoms of her might have been scraped up from virgin earth, from sea-born clay just washed to shore; and a Rodin hand might have modeled her."

Here is a story of a girl of unusual beauty, and big proportions, and splendid spirit, honest, simple, straight-forward, who, through no fault of hers, was beyond the pale of conventionality. But she showed unsuspected strength and fine courage when a bitter test came; and in the end she came royally and beautifully into her own.

The story of a battle-royal between Mrs. Grundy and the woman who dared to be herself.

SATAN SANDERSON

The career of the Rev. Harry Sanderson, known as "Satan" in his college days, who sowed the wind to reap the whirlwind and won at last through strangest penance the bright prize of love, seizes the reader in the strait grip of its feverish interest. Miss Rives has outdone herself in the invention of a love story that rings with lyric feeling and touches every fiber of the heart with strength and beauty.

"THE BEST SELLER"

THE STORY OF ITS SUCCESS

reads like a bit of fiction. The Century Co. issued it in April, 1906, and the sale during the first month was only 800 copies. It moved slowly for six months, but in November, 1906, it took a start, and in December three editions were needed to supply the demand. Since then the sale has gone on increasing until it has become not unusual for the publishers to sell 1000 and 2000 copies a day. Within a year of issue eleven printings were needed, and the fifteenth printing is now being sold—the sixteenth on the press.

THE BOOK TELLS

the absorbing story of a young woman's life in a series of remarkably clever letters. Through it all runs a tender love story. There is a "Jack" at home, and while "the lady" tries not to think of him, yet it is evident that he is uppermost in her thoughts. "It's all right to love humanity," she reflects sometimes, "but I was born a specialist."

NOTES IN SEASON.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have now ready Eugene P. Lyle's "The Lone Star" and the eagerly awaited "Memoirs of Adelaide Ristori," both fully described in our last issue.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. report that the limited edition of "Some Unpublished Correspondence of David Garrick," edited by Professor George P. Baker, is now ready for delivery.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish this fall a new novel by Anne Douglas Sedgwick, a story of American life—with a most unusual and compelling plot, it is said—the scenes laid in Boston, New York and the Vermont hills.

BOBBS-MERRILL Co. have just issued "The Empire Builders," by Francis Lynde, author of "The Grafters," with pictures by Hambidge. The author has studied present conditions well and he also has literary experience to help him present his topic in interesting manner in the form of fiction.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have just ready a new book by Ellen Velvin, entitled "Wild Animal Celebrities," written from a point of view unfamiliar to the general reader. Like Miss Velvin's earlier book, "Behind the Scenes with Wild Animals," this book is the result of a study of wild animals in the great zoological gardens of Europe and America.

MCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have in preparation "Daughters of the Little Grey House," by Marion Ames Taggart, which is a sequel to "The Little Grey House." They have also in preparation a work entitled "The Curse of the Romanoffs," a study of the reign of Paul I. and Alexander I., 1796-1825, by Dr. Angelo S. Rappaport.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have in preparation the third volume of the Old Deerfield Series of stories for young people, by Mary P. Wells Smith. It will be entitled "Boys of the Border," and will deal with the leading events of the French and Indian War from 1745 to 1755, especially the incidents connected with the line of forts along the northwestern Massachusetts border and up the Connecticut to the north.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, (The Bodley Head,) have just published a dramatic poem by Francis Coultts on the Arthurian legend under the title "King Arthur." Mr. Coultts has also rearranged the dialogue portions of the Book of Job, and this appears under the title "The Heresy of Job." A short illustrated biography of W. S. Gilbert, the famous English composer of comic opera, is contributed to the Stars of the Stage series, issued by the same house.

DODGE PUBLISHING Co. have grouped their many books of humor in this issue and they make a goodly showing. Nothing helps our several fortunes like a good laugh. It is safe to recommend for cheering effects: "It is to laugh," by Henry Kieffer; "Wisdom for the Wise," by Lorenzo Sosso; "Cosy Corner Confidences," by Walter Pulitzer; its companion volume, "A Cynic's Meditations," by same author, and any of the others of these tempting "helps" for cheerfulness.

B. W. DODGE & Co. will bring out next month a clever novel entitled "Feminine Finance," by Frances Crouch, which deals with the efforts of two women, friends, of extraordinarily-contrasted and well-drawn characters, to help another woman out of a difficulty, the doing of which requires money. Cousin Jim, a bachelor cousin of the woman to be helped, and from whom these women try to get the money, plays the star part. Among their early fall books are "The First Secretary," a novel, by Demetra and Kenneth Brown; "A Bird Cage," verses by Wallace Irwin, with drawings by Edna Morse; "The Noble Company of Adventurers," by Rufus Rockwell Wilson; and "Scars of the Southern Seas," by George Bronson Howard.

Balzac, Honoré de. Le Colonel Chabert; ed. by H. W. Preston. N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,) 1907. 15+95 p. D. (Oxford modern French ser.; ed. by Leon Delbos.) cl., 40 c.

Eight pages of introduction by the editor give a few biographical facts regarding Balzac and then point out that "Le Colonel Chabert," written in 1832, tells the same story as "Enoch Arden" of a husband, thought dead, returning to find his wife married. Both husbands withdraw their claim, but the manner and motive of the renunciation is typically English in the one case and characteristically French in the other.

The word "eugenics," meaning the science which treats of improvements and culture of race, especially the human race, through improved conditions in the relation of the sexes, was coined and used by the author in his book "Human faculty," published in 1883. In this lecture he dwells upon the need of full information about results, even to minds unfitted to cope with the details of the mathematical processes. He claims every average mind can be made to understand the importance of these results, and he maps out five lessons in which instruction might be made of working use for such minds.

versity Press, (Amer. Branch.) 1907. 35+75 p. D. cl., 40 c.

Editor is a graduate of Trinity College, Oxford. The system adopted in the Notes is that mere references are given where Shakespeare appears to have borrowed subject-matter only and full quotations where he appears to have followed North's actual language. An Index contains a list of references to the play. The spelling has been modernized throughout.

Pratt, Ambrose. The counterstroke. N. Y., R. F. Fenno & Co., [1907.] 320 p. front. D. cl., *$1 net.

A story of intrigue of various parties in Russia and of the downfall of Nihilism. The plot is involved. The author of "Franks, duellist," puts his characters in many dangerous situations, but courage and love conquer all opposition. English, German and Russian ambassadors meet at the beginning in London, then often in other cities. Author holds strong opinions on the "Russian question."

Ragg, Lonsdale and Laura, eds. and trs. The gospel of Barnabas; ed. and tr. from the Italian ms. in the Imperial Library at Vienna. N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch.) 1907. 81+500 p. facs., O. cl., $5.25.

Rev. Lonsdale Ragg, British Chaplain at Venice, is editor of "Second book of Samuel" in "The Books of the Bible," "Christian evidences" in "Oxford Church text-books," "Aspects of the Atonement." Appended to the introduction are passages bearing on the Barnabas controversy from the 18th century writers. The index gives Scripture references. Where the text follows the Bible exactly the translators have adopted the language of the Revised Version.

Rives, Hallie Erminie. Satan Sanderson; with il. by A. B. Wenzell. Indianapolis, Ind., Bobbs-Merrill Co., [1907.] c. 400 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

"Satan" Sanderson was the college nick-name of a wild fellow, who afterwards became an Episcopal clergyman in a Western town. The plot turns upon his strong resemblance to a fellow student who did not reform but kept on his reckless life. The latter married his father's ward, but his sins found him out and he was not allowed to take her from his father's home. All through the story the reformed and the unrepentant sinner are constantly taken for each other under the most startling conditions.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LRYPOLDT.

AUGUST 17, 1907.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

JUDGE DOWLING'S DECISION IN THE MACY CASE.

WHAT was printed in an editorial note in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of August 10 as a synopsis of the decision of Judge Dowling in the case of Macy vs. American Publishers' Association proves to be the full text of the decision itself. It is an application of previous decisions and obiter dicta to the pending case, and, as indicated in our editorial note, it is as important for what it does not say as for what it does say.

The decision, as stated, applies only to non-copyright books, but decides that in preventing Macy & Co. from obtaining non-copyright books the American Publishers' Association acted in restraint of trade contrary to the laws of the State of New York, and that the Macy Co. is entitled to damages therefor as proved before a referee. It is quite possible that the case may be appealed to the Court of Appeals, but as the Supreme Court justice applies the decision of Chief Justice Parker, of the highest court, the question is only whether Judge Dowling properly interpreted the application of the Chief Justice's opinion. It was an unfortunate mistake of the American Publishers' Association, as we have more than once pointed out, that it undertook to deal at all with non-copyright books.

The decision is one of several tending to clarify the law on the general subject involved, though it is quite possible that the legal status may not be fully settled until some case involving all the questions concerned reaches the Supreme Court of the United States on a question of copyright law. The pith of the matter, as we have before said, is that the proprietor of a copyright book is entitled to obtain such price as he may decide to ask for his product. He may take all reasonable steps to prevent the sale of his book at a lower price, and the courts have gone far to protect him in this right. But he may not enter into a combination for this purpose which transgresses the law of conspiracy; that is, a number of publishers may not combine to punish an individual for cutting prices on a copyright book issued by another party or by one of their own number without danger of being considered members of a conspiracy. Besides this, and on different grounds, a combination of publishers, or even an individual publisher, must in New York and other States keep within the State laws respecting restraint of trade. This means practically that where there are competing editions or goods unprotected by copyright or patent law, a manufacturer seeking to protect his prices must be careful to do so only by direct means and not by any sort of combination, coercion or boycott. He can still refuse to sell his own property except under certain conditions, but the law does not go far in protecting prices of such commodities beyond the first seller.

The American Publishers' Association, though it must pay the penalty of its mistake in the present case, has now put itself in a strong position by confining itself to copyright books and by freeing its members from any question of combination or conspiracy by making its former agreement simply the basis of recommendation to individual members. While it is a fact that the trend of recent decisions was not foreseen and safeguarded against, it must nevertheless be said that much has been accomplished, both positively and negatively, and that the decisions both pro and contra in clearing the air have left booktrade reform in a pretty satisfactory condition.

POSTAL MATTERS.

LIMIT OF WEIGHT CONTENTS OF MAIL SACKS.

THE attention of publishers, newsdealers, news agents and others is invited to the following extract from the postal laws and regulations, and to the following order issued by the Post Office Department, and they are informed that the requirements set forth therein must be invariably observed in preparing matter for mailing:

"Not more than 150 pounds of mail matter must be placed in a sack which is to be despatched as closed mail or to a railway post office or post offices for distribution.

"Postmasters will notify publishers, newsdealers, and others shipping large quantities of matter by mail of this requirement."

"Division Superintendents of Railway Mail Service and Postmasters are instructed to notify their employees that not more than 150 pounds of mail matter must be placed in a sack which is to be despatched as closed mail or to a railway post office or post offices for distribution. These officers will also kindly notify publishers, newsdealers and others shipping large quantities of matter by mail of the nature of these instructions and request their co-operation in relieving those who handle mail of this character in bulk from the hardship and physical exhaustion that result from the lifting of sacks containing over 150 pounds of mail matter."

COMMUNICATIONS.

BOOKS FOR CLERKS' USE.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

WE have had a great difficulty in the past to get clerks in our "Recent Fiction" department to read the reviews of forthcoming books—something which, in our estimation, is very important to have done, in the interest of publisher and dealer alike.

We find, however, that clerks are willing to read the book, if not the review. In this connection we find that the book loaned them is returned in nearly every instance soiled and unfit for sale.

We would suggest to the publisher, as a happy medium, to have sent the retailer from the binder gathered and sewed, but unbound, copies of their forthcoming fall fiction which they hope to see in the list of the "six best."

If thought necessary, the copies could be stamped "Sample" or "Not to be sold."

We are firmly convinced that this suggestion, if carried out, would not only relieve the retailer of a great deal of trouble, but would materially increase the sales for retailer and publisher.

R. E. SHERWOOD.

144 FULTON ST., NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 8, 1907.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ST. GEORGE KEMPSON, editor and proprietor of The New York Insurance Journal, died at St. Vincent's Hospital, Monday, August 12, following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Kempson was born at Fort Erie, Canada, and was the son of Dr. P. Tertius Kempson, of the Royal College of Physicians, London, and a grandson of Sir Peter Kempson, of Birmingham, England. He was educated in Buffalo and began his career as a newspaper correspondent in 1874. He was a member of many clubs and benevolent organizations, among them the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Royal Arcanum and the American Trade Press Association. He was a trustee of the New York Press Club and a member of the Chicago Press Club and the Thirteen Club. He married Mrs. Grace Duffie Boylan, the well-known journalist, in 1905.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

AN American editorial board, consisting of twelve well-known scholars, has been established to co-operate with the British editors of the Hibbert Journal.

THE August number of The New Album of Modes, (Brentano's, New York,) has an interesting illustrated article on "Mrs. Fitzherbert and Some Unrecorded Incidents," by J. F. Meehan, of Bath, Eng.

The Independent of August 15 has a most interesting article on the Smithsonian Institution written by Dr. Cyrus Adler, who is Assistant Secretary in charge of the library and the Bureau of National Exchanges.

The Atlantic Monthly for September has an article by Brander Matthews on "Fenimore Cooper," one on "Shelley," by Arthur Symons, and one on "Elizabethan Psychology," by Edward Dowden. M. A. De Wolfe Howe contributes his view of "Personality in Journalism," and Anna A. Rogers tells "Why American Marriages Fail."

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE first volume of what should be a useful annual publication, "L'Almanach des Lettres Françaises," has just appeared in Paris. It contains a bibliography of the more important books published in 1906, articles on French fiction, poetry, history, criticism and drama, and information about the various literary societies, such as the Academy, the Goncourt Academy and the Société des Gens de Lettres. M. Jules Bertaut, who writes on fiction, says that the historical novel is practically dead, the psychological novel moribund and that the novel of passion and the novel of manners seem to promise best. M. Maurice Leblond seems not very sanguine of the future of poetry. The account given of history is more encouraging. M. Léon Bazalgette declares M. Aulard's work on the history of the Revolution to be equal, if not superior, to the best of Quinet and Michelet. The same author treats of criticism, and among the books which he says deserve special mention are two dealing with English literature. "La Poésie Anglaise au XIXe Siècle" and the "Pierres d'Oxford," by M. Georges Grappe, are, he declares, quite perfect and certain to become classics.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—Brentano's announce their removal during September to Fifth Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street, Madison Square, one block from Broadway.

NEW YORK CITY.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court, has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to William H. Young, 63 Barclay Street; liabilities, $13,902.

OSWEGO, KAN.—A. E. Townsend has succeeded to the book business of E. M. Daniels & Co.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The Holmes Company request that all correspondence be addressed to their new main store, 1158 Market Street. They have leased a large store, 20 x 113 feet, in a modern fireproof building, for a term of ten years. They are erecting hanging balconies all around the store, and will have a special room at the rear of the store, devoting it exclusively to scarce books, Americana, first editions, etc. The special feature of the store will be that every shelf will be within the reach of any one without the inconvenience of having to use a ladder.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Brentano's, who removed nearly three years ago from their well-known location on Pennsylvania Avenue, where they had been for nearly a quarter of a century, to the corner of F and Thirteenth Streets, have made arrangements to occupy the large building at the corner of F and Twelfth Streets, where they will have a store three times larger than their present location. They expect to move about October 15.

WHEELING, W. VA.—A new stationery and bookstore will shortly be established here by Joseph Trape. The new store will make a specialty of foreign books, and as there is no such store in the city at present it is expected that the stock will go fast.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY announces that the price of their fine edition of "Beautiful Joe," with illustrations by Charles Copeland, to be published on September 1, has been changed from $1.50 to $1.25 regular.

THOMAS WHITTAKER, INC., has just brought out "The Call of the Father," by the Right Rev. A. F. W. Ingram, Lord Bishop of London. It consists of sermons preached at a progressive mission in East London, and has been put out both in a regular and in a limited popular form.

THE trade will note that the Standard Arithmetics, Readers and the Pronouncing Spellers, heretofore published by the Standard School Book Company and so credited in our Educational List for 1907, have been bought by the American Book Company. The publisher's abbreviation should be changed in the List to Am.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY has just ready an American edition of "2835 Mayfair," by Frank Richardson, who is making his reputation by his wit. The newspapers in London have quoted him to such an extent that his name has become as well known at the clubs and in smart society as at the libraries. The novel of Frankfort Moore, now nearly ready, bears the title "The Marriage Lease."

AMONG the Century Co.'s educational issues this fall will be a new and revised edition of Dr. Alexander Smith's "Laboratory Outlines of General Chemistry," prepared in collaboration with Dr. William J. Hale, of the University of Michigan. The earlier editions have been extensively rewritten, and in many cases simplified, and tables of solubility have been added and the method of using them indicated by questions.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have become the publishers of the Gildersleeve-Lodge Latin Series, edited by Professor Basil L. Gildersleeve, of Johns Hopkins University, one of the foremost classical scholars in this country, and Professor Gonzalez Lodge, of Columbia University, who, in addition to his superior classical training, has had extraordinary opportunities and experience in his connection with the Teachers College of New York City.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY announce that the contest for the choice of a title for the new Little Colonel book closed August 1. Thousands of letters were received from children all over the United States, who are taking an interest in the matter, and many clever and suitable titles have been presented. The one finally selected is "The Little Colonel's Knight Comes Riding." The names of the fortunate prize winners will be announced very shortly.

JAMES POTT & Co. announce for September publication the following books of travel and biography: "Madame Lafayette and Her Family," by M. MacDermott Crawford; "To-Day in Palestine;" "Sunny Days in Italy;" "Famous Women of Two Reigns," by Mary

Craven, an account of some of the fair women of the Stuart and Georgian times; "Madame De Staël and Her Lovers," by Francis Gribble, author of "Lake Geneva and Its Literary Landmarks;" "Norway and Its Fiords;" "Scotland of To-Day," and a new novel in the Cathedral Series on "Northern Italy."

MACMILLAN Co. will issue an important book this fall in "The Seven Ages of Washington," by Owen Wister. In this new work Mr. Wister has brought all his skill as a writer to bear on the task of condensing within the smallest reasonable space a comprehensive estimate of Washington's life, character and significance. Another interesting book of a biographical nature promised by this firm will be a collection of the "Letters of Dean Hole," one of the wittiest as well as the most learned of English clerics during the latter part of the last century.

VICTOR HUGO PALTSITS, the new State historian, Albany, N. Y., is desirous of procuring the following publications of his department, issued by his predecessor, which are out of print and needed to make up complete sets. Libraries or individuals having duplicates to spare are requested to communicate with him, in order that he may arrange for their transmission and acknowledgment. Only perfect copies are desired, and only the volumes specified: Colonial Series, vol. I. (1896); Clinton Papers, vols. I. (1899), II. (1900), III. (1900); v. (1901); Tompkins Papers, vol. I. (1898); Ecclesiastical Records, vols. I. and II. (1901); New York and War with Spain (1903).

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. are again going through the experience of fighting a labor union, the Pressfeeders' Union in New York having demanded that, though mechanical pressfeeding machines have been installed in their plant, as many men as formerly shall be employed. The publishers have declared an open shop, and are at present somewhat hampered. Letters of explanation to advertising patrons have brought more than a hundred communications of encouragement, stating willingness to bear with whatever delay may be caused so long as the fight is kept up. Last year, with a number of other firms, Doubleday, Page & Co. fought out a compositors' strike and succeeded in establishing the open shop upstairs. They have withdrawn from the Typothetæ in order not to involve other firms in this struggle.

R. F. FENNO & Co. have just ready "The Counterstroke," by Ambrose Pratt, which deals with Nihilism and its machinations: a Library edition of Kipling's works in ten volumes, including "The Phantom Rickshaw," "Plain Tales from the Hills," "The Light That Failed," "Soldiers Three," "Mine Own People," "In Black and White and the Gadsbys," "Letters of Marque," "Wee Willie Winkie and American Notes," "Ballads, Poems and Other Verses," and "Under the Deodars and The City of Dreadful Night;" also, a popular cloth edition of E. Phillips Oppenheim's story, "The Peer and the Woman." They will bring out in September "The Spotter," a story of the early days in the oil regions, by W. W. Canfield; "The Mistress of Bonaventura," a story of the Canadian Northwest; also, "Evelyn Van Courtland," a story by William Henry Carson, author of "Hester Blair."

JOHN W. LUCE & Co. are to publish the American edition of H. L. Mencken's "Friedrich Nietzsche." The work consists of a biography; an exposition of the most striking parts of Nietzsche's philosophy; chapters on his destructive criticism of government, law, manners, marriage, and education; discussion of his relations with Wagner and others, and essays on his forerunners, his critics and their criticism. The book has a bibliography and index. They have in press a small puzzle novel of the same class as "All by Wire." Its title is "Checkmated," and its form that of a checkbook, from which one reads the story of John Stuyvesant Snowden's disposition of the fortune left him by Aunt Barbara Stuyvesant, who "knew how to live and when to die." Such other information as is needed to complete the chain of incident is derived from scraps of newspaper, and the whole is amusingly illustrated.

McLOUGHLIN BROTHERS announce "The Story of a Fight from Concord Bridge to a Field at Yorktown," by Hugh Lloyd, (with a colored frontispiece and ninety half-tones,) which is American history for children built on the plan of a story, but is not historical fiction in any sense; "Stories of the Blue and the Gray," three volumes of historical stories for young readers, founded on fact, by Frank H. Sweet, with colored illustrations; "The Story of General Francis Marion," by Percy K. Fitzhugh, another volume in their successful Young Folks' Colonial Library, which has been highly praised by the press and the public; "The Wonderful Story of Teddy the Bear," written and illustrated, in colors, by Sarah Noble Ives, a beautiful story told for young people, containing a wholesome lesson, which promises to make a "hit;" also, "Judy, Pioneer Girl," a story of an American girl of the early days, and "Three Boys and Their Ambition," a story of old American boys for American boys of our day, both by Elizabeth Preston, forming two new volumes in their American Boys' and Girls' Library.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce for the latter part of the month a collection of stories by Eden Phillpotts, entitled "The Folk Afield." Those who are unacquainted with Mr. Phillpotts's talent in this direction have a rare treat in store. In these stories the author seems perfectly at home in the presentation of the humble folk of a dozen nationalities, and describes, as if he were painting familiar scenes before his own door, settings in lands the most remote from each other, and with characteristics the most diverse. At about the same time or early in September they will publish "Montaigne's Essays" in their French Classics for English Readers. This volume will contain what is best of the writer who may be described as the inventor of the essay. Early in September they will bring out "The Ghosts of Piccadilly," by G. S. Street, memories of the procession that has passed endlessly up the historic hill; two new Ariel Booklets—"The Purloined Letter," by Poe, originally published by Wiley & Putnam in 1845, and de Maistre's "A Journey Around My Room;" also, "Love Affairs of Literary Men," a new book by Miss Myrtle Reed, in which she briefly retells the stories of the loves of a group of writers who are assured, all of them, of immortal places in English literature. The title of A. C. Benson's latest book, to be ready probably at the end of September, has been changed from "The Pillar of Cloud" to "The Altar Fire." The book was originally announced as "From an Artist's Diary."

DUFFIELD & Co. have in preparation a work on "Painters and Sculptors," by Kenyon Cox, giving in a series of appreciations of individual masters a survey of the subject since the sixteenth century; "Houses for Town and Country," by William Herbert, suggestions for home builders collected from the work of the foremost architects in this country; "Historic Churches of America," by Mrs. N. U. Wallington, with an introduction by the Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale and many illustrations; "Plays of Our Forefathers," by Professor Charles M. Gayley, of the University of California; "Poems of Edgar Allan Poe," edited by Edmund Clarence Stedman and George E. Woodberry; "House Health," by Dr. Norman Bridge; "Gypsy Verses," by Helen Hay Whitney; "Familiar Faces," a new book of comic verse by Harry Graham, author of "Misrepresentative Men;" also, a new and specially illustrated Vermont edition of Miss Theodora Peck's successful novel, "Hester of the Grants." For young people they will have "The Bed-Time Book," with verses by Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney and pictures, in color, by Jessie Willcox Smith; Kate Dickinson Sweetser's "Boys and Girls from Thackeray;" Paul Harboe's "Child's Biography of Hans Christian Andersen;" Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale's "Stories from the Old Testament for Children," with pictures in color by Roscoe Shrader and Herbert Moore, two promising young pupils of Howard Pyle; also, "Childhood," by Millicent and Githa Sowerby, a volume of verses and pictures in color by two sisters whose work has attracted much attention in England.

WILLIAM J. HAY, at John Knox's House, on High Street in Edinburgh, has just completed the second series of the interesting and valuable work entitled "Old Houses in Edinburgh." The series consists of twenty-seven plates, with descriptive text, as follows: (1) "Baird's Close, looking South," with a glimpse of the Castle; (2) "Baird's Close, looking North," noted for the famous upheaval known in history as "The Proteus Mob;" (3) "St. Cuthbert's Close, West Port;" (4) "West Port from High Riggs;" (5) "The Bowfoot, Grassmarket;" (6) "Court at the Bowfoot," the most picturesque roadway in Edinburgh—perhaps in Europe; (7) "Old Bowhead, Lawnmarket," of interest to the booktrade because it was in one of the old timber-fronted houses at the corner of the West Bow that the world-famed publishing house of Thomas Nelson & Sons had its origin; (8) "Somerville's Land, Lawnmarket;" (9) "Milne's Court, West Side," popularly called Mary of Guise's Palace; (10) "Milne's Court, Lawnmarket;" (11) "Gladstone's Land, Lawnmarket," showing the building said to have been owned by an ancestor of W. E. Gladstone, which stands nearly opposite the tenement in which Robert Burns found lodgings on his arrival in Edinburgh in 1786; (12) "Lady Stair's Close, Lawnmarket," (the house which gives it its name having recently been presented to the Town Council of Edinburgh by Lord Rosebery,) near which was the engraving and printing establishment of James Johnson, to whose Musical Museum Burns contributed so frequently; (13) "Brodie's Court, Lawnmarket," behind which still survives the hall of the Roman Eagle, a famous Masonic lodge of the 18th century; (14) "House of Adam Bothwell, Bishop of Orkney," one of the oldest and most interesting houses that have survived; (15) "Advocate's Close, High Street;" (16) "Carrubber's Close, from the North," where Allan Ramsay built one of the earlier Edinburgh theatres, and where James Ballantine, glass-stainer and poet, began his business; (17) "Carrubber's Close, from the South," which about the time of the Revolution, 1688-90, became the haunt and rallying-ground for the non-juring Episcopal clergy and Jacobite lairds, and where they erected their first modest chapel dedicated to St. Paul; (18) "Morrison's Close, High Street;" (19) "Trunk Close, from the South," where Sir Robert Kerr, an accomplished poet and courtier, lived in the reigns of James VI. and Charles I.; (20) "Trunk Close, from the North," an opening on the north side of High Street immediately west of John Knox's house; (21, 22) "John Knox's House, Netherbow" and a view from the rear, where John Knox spent the last three months of his life until his death on November 24, 1572; (23, 24) "Site of St. Mary of Placentia," two views of this famous nunnery from above and from below; (25) "Chessel's Court, Canon-gate," which has interesting associations in its relation to the career of the notorious Deacon Brodie; (26) "Canongate Tolbooth," the quaint and interesting building standing midway between Netherbow and Holyrood, which was not, as generally supposed, simply a public prison, but the building where public dues were collected; also, (27). "The White Horse Close, Canon-gate," associated, according to tradition, with a famous white palfrey belonging to Queen Mary, which was the trysting-place whence the Scot's nobles were to start on their projected but abortive expedition to Berwick to hold conference with Charles I. in 1639. The pictures are exquisitely drawn, on the spot, by Bruce J. Home, and, with two exceptions, depict the buildings as actually seen at the time. The two folio volumes, containing 54 plates, are sold at 24s. net. The work appeals strongly to the antiquarian and student of history as well as to those who may visit "Auld Reekie."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

The Lone Star

By EUGENE P. LYLE, JR.*Author of
"The Missourian"

The story of Texas, with all its blinding color, its breathless action, with its Sam Houston, its Col. Bowie, its "greasers," Indians, Spanish Palaces, dancing, and pillage—a romance of history so fascinating that the reader will never get away from the facts. It is one of the most gallant romances of the day, and a really big story.

Memoirs of Adelaide Ristori

Translated by G. MANTELLINI

In this story of her life Madame Ristori has intimately discussed Legonvé, Gautier, Dumas, Scribe, and fifty others whose names are linked with brilliant fame. She has ranged through the incidents of a life rich with triumphs, in a spirit of simplicity and with the eagerness of a little child; while her splendid analysis of the great parts played by her is masterly and absorbing.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual 1907

"The man who first spoke of the 'Publishers' Trade List Annual' as the 'Bible of the book trade' uttered a fitting phrase but used a simile that is open to at least one criticism. If the holy book was as often consulted by the public in proportion as the Trade List is by the bookseller the cry that it is a 'neglected book' would never be heard, for in every shop and in every public library this familiar 'jumbo' in pebbled green is in constant daily use."

—Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer

"No bookseller, even the humblest, if he knows his business, can afford to be without the 'Publishers' Trade List Annual,' often spoken of as 'the big catalogue book,' which contains the price lists of all the publishers of importance in the country."—The Newsdealer.

"It sometimes happens, we know, that a dealer in a fit of misdirected economy will try to get along with his last year's Annual, but the experiment soon becomes an aggravation, for he quickly finds out that he cannot afford to have his bibliographical equipment a whole year behind hand."

—The Publisher and Retailer

Two Points to Publishers

PUBLISHERS of forthcoming books to be issued during the Fall season of 1907 are reminded that the Fall Announcement Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, to be issued under date of September 28, is in many respects one of the most important issues of the year. Booksellers generally find it invaluable in making up their holiday orders and for descriptive selections for their own catalogues and circulars. Librarians also use it extensively in making up their purchase lists for the new season. Note then:

1st. That the dictionary reference list of new books to be issued will be made up as complete as possible from material procurable between now and September 10. It is therefore very important for all publishers to send in early lists in duplicate of their announcements, giving as much data as practicable of all forthcoming works.

2nd. That the number is especially valuable for advertising, since an ad. supplements the reference list and keeps your descriptive announcement immediately before the buyer during the period he is planning for the new season.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY OFFICE

The Publishers' Weekly

Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly indexes, cumulated quarterly, news of interest concerning the book trade, lists of "Books Wanted," (an advertising feature which each subscriber can use without charge to the extent of 100 lines per year,) etc., etc. Subscription, $4.00 a year; to foreign countries, $5.00 a year.

The American Catalog, 1900-1905

Vol. I contains a five-year cumulation, Jan. 1, 1900-Jan. 1, 1905, giving in one alphabet, by author, title and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by this period. It also contains a directory of over 3800 publishers, with street addresses. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II or Supplementary volume gives the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of The Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i.e., into five alphabets 1900, 01, 02, 03, 04. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, bookdealers, and others as want the full material of The Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50. The set of two, $15.00.

Of the previous series of THE AMERICAN CATALOG, quarto size, the earlier volumes are out of print. We have remaining a few copies of the volumes 1890-95 and 1895-1900, bound in half morocco, $15.00 each.

The Annual American Catalog

Contains in one alphabet a record of all books published during 1905, under author, title, subject and series entries; also under author's name an alphabetical list of the same titles with descriptive annotations from The Publishers' Weekly, etc. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

Same catalog for 1906, $3.00.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual

Contains the latest catalogues of upward of 500 American publishers, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names, with smaller lists, fully indexed, at the end of the volume. Indispensable to every one who has any interest in the sale or purchase of books. Large 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

Index to the Publishers' Trade List Annual, 1902, out of print.

The Supplementary Index, 1903-1904, 500 pages, 8vo, cloth, with thumb index, $3.00. The alphabet in this volume is supplementary to the original Index of 1902.

The American Educational List

Contains a price-list of the text-books in use in the United States, arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject. (Published annually.) 8vo, leatherette, 50 cents.

Whitaker's Reference Catalogue of Current Literature, 1906. (London, J. Whitaker & Sons.)

(The trade price-lists of all the British publishers.) 2 vols., half leather binding, $5.00.

India Paper Edition, Red Letter Edition, Regular Editions, Sunday-School Scholars' Bibles

Nearly five years ago we were invited to become associated with those Bible publishers who are governed by an agreement to maintain high prices. We refused to do so. The wisdom of our refusal, and its importance to booksellers, becomes apparent when at this time we are able to say that our Bible business is entirely satisfactory, and Bibles of equal quality to ours cannot be purchased elsewhere at prices less than from 25 to 50 per cent. more than we ask for them. JUST THINK THIS OVER.

SEMIRAMIS

By EDWARD PEPLE

Author of "THE PRINCE CHAP"

THIS novel is one of those large performances, carefully studied in its historical and traditional backgrounds and executed with great power and romantic feeling, which appear only once each few years, and occasionally sweep the country. It is a work of great breadth and fulness, replete with the romance of the period, making the barbaric age live again in all its splendor and excess. Through all, and commanding all situations by sheer force of beauty and personality, treads Semiramis, always the Queen, the dictator, the winning, seductive woman.

NOTE ALSO THAT

THE LOST PRINCESS

By WILLIAM FREDERICK DIX

is a novel of great beauty, delightfully written, and an exceptionally good love story—this in addition to its very stirring and up-to-date quality as a novel of adventure. So this, too, is worth putting to the front a bit. Advise people to buy it and see what happens.

THE HELPMATE

Miss May Sinclair's First
Divine Fire"

Ready To-Day

$1.50

This is the very human story of a young married couple and their friends. Perhaps its keynote is struck where the husband thinks his wife "too perfect to be the helpmate of his imperfections." Whether he remains of that opinion the reader must find out. The tale makes a moving plea for tolerance and sympathy. Among the striking characters, besides the author's usual able portraits of men, are three women and a child. Tho there are tense and at times tragic situations, the story is mellowed by humor.

A uniform edition of the novels of May Sinclair is now ready (see below). THE HELPMATE will increase the steady demand for them.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have ready to-day "A Lost Leader," a fascinating story of modern life by E. Phillips Oppenheim. His "leader" has elected to stand aloof from the conflict of the political world, but his strong, distinct personality makes him a force to reckon with at the telling moment.

SAALFELD PUBLISHING Co. produce excellent reasons to persuade their customers that a good stock must be laid in of "The Outbursts of Everett True," which is full of humor and must cheer everybody. Everett True conducts a vigorous campaign against public bores and boors and inflicts punishments we all have longed to bring about.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have ready this week "To Him That Hath," by Leroy Scott, author of "The Walking Delegate;" "The Road to Happiness," by Mrs. Van Koert Schuyler, telling of the world's search for true happiness and where it can be found; "Daffodils—Narcissus and How to Grow Them," by A. M. Kirby, issued uniform with "Roses" and "Lawns;" and "Hymns Every Child Should Know," edited by Dolores Bacon. In October this house will publish a novel of Booth Tarkington's and one of some other well-known author, at net prices.

HENRY HOLT & Co. publish to-day "The Helpmate," Miss May Sinclair's first story since "The Divine Fire," which has been so widely discussed during its serial run in the pages of The Atlantic Magazine. The tale shows decided gain in the technique of fiction writing and its subject matter is of enduring psychologic and ethical value. It is a fine study of the subtle, eternal differences between the natures of man and woman, and a new proof of the old French proverb, "To understand all, is to pardon all." A uniform edition of this original writer's stories is now ready. The Holts may be congratulated on having secured "Alice-for-Short" and "The Helpmate" in one season.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD have in preparation "The Kenton Pines; or, Raymond Benson at College," by Clarence B. Burleigh, with illustrations by L. J. Bridgman, a description of life at Bowdoin College in the 80's, which completes the Raymond Benson Series; "The Great Year," by A. T. Dudley, a story of college sports at Exeter, with illustrations by Charles Copeland, forming the fifth volume of the Phillips-Exeter Series; "Four Boys in the Land of Cotton," by Everett T. Tomlinson, the second volume in Our Own Land Series, describing the life in the Southern States of the boys who went to the Yellowstone in the first volume of the series; illustrations are by H. C. Edwards; also new popular editions of J. T. Trowbridge's novels, "Cudjo's Cave," "The Three Scouts," "The Drummer Boy" and "Martin Merryvale."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will have ready in September "The Domestic Adventurers," by Josephine Daskam Bacon, recounting the domestic and sentimental delights and trials of three young women who keep house in town and country; "The Crested Seas," by James B. Connolly, a volume of good sea stories of men and ships that sail from Gloucester; "Major Vigoureux," by Quiller-Couch, a dramatic narrative of likable people and what befell them on a little island off the coast of England; and "The Harrison Fisher Book," the first collection ever published of the drawings of this artist, with an introduction by James B. Carrington. Also nearly ready are "The France of To-Day," a brilliant account of the intimate life of the French people, by Barrett Wendell; "Inquiries and Opinions," essays by Brander Matthews; Oliver Herford's "The Astonishing Adventures of a Pen and Ink Puppet;" "Nursery Rhymes from Mother Goose;" and "The Letters of Robert Louis Stevenson," in two volumes, uniform with the successful Biographical edition.

"The object of this kindergarten serial," the author tells us, "is to bring to the level of the child's mind a sense of man's social, moral and spiritual relationships. Basing the plan on the principles of co-operation and interdependence I begin with a unit, the child, and trace through him the many other units necessary, that must act and interact between nature and the various artisans of the world ere the child's livelihood be possible. Branching from these principles, as exemplified in the social life, the same laws are traced through the animal and vegetable kingdoms."

Chambers, Robert W: The younger set; il. by G. C. Wilmshurst. N. Y., Appleton, 1907. c. 7+513 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Members of New York's younger fashionable set furnish the characters. Their romances and tragedies differ only in degree from those of the worldly-wise people whose fortunes were the subject of the author's "The fighting chance." The novel is intensely modern, evolved chiefly through a witty dialogue, and set in an environment of wealth and strenuous living. The many-sided question of divorce comes up, and there is a problem of heredity-insanity this time. The wild pranks of a set of Fifth Ave. children, who are part of a beautifully described home life, are in contrast with the ruined life of their uncle, an ex-army officer, whose career is cut short through the desertion of his young wife.

Crane, Rob. Treat. The state in constitutional and international law. Baltimore, Md., Johns Hopkins Press, 1907. c. 78+12 p. O. (Johns Hopkins University studies in historical and political science.) pap., 50 c.

"The thesis that the concept of the state in constitutional law must be discriminated from the concept of the state in international law is the outcome of a line of inquiry opened by the preparation of a paper for the Political Science Seminary of the Johns Hopkins University on the topic of 'Suzerainty.' An investigation of the authorities on this subject disclosed a veritable chaos; . . . the hypothesis is here advanced that each of these two theories has an exclusive sphere of utility and fundamental validity within the field of political phenomena."—Introduction.

Both authors are professors of biology, the one in Simmons College, Boston, the other in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Houghton, Stephen Chase. The master language: an outline of the principles and rules of a proposed international auxiliary language. Rome, N. Y., Stephen Chase Houghton, 1907. c. 2+33 p. O. pap. (Not for sale.)

In the summer of 1900 the Société Philomatique de Paris inaugurated a movement looking to the devisement and adoption of an artificial language, adaptable to the requirements of international communication in general and to the needs of science in particular—a language to be used as a vehicle for conveying standard scientific works to the readers of all nations. The present pamphlet is the author's contribution to the subject, and is sent out for criticism and suggestions. The words of "the master language" are adopted or derived from the Latin or the Greek. It has twenty-three letters and twenty-one sounds. The spelling is phonetic. The pronunciation is that of the Roman system of pronunciation of Latin.

The financiering and building of a Western railroad is the theme of this new novel by the author of "The grafters." The narrative revolves about the strong personality of Stuart Ford, the superintendent and general autocrat of the Plug Mountain branch of the Pacific Southern. Ford is a type of the young business man of to-day. Well educated, forceful and resourceful, neither reverses nor hard work seem to daunt him. He has a plan for extending his road and making it more useful and valuable. How he raises capital, fights his enemies, circumvents their spies, and finally succeeds is a story rich in romance and dramatic incident and not without its little love interest.

Oppenheim, E. Phillips. A lost leader; il. by Fred Pegram. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1907. c. '06. 296 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

An English M.P., a leader on the Liberal side, suddenly and without explanation gives up his seat and seeks oblivion in the country. He is a brilliant man of genius whom his associates will not allow to be forgotten. In a political crisis he is sought out, a beautiful woman being made to play the part of temptress and bring him back to political life. He is ambitious and honorably loves the woman, but there is something in his past that he will not explain that is dragging him to the earth. Scenes from political and fashionable English life make the background. The mystery of course is explained.

Ristori, Adelaide, [Marchesa Capranica del Grillo.] Memoirs and artistic studies of Adelaide Ristori; rendered into English by G. Mantellini; with biographical appendix by L. D. Ventura. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1907. c. 16+263 p. il. pors. O. cl., **$2.50 net.

Madame Ristori, the great Italian actress, died in Rome, Italy, the 9th of October, 1906, aged 84. The largest part of her long life was spent upon the stage; she played in all parts of the world and came in contact not only with celebrities of the stage, but the great people of her times in art and literature, etc. Her memoirs are rich in anecdotes of Rachel, Ernesto Rossi, Salvini, Booth and prominent authors of the 19th century. In addition there is a critical analysis by Mme. Ristori of several of the famous plays in which she appeared—"Mary Stuart," "Medea," "Elizabeth," "Macbeth," "Myrrha," by Alfieri; "Phaedra," by Racine, etc. Richly illustrated with portraits in costume of Ristori and many of her contemporaries.

Roberts, J., jr. Laboratory work in electrical engineering, (preliminary grade:) a series of laboratory experiments for first and second year students of electrical engineering. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand Co., 1906, [1907.] 10+218 p. diagrs., tables, O. cl., **$2 net.

While conducting laboratory classes in electrical engineering in the School of Technology, Manchester, Eng., the author has felt the need of a laboratory manual suitable for that portion of the student's training usually called "preliminary grade" and preceding the more advanced work on dynamos and motors. To successfully carry on a large class without some such help is an impossibility, the author believes, and hopes that this attempt to meet an undoubted want will prove of some service to teacher and student alike. The book contains, besides chapters on the more purely physical measurements of resistance, E. M. F., and Current, special chapters devoted to the potentiometer and calibration of electric measuring instruments.

Rotrou, Jean. Jean Rotrou's Saint Genest and Venceslas; ed., with introduction and notes, by T. F. Crane. Bost., Ginn, [1907.] c. 9+433 p. front. D. (International modern language ser.) cl., $1.

Sharp, Archibald. Balancing of engines: steam, gas, and petrol: an elementary textbook, using principally graphical methods; for the use of students, draughtsmen, designers, and buyers of engines; with numerous tables and diagrs. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1907. 10+212 p. O. cl., $1.75.

"The development of the motor-car engine and the successful installation of steam turbines for land and marine use have been the means of directing more attention to the subject of engine balancing. The smooth running of an engine depends mainly on two factors: a more or less uniform torque on the crankshaft and a good balance of the inertia forces of the engine. The latter forms the subject-matter of the present work; the former cannot be left without any mention, a chapter is therefore devoted to it"—Preface.

Shelley, Percy Bysshe. Selected poems of Percy Bysshe Shelley; ed., with introd. and notes, by G. Herbert Clarke. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., [1907.] c. 71+266 p. il. por. D. (Riverside literature ser.) cl., *50 c. net; pap., *45 c. net.

Editor was formerly professor of English in Mercer University.

Shields, S. J. A chevalier of Dixie. Wash., D. C., Neale Publishing Co., 1907. c. 226 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story is told by John Creighton, "erstwhile a soldier of the 'Lost Cause.'" He claims to tell a true tale of the days when he was young, when enthusiasm ran high and when events crowded that made heroes in a day. The spirit of the tale is wholly peaceful and unsectional, and the love story quite effective.

Simon, C.; Edmund, M.D. A manual of clinical diagnosis by means of microscopic and chemical methods; for students, hospital physicians and practitioners. 6th ed., thoroughly rev. Phil., Lea Bros. & Co., 1907. 682 p. il. pls. 8°, cl., *$4 net.

Justin H. Smith is professor of modern history in Dartmouth College and author of "The troubadours at home," etc. "This work," according to the preface, "aims to give an account of the intense effort of the thirteen United Colonies at the time we were becoming the United States to secure the adhesion of the one other conspicuous member of the British colonial group in North America." The period covered is from 1774 to 1783 and embraces the surprise of Ticonderoga, Montgomery's campaign and fall, Arnold's battle with the wilderness, and other episodes in this campaign against Canada. List of sources (18 p.).

- Ward, Rev. Caleb Theophilus. Gospel development: a study of the origin and growth of the four gospels by mutual comparison. In 2 divisions. 1, Comparison in language; 2, Comparison in subject. Brooklyn, N. Y., Synoptic Publication Co., 1907. c. 14+404 p. Q. cl., $2.
Has occupied in all over ten years of research, study and labor. Owing to its peculiar typographical structure the author was compelled to set up the entire work himself and have it electrotyped page by page. Another peculiarity of the work consists in presenting a new and independent view of the age and authority of the four gospels as now received. The sole arguments for this view have been derived from a close analytical examination and comparison of the gospels themselves.
- Waterman, Moses W., M.D. A rational treatment for narcotic inebriety. N. Y., [Frank L. Seaver,] 1907. c. 148 p. il. por. D. pap., 50 c.
Author is a member of the Bellevue Medical College, New York City. He has held positions requiring medical training in the N. Y. city and state government and written other works on nervous diseases. He prepared this treatise on account of the lack of college instruction on the subject and the consequent inability of the general practitioner to successfully treat drug addictions.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 24, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

"POSTAGE PAID."

WE print elsewhere a letter from the American Baptist Publication Society to the American Publishers' Association which tells its own story. Publishers in general have, we believe, adhered to the practice of adding postage in mailing net books, and this practice has a considerable advantage in the way of protection to a local dealer who can offer to his customer the book at the net price free from postage. On the other hand, if mail order houses, or bookstores cultivating a mail business, offer to send such books postage free—possibly coupling with this offer special inducements on non-copyright books—the local dealer is put at corresponding disadvantage. A rule which is sometimes enforced and sometimes not—here yes and there no—often is worse than no rule at all. The uncertainty as to the addition of postage is peculiarly bothersome in the educational trade, as has been evident in compiling the Educational List. The practice of publishers differs so widely that it is difficult often to learn whether a star should be added to the retail price in the case of a given list or of a given book.

The practice of including postage in the retail price of a book instead of adding it to the net price is a decided disadvantage to the publisher, who has to perform in that case the office of a retailer without getting corresponding compensation. It is, therefore, to the interest of publishers in general to maintain a strict rule in this particular. On the other hand, there is a good deal of pressure in the contrary direction, and the question is one of those mooted ones which it is difficult to decide either theoretically or practically. But the Publishers' Association in general should recommend one system or the other and each individual publisher should make clear what his practice is. Uncertainty of prices is one of the worst difficulties with which a retail dealer has to contend.

It has been gratifying to note the almost universal commendation with which the appointment of Mr. Morgan as Postmaster at New York has been received by the press and by others who have had occasion to express an opinion. The appointment is one of the best fruits of the merit system, and puts at the head of postal administration in the most important publishing centre of the country the man who for years has been, as was Charles Gaynor in his day, the right-hand of successive postmasters and who has done much of the real work of the office while political appointees have been the nominal heads. Mr. Morgan has earned his way up step by step, as had his former chief, Mr. Cortelyou, and his success is an encouragement to every clerk in the Post Office and to every official in the government service. It should be added that Mr. Willcox, although in a sense a political appointee, has made a most successful administration previous to his promotion by Governor Hughes into a more remunerative and perhaps even more important office, and that it is greatly to his credit that he rounded out that career with the act of justice of commending so persistently to the President the appointment of Mr. Morgan as his successor.

WE printed in full Mr. John B. Alden's letter to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY except as to its comment on his new editorial project, in accordance with the settled policy of opening the columns of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to all criticism which deals in a reasonable way with trade questions. We regret to note that Mr. Alden is printing otherwise impeachments of the good faith of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and accusations of bad faith in taking his advertisement and then commenting adversely on the subject of it. It is an editorial principle of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY not to be influenced in its comments pro and con by advertising or the lack of it, and the printing of an advertisement proffered to us, no matter what the price, does not commit this journal to commendation or even to silence when we think there is subject of fair criticism. We trust that this is a statement unnecessary to most of our readers, but we make it for the benefit of those who may not have understood our position.

PRINTING AND PUBLISHING IN THE U. S. IN 1905.

THE United States Bureau of the Census announces the publication of Bulletin 79, presenting the detailed statistics of the printing and publishing industry at the census of manufactures of 1905. This bulletin was prepared by William S. Rossiter, chief clerk of the census.

The printing industry possesses an importance which cannot be measured by capital invested or by the volume and value of product. Analysis of the printer's calling has become to a noteworthy degree an analysis of the general prosperity of the nation. Therefore interest in the progress and prosperity of printing is not confined to those who are connected with the industry, as is frequently the case with other callings, but is shared by the entire community.

The total number of establishments in the printing industry in 1905 was 26,422, a number larger than was reported for any other industry. The increase reported from 1900 to 1905 forms a striking exception to the prevailing tendency toward consolidation, for it was proportionately greater than from 1890 to 1900. Hence the product of this industry continues to be contributed by a great number of small establishments, accomplishing noteworthy results with a small capital, operated by men of independent thought and action, and contributing materially to the intellectual and financial growth of the country.

The capital required in 1905 to conduct the printing and publishing business was $385,008,604. It was approximately double that required in 1890, and it was doubtless due to a considerable degree to mechanical changes which have taken place in this industry during the past ten or fifteen years.

The total value of products reported in 1905 was $496,061,357. During the brief period from 1900 to 1905 the increase in value of products was nearly double that from 1890 to 1900, or, in absolute figures, $149,006,927 compared with $71,601,915. Had the per capita value of products been the same in 1905 as in 1850, the entire value of products of the industry would have been but $52,007,588; on the other hand, had the per capita production in 1850 been the same as it was in 1905, the total value of products of the industry at the earlier census would have amounted to $141,470,444, or almost ten times as much as the actual amount recorded.

Among the ten industries having value of products in 1905 exceeding $320,000,000, printing and publishing ranked seventh, having advanced to that position from tenth in 1880. Printing and publishing reports one establishment to every 3076 inhabitants, while at the opposite extreme is iron and steel, which contributes but one establishment to every 134,000 inhabitants.

Of the total number of establishments in the entire industry, about one-third were exclusively book and job establishments, one-sixth exclusively newspapers and periodical establishments, and over one-half were combination establishments—that is, producing both book and job printing and newspapers and periodicals. In value of products the exclusive establishments were practically on even terms, the amount reported for book and job printing being $186,759,503 and for newspapers and periodicals, $184,736,800; but in the combination establishments the value of newspaper and periodical products greatly outweighed the value of book and job printing. The entire value of products distributed between the two general classes was $233,230,842 for book and job printing and $256,816,282 for newspapers and periodicals. The increase for newspapers and periodicals from 1900 to 1905 was somewhat greater than that shown for book and job printing. This was principally due to the stationary condition of the book and job printing interests in the New England States.

Two-thirds of the total value of products of the industry was contributed by six States—New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio and Missouri. These States are also the principal producers in each of the two branches, although in unequal proportions.

Five of the six cities having a population of more than 500,000 inhabitants in 1900 contributed almost one-half of the total value of the products of the industry, or, considered by the two main branches of the industry, 53.9 per cent. of the book and job printing products and 42.9 per cent. of the newspaper and periodical products. New York contributed more than double the value of products of the next largest producer, (Chicago,) and almost one-fourth of the entire product of the industry.

The absolute increase in value of book and job products during the five-year period was unprecedented. From 1880 to 1890 it was approximately $4,500,000; from 1890 to 1900, $28,000,000; and during the half decade from 1900 to 1905, $62,000,000. At this rate the value of products will double in 1910 as compared with 1900. This advance is due for the most part to perfectly natural causes, the general prosperity of the nation in which the printer has fully shared being the principal factor.

EXPORT TRADE OF AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS.

Prior to 1905 no information was secured by the census concerning the circulation abroad of newspapers and periodicals published in the United States. The export trade of publications of all classes is therefore presented for the first time in this bulletin.

Twenty and six-tenth per cent. of the total number of establishments in the United States make some contribution to the total export of periodicals. Every State and territory in the Union is represented, but the bulk of this class of circulation in 1905 was contributed by 4 States—New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Illinois—which contributed 1,533,775 copies per issue, or 80.5 per cent. of the aggregate. The contribution of these States, however, is unevenly distributed between Canada and the other countries of the world, since their proportion of the distinctly foreign circulation was 85.1 per cent. as compared with 76.4 per cent. for the Canadian circulation. The preponderance of the former is due to the fact that New York, which contributed slightly more than half the total for the United States, furnished but 36.7 per cent. of the Canadian circulation as compared with 74.7 per cent. of all the other foreign circulation. Twenty-six States and territories exported more newspapers and periodicals to "all other countries" than to Canada and 24 reported a larger Canadian circulation than "other foreign." Bearing in mind the fact that the population of the Dominion at the present time is approximately 6,000,000, the circulation of American periodicals as shown in 1905 is thus 1 copy per issue to every 6 inhabitants. If the population of Canada were as large as that of the United States, this would be equivalent to a circulation of 13,543,643 copies per issue.

Unfortunately the census of Canada does not report number and circulation of newspapers and periodicals. From other sources, however, the total circulation of Canadian publications may be approximately computed. In 1905 there were, in all, 1058 newspapers and periodicals of all classes published in the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland. The total circulation of these periodicals was approximately 2,650,000 copies per issue, thus indicating that the newspapers and periodicals received in the Dominion from the United States equal 37.8 per cent. of the entire circulation per issue of Canadian publications. In short, there is one publication received from the United States to every two and one-half published in the Dominion.

SUBSCRIPTION BOOK DECISION AGAINST A PUBLISHER.

An interesting decision was made by Judge Downing of New Orleans last month in a suit of the Fifth Avenue Library Association of New York against a New Orleans subscriber for the "Redpath Library of Universal Literature," on which $5 out of $49.50 had been paid down as earnest money under a contract of sale in which the title did not pass from the vendor until the full amount was paid. The judge held that as the title did not pass, this was not a sale but a bargain, and referred to the fact that the goods had not been delivered to the defendant, but to an express company not especially authorized by the defendant to receive them for delivery to her. The civil code, which in Louisiana takes the place of common law, specifically provides that such a bargain may be withdrawn from by the forfeiture of the earnest money or amount paid to bind the bargain, or the return of double the earnest money on the part of the vendor, and Judge Downing cited an adjudicated real estate case in which a contract of sale had been voided by return of double the earnest money by the vendor. The decision held that the subscriber had forfeited the $5 earnest money, but that the publishing concern could not recover the balance or enforce delivery. It was at the most a question of damages, where the measure of damages would be the difference between the market value of the books and the price agreed upon to be paid—but the court indicated that even such a case would not hold, under the circumstances.

COMMUNICATIONS.

POSTAGE ON NET BOOKS.

THE following letter has been sent by the American Baptist Publication Society to the American Publishers' Association:

156 Fifth Avenue, New York City.*

GENTLEMEN: Inasmuch as it is not obligatory for the booksellers to add postage to net books in retailing them, we shall hereafter discontinue the practice of advertising the postage extra on our net publications. The practice of charging postage extra has been a farce from the beginning, as much of a fiction as the old long list price, which was never adhered to by the bookselling trade.

We regret that the publishers cannot agree to require postage in addition to the net price. We hope the time will come when they will require it. Until, however, there is concerted action in this matter we shall publish all net books postpaid at the net list price.

Yours truly,

CHAS. M. ROE, Business Manager.
PHILADELPHIA, August 16, 1907.

INDIVIDUALIZATION OF THE PRICE OF FICTION.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: My attention has been directed to your articles on "Advancing Prices" and "Individualization of the Price of Fiction," which appeared while I was thousands of miles away from business. As the text of those articles was some recent action of my house, and as you ask for contributions to the discussion, I will impose a word upon you.

I am in hearty accord with your apparent impression that "individualized prices for works of fiction" are reasonable and desirable. Our recent step was not quite the only recent one in that direction; the Harper house has given some originality of price and form to Henry James's recent books—apparently agreeing with the rest of the world that if the esoteric quality of Mr. James's recent art would not prevent people from reading him, such a little thing as price certainly would not. In Germany, where the trade in books, (I am not speaking of their contents,) is conducted immeasurably better than anywhere else in the world, uniformity of price for fiction is little known outside of special series and collections. Usually a popular author is published at a popular price, and an advanced author at an advanced price—more advanced than the little sixteen and two-thirds per cent. which the De Morgan books are in advance of the "sellers."

But I notice that despite the advance, one of the De Morgan books is so near a seller as to be a "book in demand" at a great library; and we have not seen the slightest indication that the sale has suffered, or the public or the trade been disaffected, by the price. On the contrary, the sale has been far beyond our expectations, and in addition to its most important encouragement regarding our national taste it gives the minor encouragement that, in a general rise of prices, publishers need not remain at a disadvantage as compared with other traders.

Your obedient servant,

NEW YORK, August 14, 1907. HENRY HOLT.

TRUE ETHICS OF THE BOOKTRADE.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: The letter from "C.," printed in your issue of July 27, is one that is worth reading, and states some of the evils of the book business in a good, effective manner. I wish to correct two statements, however. The writer states "the current published price of the cloth bound novel is $1.50, but this is a fictitious price to start with, for no retail dealer, in any bookstore from Greenland to the tropics, ever thinks of asking the published price of $1.50." That is an error, as I have always maintained the published price of books—the word net placed after a price, or left out, has never caused me to maintain a discount-giving business. I would as soon think of taking a cup of carbolic acid as I would of giving a discount of 10 per cent. or 20 per cent., or any old discount from the published price. "C." states also that the reprints of copyrights are everywhere retailed at from 40 to 50 cents. I wish to state that they are retailed at 75 cents in my store. My reason for being personal in this letter regarding my business is that booksellers may know that it is possible to go right along and attend to their business in their own way. If, as is the case in this city, all booksellers give discounts from 20 per cent. down or up as you choose to call it, it has never kept me from doing business at full price. I have after many long years in maintaining published prices found it the best solution of "the ethics of booktrade." It has been a matter of pride and honor to uphold the advertised word of authors and publishers. I believe that when firms of the high standing of Charles Scribner's Sons, The Century Co., G. P. Putnam's Sons, The Macmillan Company and others state that the price of a novel, or any book, is $1.50, that it is the honorable course for the retail bookseller to maintain the publisher's advertised word; and also, as the author usually receives a royalty on the advertised retail price, and as his or her name as well as the publisher's is jointly used in the advertised published price, the author's word is thus given regarding the price of the book. If booksellers would only see the unjust results of endeavoring to belittle the word of publishers, and stop their foolish fighting over prices, then I am satisfied a good era in the booktrade would arrive. Is it not foolish for us to complain eternally about the wrong methods of the publishers? Does not the publisher state the price of a new novel? Who cuts the price, is it not the bookseller, either as a department store dealer or as an exclusive book dealer? I am not upholding the publishers' methods, but I do think that booksellers should have sand enough to stand behind a publisher's pledged word about a book, and not constantly try and prove to the public that the publisher's word is not binding.

Sincerely yours,

Sincerely yours,

A. M. ROBERTSON.

POSTAL MATTERS.

INJUNCTION AGAINST REMOVAL OF SECOND-CLASS PRIVILEGES.

POSTMASTER GENERAL MEYER was on August 12 enjoined by Justice Barnard, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, from withdrawing from Street & Smith, publishers of the Tip Top Weekly, and Frank Tousey, publisher of the Work and Win series, the permit granted them by the Post Office Department in March, 1907, to mail their publications at second-class rates. An order issued by the department in July last withdrew the permits of these publishers to use the mails at second-class rates.

Justice Barnard's injunction enjoins the Postmaster General, his assistants, deputies, and his subordinates, until further hearing on the petition of the publishers, from revoking the authority heretofore granted to them, and restrains him from refusing to accept the publications for mailing at second-class rates.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL'S PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS.

ON his return from a conference with the President on August 12 Postmaster General Meyer said, at the New York Post Office:

"I shall recommend to Congress in my annual report the establishment of a domestic parcels post service limited to ten pounds, or any other weight that Congress will accept.

"I am also considering the feasibility of recommending the establishment of some sort of postal savings bank. We find that to-day some people are buying postal orders payable to themselves as a means of saving their money. This shows that there is room and need for a postal savings bank which will give the people a chance to deposit their savings.

"I will not advocate an increase of pay for postal rates on any class of mail matter.

"I am considering a plan for the reduction of postal rates between the United States and such countries as we have direct steamship communication with—England, France, Germany—from 5 cents per half ounce to 2 cents. To make a reduction will not require legislation, but joint action by the postal authorities of the interested countries.

"We are also going to experiment with a view to introducing postage stamp slot machines generally. I have been told that a machine can be made from which 5 cent, 2 cent and 1 cent stamps may be bought. This would be a great convenience to the public. I will experiment first in Washington, and then if it is a success it will be introduced generally. A very large plant for the manufacture of the machines would have to be established.

"I also have in mind virtually the revival of the old postal notes, but payable to specified individuals by name. The amount will be limited either to $2.50 or $5.

"I have been considering for some time the establishment of a new delivery of mail at 8 o'clock at night in thickly populated residence districts. There is a very large accumulation of mail here between 6 and 8 in the evening to be delivered on the first morning delivery. It is to relieve that first morning delivery that I contemplate the late night delivery. If the new plan is introduced it will be possible to write a letter and get an answer the same day. Two hundred and twenty-six new carriers would be required. Before taking final action a commission will go over the plan and report the actual cost."

OBITUARY NOTES.

MRS. LILLA T. ELDER, a writer of children's verse and prose in Little Folks, The Youth's Companion, The Congregationalist, etc., died Tuesday, August 15, at her home, Myopia Hill, Winchester, Mass. Mrs. Elder was born November 28, 1853, in New York City.

REV. DR. GEORGE A. PELTZ, a prominent clergyman of Philadelphia and one of the organizers of the Jamestown (N. Y.) Chautauqua, died August 16, aged seventy-four years. Dr. Peltz was for many years engaged in literary work, and for a long period was associate editor of The Sunday School Times, of Philadelphia. He at one time was secretary of the State Sunday School Association of Pennsylvania.

EDMOND DEMOLINS, writer of the now famous book "In What Does the Superiority of the Anglo-Saxons Consist?" died at Caen, France, August 18, aged fifty-five. Edmond Demolins was one of the most suggestive thinkers of our time, and was the author of remarkable monographs on the different professions. He was director of La Science Sociale, and with De Tourville and Le Play he had much to do with the development of that branch of philosophy.

REV. DR. CHARLES COMFORT-TIFFANY, for many years Archdeacon of New York, died from apoplexy, August 20, at Northeast Harbor, Me. Dr. Tiffany was born in Baltimore in 1820. He studied in Andover Theological Seminary and was graduated from the Universities of Halle, Heidelberg and Berlin. He was author of the "History of the Protestant Episcopal Church," "The Christian Life" and "The Prayer Book." He belonged to the Union League, Century and University Clubs.

PERSONAL NOTES.

CHARLES H. DOSCHER has severed his connection with B. W. Dodge & Co., and has sold his interest to William Rickey, of that firm.

WILLIAM HARVEY MINER, formerly with Burrows Brothers and now with the Torch Press, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will be married on Tuesday, August 27, to Ada Martha Odgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John James Odgers, of Cleveland, N. Y.

WILLIAM H. FIELD has been appointed by the Frank A. Munsey Company to fill its new office of advertising manager. The present system of separate organizations for the advertising departments of Munsey's Magazine and the Argosy combination will remain, but all the separate organizations will be under the direction of Mr. Field, who will have full authority on all matters relating to advertising. Mr. Field will assume his new duties on September 16.

THE NOBEL PRIZES.

THE five yearly prizes provided for by Alfred Nobel's bequest of $9,000,000 for the best achievements in physics, chemistry, medicine or physiology, and literature of an idealistic tendency and the best individual effort toward the propagation of universal peace, are awarded December 10. They amount to about $40,000 each, but are sometimes divided. For instance, in 1904 the prize for literature was divided between Frederic Mistral, the Provençal poet, and Jose Echegaray, the Spanish dramatist. Thus far the literary prize has not been awarded to a writer of English. Sully-Prudhomme, Mommsen, Björnson, Sienkiewicz and Carducci have been the winners besides the two already named.

"Wherefore," says the N. Y. Times, "it is an agreeable surprise to learn that our own Mark Twain has been thought of for this year's literary prize by the Swedish Academy, which always awards that prize. Thought of only, the report says, and then displaced in the minds of the members of the academy by Rudyard Kipling. Perhaps the report is utterly untrue, as it is certainly premature. Perhaps the award will be halved, and Twain and Kipling will share it.

"As the prize is annual and for the best achievement, it seems that Nobel must have meant the best achievement of the year. It is too early yet to say what will be the most excellent work of an idealistic tendency in literature, in the year ending December 10, 1907. It may appear in November and be of such imposing worth as to demand immediate recognition."

The Stockholm newspaper, Tidningen, inclines to think Kipling will surely receive the in no wise empty honor.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MISS ELLEN GLASGOW has returned to Virginia for the inspiration of her new work, "The Beaten Road," which will be published by Doubleday, Page & Co. this fall. Miss Glasgow has chosen to depict the life of a typical Virginian, Richard Ordway.

THE publication of books about Blake goes on apace. In Paris M. P. Berger has just brought out a large volume entitled "William Blake: Mysticism et Poésie." In London Arthur Symons will soon publish a book called "William Blake: the Poet, the Artist, the Man."

ANATOLE FRANCE has been writing a work on "Jeanne d'Arc." Any work of his is sure to possess charm, and in this one he has a theme which must have given him a special inspiration. It will probably not be very long before the work is announced in English translation.

G. W. E. RUSSEL, whose "Collections and Recollections" and other books of gossip are pleasantly remembered, has another similar volume in press. He calls it "A Pocketful of Sixpences," from a sentence in one of Lord Beaconsfield's novels—"He was not an intellectual Cræsus, but his pockets were full of sixpences."

AN interesting fact has just come to light in connection with the publication by Geo. W. Jacobs & Co. of Alexander Macdonald's "In Search of El Dorado." It appears that Mr. Macdonald, who is a geologist and mineralogist, was one of the first to go to the Klondike, and among the men in charge of his dog sledges was Jack London, author of "The Call of the Wild." In a sense, the origin of that author's work is to be traced to his experiences under Mr. Macdonald.

THE father of the late Dean Stanley, who was Bishop of Norwich, travelled in France in 1814 and 1816 and wrote letters home in which he described certain of Napoleon's marshals, Mme. de Staël and other notabilities, and dealt with divers historic scenes, including those of several great battles. These letters have now been edited for publication, and will appear in the autumn under the title of "Travels Before and After Waterloo."

NAPOLEON as a theme for the historian has not by any means been exhausted, but biographers have for some time been paying more attention to the different members of his family. Under the title of "The Men Bonapartes" A. H. Atteridge has written a volume treating of the Emperor's four brothers and the more remarkable of their descendants. This ought to make a rather fresh and interesting publication.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Putnam's Monthly for September will contain "A Day in Cranford," by Josephine Tozier, illustrated by E. H. New; a criticism of "Recent Books on Shakespeare," by William A. Rolfé; and "The College of the City of New York," by A. I. Du P. Coleman, with many illustrations.

The Fortnightly Review for August has an instructive and original article on "Robert Burns and Charles Dickens," by J. M. Sloan, who holds that Burns and Dickens meet in the reverence of great men and the love of the common people, and reminds his readers that Comyns Carr has asserted that "every great man thinks Dickens a great man."

THE September Century will make special appeal to those who love memoirs with further extracts from Horace Traubel's remarkable daily record of conversations with Walt Whitman in his old age in Camden, N. J., with much of interest of Whitman's estimate of John Burroughs, his war memories, his ideas on reading, and his general philosophy of life.

IN North American Review for August 16 Edmund Clarence Stedman advocates the claims of Poe, Cooper and Bryant to monumental tablets in the Hall of Fame; A. Maurice Low enumerates and characterizes the leading journals of Japan in an article entitled "The Yellow Press of Japan;" and Mackaye's "Sappho and Phaon" is reviewed by Clayton Hamilton.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE PRESS BUREAU of the Congo Independent State has issued a pamphlet in reply to "King Leopold's Soliloquy," written by Mark Twain.

MACMILLAN & Co., London, have just published for the Jewish Historical Society of England "A History of the Jews in England," by Albert M. Hyamson.

THE VIEW POST CARD AND NOVELTY CO., 1022 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, direct importers and manufacturers of souvenir cards, call attention to their large stock, and invite the trade to send for full line of samples.

JAMES POTT & Co. recently removed to 214-220 East Twenty-third Street, New York City, notify the trade that their complete fall lines are now ready for inspection in their new show-room.

DODGE PUBLISHING Co. have just ready a second large edition of "The Golden Treasury of Irish Songs and Lyrics," by Charles Welsh, a work in two volumes which has satisfied the expectations of critical readers.

HARPER & BROTHERS have now issued "Barbary Sheep," by Robert Hichens; and "Adventures of Uncle Sam's Soldiers," by General Charles King, John Habberton and others, fully described in our issue of August 3.

W. A. WILDE & Co. will publish in the Famous Indian Series a story by Miss Mary Hazleton Wade, entitled "Ten Indian Hunters," in which are described the every-day life of the Indian and the craft whereby he obtains his living.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has in preparation for the early fall a new book by the Rev. Herman Lilienthal, Rector of St. George's Church, Astoria, entitled "Sundays and Seasons," consisting largely of sermons. Mr. Lilienthal's former works have met with considerable favor both here and in England.

DUFFIELD & Co. announce that they have received a cable dispatch from Elinor Glyn in which she promises a preface to the American edition of "Three Weeks," in which she will deny some of the views imputed to her in the storm of discussion this book has roused in England. Richard Price's novel, "The Successor," appears to-day.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have for publication in September the following works of fiction: "Clementina's Highwayman," by Robert Neilson Stephens; "The Sorceress of Rome," by Nathan Gallizier, telling the love story of Otto III. and Stephania, and forming the second book of his trilogy of the mediæval life of Italy; Edward H. Hurt's "Mystery Island;" and Grover Clay's "Hester of the Hills," a story aimed against the doctrine of heredity and unnatural laws.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish shortly in The New Library of Medicine, (edited by Dr. Saleeby,) a volume entitled "The Care of the Body," by Francis Cavanagh, M.D. This subject is treated in a comprehensive manner, beginning with sleep as indispensable to the proper condition of the body, followed by baths, exercise, clothing, the skin, the hair, the teeth, the feet and hands, the eyes, ears, and other subjects—among them habit—which bear upon the state of the body under varying circumstances and occupations.

HENRY ALTEMUS Co. announce for the fall "Poor Richard Jr.'s Almanack;" "Good Stories from The Ladies' Home Journal;" "Thro' the Rye," a guide for thirsty pilgrims in the rye field, by Herman Lee Meader; "The Bachelor's Guide to Matrimony," by Reginald Wright Kauffman; "In Pursuit of Priscilla," a love story by E. S. Field; "The Bible as Good Reading," by Hon. A. J. Beveridge; "Delight," the story of a little girl, by Gert-rude Smith; "The Boy Geologist," by Professor E. J. Houston; and "The Ifs of History," by J. E. Chamberlin.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co.'s forthcoming books include Part III. of Sir George Trevelyan's "American Revolution," including the Battle of Saratoga, the Battle of Brandywine, and the Battle of Valley Forge. In "Two New Worlds" E. E. Fournier d'Albe will attempt to penetrate the mystery of space and time—from the infinite on one side to the infinitesimal on the other. "Jock of the Bushveldt" is the story of a dog, by Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, with a colored frontispiece and numerous other illustrations by E. Caldwell. Another study of canine character is "The One Dog and The Others," by Frances Slaughter, with illustrations.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will issue shortly "Guides for Vertebrate Dissection," by J. S. Kingsley, of Tufts College, who believes strongly that a student in laboratory work should get his information from the specimen itself rather than from the printed page of a manual, and the "Guides" will therefore not tell a student what he will find, but will tell him what he does find. The first "Guides" to appear will deal with The Dog-fish, The Necturus and The Frog. Each of the "Guides" is complete and issued separately. Other books in preparation include "Darwinism To-day," by Professor Vernon L. Kellogg, of Stanford University; and "Harps Hung Up in Babylon," a volume of poems by Arthur Colton, best known by his humorous story, "The Belted Seas."

DODD, MEAD & Co. will have ready September 14 "The Daughter of Anderson Crow," a new story by George Barr McCutcheon, author of "Graustark," "Jane Cable," etc.; "Those Queer Browns," by Florence Morse Kingsley, author of "The Resurrection of Miss Cynthia;" "The Revelations of Inspector Morgan," by Oswald Crawford, author of "Sylvia Arden;" and Anthony Trollope's "Caldigate," in two volumes. For same date are promised the following juveniles: "A Little Girl in Old Baltimore," by Amanda M. Douglas, whose "A Little Girl in New York" proved so enchanting; "Two Teddy Bears in Toyland," by Elizabeth M. Gordon, illustrated by Charles Wylie; and "Patty in Paris," by Carolyn Wells, who has already described "Patty Fairfield," whom she now takes to the French capital.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co.'s fall season will begin on September 14 with the publication of "The Familiar Letters of James Howell," in two volumes, with an introduction by Miss Agnes Repplier; Thomas Hood's pathetic ballad, "Faithless Nelly Gray," with many amusing illustrations by Robert Seaver; a new edition of Alice Prescott Smith's "Montlivet," with frontispiece in color and decorative cover; Everett T. Tomlinson's new story for boys, "The Campfire of Mad Anthony;" two volumes in the Hart, Schaffner & Marx Series of Prize Essays in Economics, "The Causes of the Panic of 1893," by William Jett Lauck, and "Industrial Education," by Harlow S. Person; Part I. of volume II of Charles Sprague Sargent's "Trees and Shrubs;" a new series of popular poets, in leather bindings at popular prices, including Longfellow, Tennyson, Whittier, Emerson, Aldrich, Holmes, Lowell, Hart, Sill and others; and Hawthorne's "Grandfather's Chair" and William Elliot Griffis's "Brave Little Holland," both in the Riverside Juvenile Classics, popular illustrated editions for children at moderate prices.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplaced advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

1st In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

2d Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

NEW YORK

Dodge Publishing Company
214-220 East 23d Street

TO BE PUBLISHED SEPTEMBER SECOND
Two Important New Novels

A New Novel by the best of all Writers of Southern Romance

GEORGE CARY EGGLESTON

LOVE IS THE SUM OF IT ALL

A PLANTATION ROMANCE

Illustrated by HERMANN HEYER. 12mo. Cloth. $1.50

With a scene laid in Virginia, just after the time of "Reconstruction," Mr. Eggleston has resumed the manner and method that made his "Dorothy South" one of the most famous books of its time. The two heroines are utterly unlike each other, but each possessed of a peculiar fascination that wins and holds the reader's sympathy. A pleasing vein of humor runs through the work, but "the sum of it all" is the intensely sympathetic love story.

By HAROLD MORTON KRAMER

Author of "Hearts and the Cross"

GAYLE LANGFORD

BEING THE ROMANCE OF A TORY
 BELLE AND A PATRIOT CAPTAIN

Illustrated by H. C. EDWARDS. 12mo. Cloth. $1.50

Mr. Kramer won golden opinions last year with his first novel, "Hearts and the Cross." He has now entered an entirely different field, and tells a romance of the "times that tried men's souls" in a way that will permit no one to lay it aside when once he has begun it. Gayle Langford, the heroine, is as imperious and unfathomable as she is beautiful, and her patriot lover is possessed of audacity beyond the common lot of man. Action crowds upon action from the beginning to the end of this exceptionally good novel.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO., Boston

NET FICTION

The booksellers throughout the country have expressed themselves very decidedly about net fiction.

We shall publish at least two works of fiction at net prices: the first in October, by Booth Tarkington, and the second by E. F. Benson in November.

Both books, it will be noted, are by well-known authors, whose books would be certain to sell at regular discounts.

We would respectfully ask the trade to study the two books in the hope that their success might help to solve the problem of fiction at net prices.

This Week's Books

The author of "The Walking Delegate" has here written another tale of New York:

TO HIM THAT HATH

By LEROY SCOTT

Missions, thieves, starvation, love, are as faithfully depicted as was the situation of unions and strikes in his successful first production.

Illustrated. $1.50

DAFFODILS —NARCISSUS

And How to Grow Them

By A. M. KIRBY

Full of suggestions for those who want to do something better than the ordinary in their gardens. Uniform with "Roses," "Lawns," etc., in "The Garden Library."

Two Points to Publishers

PUBLISHERS of forthcoming books to be issued during the Fall season of 1907 are reminded that the Fall Announcement Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, to be issued under date of September 28, is in many respects one of the most important issues of the year. Booksellers generally find it invaluable in making up their holiday orders and for descriptive selections for their own catalogues and circulars. Librarians also use it extensively in making up their purchase lists for the new season. Note then:

1st. That the dictionary reference list of new books to be issued will be made up as complete as possible from material procurable between now and September 10. It is therefore very important for all publishers to send in early lists in duplicate of their announcements, giving as much data as practicable of all forthcoming works.

2nd. That the number is especially valuable for advertising, since an ad. supplements the reference list and keeps your descriptive announcement immediately before the buyer during the period he is planning for the new season.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual 1907

"The man who first spoke of the 'Publishers' Trade List Annual' as the 'Bible of the book trade' uttered a fitting phrase but used a simile that is open to at least one criticism. If the holy book was as often consulted by the public in proportion as the Trade List is by the bookseller the cry that it is a 'neglected book' would never be heard, for in every shop and in every public library this familiar 'jumbo' in pebbled green is in constant daily use."

—Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.

"No bookseller, even the humblest, if he knows his business, can afford to be without the 'Publishers' Trade List Annual,' often spoken of as 'the big catalogue book,' which contains the price lists of all the publishers of importance in the country."—The Newsdealer.

"It sometimes happens, we know, that a dealer in a fit of misdirected economy will try to get along with his last year's Annual, but the experiment soon becomes an aggravation, for he quickly finds out that he cannot afford to have his bibliographical equipment a whole year behind hand."

—The Publisher and Retailer.

THE OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE

- BECAUSE Everett True's Outbursts have been made into the most humorous book of the year;
- BECAUSE Everett True himself is so human that he always makes one chuckle;
- BECAUSE Everett True conducts a vigorous campaign against public bores and boors, and really inflicts the punishment all of us have wished we might administer time and time again;
- BECAUSE Everett True makes everybody LAUGH LONG AND LOUD

By ELIZA CALVERT HALL

President Theodore Roosevelt says :

"Have you read that charming little book written by one of your clever Kentucky women—'Aunt Jane of Kentucky'—by Eliza Calvert Hall? It is very wholesome and attractive. Be sure that you read it"

MARGARET E. SANGSTER says :

"A prose idyl. Nothing more charming than this delightful book has appeared in recent fiction. It is no small pleasure to meet a book so clean, wholesome, inspiring and entertaining."

The New York Times says :

"Where so many have made caricatures of oldtime country folk, Eliza Calvert Hall has caught at once the real charm, the real spirit, the real people, and the real joy of living which was theirs."

THE SUCCESSOR

A Novel

By RICHARD PRYCE

Just Issued by DUFFIELD & COMPANY

"An exceedingly interesting story; his characters are clearly and incisively drawn, and his dialogue is both witty and pointed. And to a novel possessing such qualities it would be strange indeed were the public to refuse the hearty welcome which it thoroughly deserves."—Daily Telegraph.

"It is the risk of exposure which keeps you on tenterhooks throughout, and adds a zest to the clever interest of the story. Gundred is a charming girl."—Pall Mall Gazette.

"Not many living novelists have so much of the true spirit of comedy as Mr. Richard Pryce. His latest tale, 'The Successor,' has a double portion of that spirit. The characters are well imagined and deftly individual."—Morning Post.

Ready September 14th

The new novel called "Three Weeks," by Elinor Glyn, author of "The Visits of Elizabeth,"

THREE WEEKS

By ELINOR GLYN

This story of a royal love episode is the sensation of the day in England.

"Mrs. Glyn has never written before with anything like such poetic sentiment or such admirable descriptive power. Readers who can tolerate a defiance of the conventions will find 'Three Weeks' a very dainty romance," says The Sunday Times (London).

Ready September 21

The New Romance of the West by RANDALL PARRISH

BETH NORVELL

¶ If this book does not exceed in sales the delightful fiction previously written by Mr. Parrish, it will not be because of its lack of brilliancy and gripping interest which holds its readers from word to word—title to finish.

¶ The heroine is a talented young actress who is "discovered" by a daring young Mining Engineer. They act out their romance in the Colorado mining regions, where impulses are strong and action the order of the day. The story abounds with exciting complications and rigid tests of character.

¶ That sympathetic illustrator, Mr. N. C. Wyeth, has contributed a frontispiece in color for the work. The cover design will attract comment for its originality and artistic treatment. Striking posters and other advertising matter furnished dealers upon application. $1.50

NOTES IN SEASON.

FREDERICK A. STOKES Co. have now ready five comic juveniles for 1907, each consisting of new pictures now published in book form for the first time, under the separate titles: "Outcault's Buster Brown and Company," by R. F. Outcault; "Foxy Grandpa's Triumphs," by "Bunny"; "The Cruise of the Katzenjammer Kids," by R. Dirks; "Maud the Matchless" and "Happy Hogan Home Again," the latter two by F. Oppen.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish in early September "Camping and Tramping With Roosevelt," by John Burroughs, and the autobiographical reminiscences of General Morris Schaff, dealing chiefly with "The Spirit of Old West Point," which have proved such eagerly expected reading in the pages of the Atlantic Monthly. Gen. Schaff has revised and enlarged these papers, and his book is a great eulogy on West Point, the nation's most beneficent institution.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have just ready "The Story of a Football Season," by George H. Brooke, the coach at Swarthmore College; "Beau Brocade," by Baroness Orczy, a romantic tale of a chivalrous highwayman; and "When Kings Go Forth to Battle," by William Wallace Whitelock, with scenes laid chiefly in a little German principality, where a change of rulers takes place mainly through the instrumentality of an American man and girl, who have just met by chance on this foreign soil.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish early in September a new edition of Mabel Wagnalls' "Stars of the Opera," containing a large amount of new matter, including interviews with Madame Melba and Geraldine Farrar, and a new analysis of "Madame Butterfly;" "The Semi-Insane and the Semi-Responsible," by Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, who was one of the experts for the defense in the Thaw trial; "Smiling Round the World," a new book by Marshall P. Wilder; and "Sex Equality: a Solution of the Woman Problem," by Dr. Densmore, based on teachings of Darwin and Spencer.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have ready five juveniles for the approaching holiday season. "Us Fellers," with text by Izola L. Forrester and pictures by B. Cory Kilvert, tells of a band of natural, frisky youngsters; "Jack, the Giant Killer, Jr.," by Dwight Burroughs, with colored illustrations, outdoes his father of ancient fame by killing his victims with electricity, the automobile, the airship and other modern agencies; "The Four Corners in California," by Amy E. Blanchard, the new volume in the Corner Series; "Joan of Juniper Hill," by Emilia Elliott; and "Pixey O'Shaughnessy," by Jessie de Horne Vaizey, a sprightly story of a young Irish girl, who arrives in a dignified English boarding-school and creates no end of excitement and fun.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish on the 14th of next month "Arizona Nights," by Stewart Edward White. These yarns, in which Mr. White is seen at his best as a story teller, have been appearing for the most part in McClure's Magazine. Two novels which will also be brought out in book form on September 14 are "The Car of Destiny," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, the scene of which is laid in Spain at the time of the recent coronation, and that is said by English critics to surpass in interest and literary power anything that has yet issued from the pens of these authors; and "The Suburban Whirl," by Mary Stewart Cutting, which is described as a love story of married life, set amid the scenes of the New Jersey suburbs.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk **, and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger†. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☞

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: P. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (12: under 30 cm.); O. (8: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Th. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fo. (4mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Abrahams, Israel. A short history of Jewish literature from the fall of the Temple (70 C.E.) to the era of emancipation (1786 C.E.). N. Y., Scribner, [imported,] 1906, [1907.] 16+176 p. D. cl., **$1 net.

Author is reader in Rabbinic literature in the University of Cambridge. Opens with the fall of Jerusalem in the year 70 of the Christian era, and ends with the death of Moses Mendelssohn in 1786. The period covered extends over more than seventeen centuries. At the end of each chapter there is appended a bibliography.

Adventures of Uncle Sam's soldiers; by Gen. C: King, J: Habberton, Capt. C: A. Curtis, Lieut. C: D. Rhodes and others. N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 11+243 p. il. D. (Harper's young people ser.) cl., 60 c.

These stories of brave deeds in army life show the kind of men who guarded our West in the days of hostile Indians. While the tales are usually fiction, yet the fiction is usually founded upon some incident of actual occurrence. They are written by army officers who have witnessed scenes and events such as they describe.

Belcher, J: Essentials in architecture: an analysis of the principles and qualities to be looked for in buildings. N. Y., Scribner, [imported,] 1907. 17+171 p. il. pls. O. cl., **$2 net.

Author is fellow and past president of the Royal Institute of British Architects. His subject, illustrated by many beautiful examples, is considered and explained under the following headings: Principles, Qualities, Factors, and Materials.

Bob O'Link, (pseud.) Matrimony, before and after: a descriptive monologue. N. Y., Dick & Fitzgerald, 1907. c. 8 p. D. pap., 25 c.

Bonehill, Captain Ralph, (pseud.) Guns and snowshoes; or, the winter outing of the young hunters. N. Y., Cupples & Leon Co., [1907.] c. 6+246 p. il. D. (Boy hunters ser.) cl., 60 c.

Carries forward the adventures of the "Four boy hunters," who go in the winter time to almost the same locality where they had a summer camp. The sport the boys had in the snow and on the ice, and the new mystery presented, are both good reading.

Byrne, Austin T: A treatise on highway construction; designed as a text-book and work of reference for all who may be engaged in the location, construction, or maintenance of roads, streets, and pavements. 5th rev. and enl. ed. N. Y., John Wiley & Sons, 1907. c. 43+1024 p. il. tables, diagrs., 8", cl., $5.

Calvert, Albert F: Seville: an historical and descriptive account of "The pearl of Andalusia"; with 300 il. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 21+139+300 p. D. (Spanish ser.) cl., **$1.25 net.

One hundred and thirty-nine pages of descriptive text and three hundred reproductions of photographs representing views, buildings, pictures, etc., to be found in the beautiful city of Seville make up the book. The text is divided into chapters on: Seville; Moorish Seville; Seville under the Castilian kings; The Alcazar; The Cathedral; Other buildings of the 15th and 16th centuries, and of the 17th and 18th; The painters of Seville; The old Roman City.

Chamberlin, Georgia Louise, and Kern, Mary Root. Child religion in song and story: a manual for use in the Sunday schools or in the home. Chic., University of Chicago Press, 1907. c. 258 p. O. (Constructive Bible studies, Elementary ser.) cl., $1; Note book. 40 p. pap., 40 c.

Present volume is one of a series of three intended for the guidance of teachers in the first, second and third grades of the elementary Sunday-school—that is, for teachers of children from six to nine years of age. Gives combined services and lessons, the aim being to introduce through informal conversation the religious theme for the day. Lessons are arranged for 39 Sundays, beginning in October and ending with July, and are divided into groups, each group containing the development of a general religious theme. The accompanying notebook contains blank pages for the text and songs to be filled in after each lesson, and there are ten or more loose half-tone reproductions to be pasted in as illustrative material.

Chapman, Allen. Mail order Frank; or, a smart boy and his chances. N. Y., Cupples & Leon Co., [1907.] c. 7+247 p. il. D. (Boys of business ser.) cl., 60 c.

The volumes that preceded this in the series were: "The young express agent" and "Two boy publishers." The present story covers a new field in juvenile books—that of the mail-order business. How Frank started in a small way and gradually worked his way up to a business figure of considerable importance is well told.

Coutts, Francis Burdett T. Money-. The romance of King Arthur. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 15+217 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

A retelling of the Arthurian legend, with some slight variations from the accepted version. The story is evolved through the poem of "Uther Pendragon," showing the birth of Arthur; the play of "Merlin," the drama of "Launcelot du Lake," and a final poem, "The death of Launcelot."

Cran, Mrs. G. Herbert Beerbohm Tree; with 23 full-page il. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 8+110 p. pors. D. (Stars of the stage; ed. by J. T. Grein.) cl., $1 net.

The early life and long theatrical career of one of England's greatest actors is the subject of an unusually attractively written memoir. The narrative is rich in amusing anecdotes and witticisms, and embraces critical studies of Mr. Tree's chief parts and of his most important ventures as actor-manager. He is still the owner and manager of His Majesty's Theatre, London, and is in the very prime of his career. The many full-page portraits of Mr. Tree in costume are notably good.

Delehaye, Father H. The legends of the saints: an introduction to hagiography; from the French, tr. by Mrs. V. M. Crawford. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1907. 15+241 p. D. (Westminster lib.: a series of manuals for Catholic priests and students; ed. by B. Ward and H. Thurston.) cl., $1.20 net.

In the opening chapter the author defines what precisely is to be understood by a hagiographic document. This is followed by the development of the legends; The work of the hagiographer; The classification of hagiographic texts; The "dossier" of a saint; Pagan survivals and reminiscences; Concerning certain hagiographic heresies. To indicate briefly the spirit in which hagiographic texts should be studied and to lay down the rules for discriminating between the materials that the historian can use and those that he should hand over as their natural property to artists and poets is the aim of this volume.

Sir Claude Wyverne was a simple and rather heavy young Englishman, who had married a very frivolous wife and who adored her. He granted her every wish, and when she decided that they should go from Paris to Algiers he obediently started. While he hunted Barbary sheep Lady Wyverne became involved in a flirtation with a handsome Arab army officer, which has a most unexpected and tragical ending. The author of "The garden of Allah" and "The call of the wild" again sets forth with much power the mystery and fascination of the desert.

The 16th century when France was divided into two hostile parties—the Catholics and the Huguenots—is the time of this story for young people. The brave hero, little past boyhood, carries at great peril an important package to the great Huguenot leader, the Admiral de Coligny, and afterwards follows him through a dashing campaign. Many historical events are described, such as the battle of Jarnac, the murder of the Prince de Condé, the wedding of Henry of Navarre, and the massacre of the Huguenots on the day of St. Bartholomew, when Coligny was brutally murdered.

After marrying three times Lord Alton found himself still without an heir. His brother's wife began to look longingly at the great Merringham entailed lands for her sixteen-year-old son. Unexpectedly a daughter was born at the old castle. Lord Alton had just died. The mysterious, unknown third wife had solved the problem of inheritance; an old house-keeper brought about events. The peculiar tale is only given in hints. All ends satisfactorily.

A story of New York City. To save his friend's name from disgrace and to continue the effectiveness of a great mission work he was doing when stricken with death, David Aldrich lets himself be supposed a robber of trust funds and serves his time in prison. When he reappears it is almost impossible for him to get food as an honest man. The story is told to bring to light the terrible trials a man faces who desires to reform but has his "prison record" to meet him at every step.

Sinclair, May. The helpmate. N. Y., Henry Holt & Co., 1907. c. 438 p. D. cl., $1.50.

While still in her honeymoon Mrs. Majendie discovers that there is in her husband's past a not very creditable story that he had believed she had known and which had come to an end long before their marriage. She is a good, religious woman, thoroughly imbued with a belief in her own perfection. She finds her husband's explanations unpardonable, receiving them coldly and gradually withdrawing herself from his life, until he is only remembered in her prayers. Even their little girl is gradually united in her intercourse with him. Majendie patiently endures the hostile attitude of his wife and the oppressive atmosphere of his home for some years and then seeks consolation elsewhere. How the story ends is left to the reader to discover. As a serial in the Atlantic Monthly "The helpmate" has excited considerable discussion. By the author of "The divine fire."

The story is chiefly about a little boy of eight years, named "Jerry" for short, whose real name is Fitzgerald Ramsey. His mother has just returned from India, where she has been widowed a short time previously to the opening of the story. She is a cold hearted, frivolous woman, who cares little for Jerry because he is slightly lame. She is cruel enough to let him feel this, and as he is a sensitive, precocious little fellow his heart is almost broken. Later she marries Colonel Digby, who becomes intensely fond of "Jerry," and is the means of awakening in his wife a real motherly love for the boy, who has always idealized and idolized her.

A biography of the celebrated English painter George Morland, born in London on the 26th of June, 1763, and died on the 29th of Oct., 1804, in his 42d year. Brief as his career was he left a remarkable number of examples of his genius and versatility. His works are a record of the manners and habits of the people of his day. His present biographer thinks an erroneous impression exists in regard to the subjects of Morland's works, which he aims to correct by giving examples of the artist's different styles and moods. Bibliography (3 p.).

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—G. A. Jackson, for a number of years with Little, Brown & Co. in their law department, has established himself in business under the title of The Students'
Co-operative Law-Book Exchange, at 24 Bromfield St. He will deal in both new and second-hand law books and would be pleased to receive both publishers' and second-hand dealers' catalogues.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The H. H. Otis Book
Co. has gone into involuntary bankruptcy.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Fiduciary Press, 907
Tacoma Building, Chicago, is a new publishing concern just incorporated under the laws of Illinois for $2500, with the following gentlemen as officers: E. I. Rosenfeld, President;

Edward E. Beals, Vice-President and Treasurer; I. H. Gallyou, Secretary and Manager.
The Fiduciary Press is incorporated to do a wholesale and retail mail-order book business, and will become publishers' representatives for high grade publications. The firm will also publish on its own account.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—W. H. Parker, formerly with E. P. Dutton & Co., who has lived for some years in retirement in Maine, has again entered the book business. He has established himself at 1086 Chapel Street, and will devote himself to the second-hand trade. He requests publishers and booksellers to send him their catalogues as soon as possible.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—On September 15 The Antlers Bookshop will remove to larger quarters, 322 Royal St., diagonally opposite to where they have been for three years. Mr.
Goodman, late buyer for Barkalow Bros.,
Omaha, Neb., who is in charge, reports that New Orleans people are buying more standard literature and less fiction each year.

NEW YORK CITY.—Charles H. Doscher has severed his connection with B. W. Dodge &
Co., having sold his interest to William Rickey. Without change of name B. W.
Dodge & Co., 24 East Twenty-first Street, has been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. Mr. Dodge retains his interest and has associated with him Theodore Dreiser, editor in chief of the Delineator, and William Rickey as the other stockholders and officers of the corporation.

FOUNDED BY F. LAYPOLDT.

AUGUST 31, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

CATALOGUING INCUNABULA.*

BESIDES the books, pamphlets and maps of more recent dates, the bookseller may be called upon to include in his catalogues books of early dates, manuscripts and autographs. Early printed books, included in the term incunabula, derived from the Latin cunabula, the cradle, therefore generally designated by the German bookseller as "wiegendrucke," and, occasionally, by the English bookseller as "cradle books," are the books printed in the second half of the fifteenth century when the art of printing was still in its infancy—in the cradle. The Greek word palaotype, "an old impression," is also, but rarely, used by pedantic dealers in describing early printed books.

It is still a question even with bibliographers of note where to draw the line for incunabula. While the term is generally accepted as applying only to books printed within the fifteenth century, that is, before the year 1500, a number of scholars would extend the period to 1520, because, though the beginning of the sixteenth century was not remarkable for great progress in the art of printing, they hold that the inauguration of the Reformation distinctly marked the transition period of the whole of Europe from the Middle Ages to the New Era, during which learning was spread with such marvellous rapidity through the printed page. Friedrich Kapp, in his "Geschichte des deutschen Buchhandels," suggests that the period before 1520 might fitly be termed the age of the folio, (das Foliantenzeitalter), because up to that period books were rarely brought out in any other form. Nor is the difference one of exterior only. The literature in folio form was for the scholar and had but little part in the education of the common man; indeed, the true importance of the booktrade as a dominating factor in the education of the people does not begin until the appearance of that numerous and cheap pamphlet literature which in its effect accomplished a complete revolution in the thought of the unlettered people. While these propositions of Kapp and other bibliographers may have much in their favor, librarians, antiquarians and dealers in second-hand books are unanimous in limiting the term of incunabula to the books that were printed from the invention of printing by movable types by Gutenberg, Koster, or whoever the inventive genius may in time be determined to be, until the year 1500, following in this the example of L. Hain, who, in his "Repertorium bibliographicum," describes only the books of that period.

A prominent antiquary once said that "to prepare a satisfactory catalogue of incunabula not only required a considerable knowledge of the subject itself, but also an intimate and complete knowledge of the history and the practical details of the art of printing, paper-making, engraving and the other arts that were laid under contribution in the making of books in the fifteenth century, the basis of which necessarily involves years of preparation and frequent opportunities of becoming acquainted with the books themselves." We readily subscribe to this opinion and cite it here chiefly as a reason for not covering the subject as fully as it seems to deserve. Whoever desires to devote himself to this specialty must go to the sources of information, and we will therefore in this series of articles give only such rudimentary directions for cataloguing early books as may serve as a guide to the beginner, or to those booksellers who occasionally meet with books printed before the year 1500.

The opportunities for picking up early printed books, we might say here, are not so rare as is assumed even by dealers in old books. The rate of production in the book world between 1460 and 1500 was truly amazing, and by 1501 it is reasonably estimated that well-nigh thirty thousand separate works were in existence. In editions of 300 copies of each work, a conservative estimate, there must have been in circulation in the early part of the sixteenth century at least nine million separate printed books. That many of these have been irrevocably lost is undoubtedly true. That many more than is supposed have survived is proven by the recent successes of Voynich, Olshchki and others in unearthing not only books printed before 1501, but among them incunabula of lasting worth and value.

*Continuation of "The Profession of Bookselling." Full credit for authorities quoted will be given on the conclusion of the article.

COMMUNICATIONS.

"BEWARE OF TRICKERY"

JOHN B. ALDEN is sending broadcast to the trade the following communication:

"Until THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY took our $20, and then gave the 'fifth-rib-stab' of 'insinuation' that when we offered to pay 'half the dealer's postage,' we might try to 'steal all his trade,' we had not imagined that more than an occasional unsophisticated book dealer would possibly fear to trust a publisher in so simple a matter—and such book dealer we believed would have the good sense to simply keep his money (not our money, as in P. W. case) in his pocket, and the good taste to keep his slanderous thoughts to himself!

"But it is clearly a case where it is desirable that, 'like Cæsar's wife,' the Publishers Book Bulletin should be 'above suspicion,' so we have decided to reverse the process, and "We will trust the dealer—let him pay the postage, and on his simple statement that he has done so the Bulletin will 'rebat' half the cost. See particulars as to these terms in circular under head of 'Unique Common-Sense Ideas.'

"PUBLISHERS BOOK BULLETIN,
"47 Fourth Ave., Room 84, New York City."

[We regret that we overlooked printing Mr. Alden's further statement as to his plan. We may add that before Mr. Alden's advertisement was accepted his attention was specifically called to the fact that we hold ourselves free to comment con or pro, and we assumed naturally that his sample issue fairly represented his plan.—ED. P. W.]

MR. ALDEN CALLS ATTENTION TO OUR OVERSIGHT.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: You have lately been more free, if not more generous, with my name than I anticipated.

I am glad to believe THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is influenced toward its course by a standard of business ethics.

I am glad to know that some of its patrons hold to a different standard, and have wondered at your course in the matter.

As to any "accusation" by me of "bad faith" on your part, that statement I challenge. I have simply printed the bare facts, and leave others to infer.

Why don't you reprint the few lines, and let people judge for themselves? Particularly as they carry an important fact which you have failed to print, offsetting the inference, which even a second time you lead your readers to draw, that if they sent me names of their customers for their specific use I might treacherously appropriate them to my own use, intimating there should be some "assurance" that I would not—indicating a strange standard of "ethics" somewhere!

The specific response I made to the insinuation as to the possibility of such morally, if not legally criminal course of action, was that I would reverse the process, and "trust the Dealer," instead of his trusting me; that he might pay the postage, and, on his simple statement that he had done so I would rebate half the cost.

Yours very truly,

JOHN B. ALDEN,

BIBLE HOUSE, N. Y. City.

THE BOOKS OF THE FRANK TOUSEY PUBLISHING COMPANY.

JUSTICE JOHN J. BRADY, of the Supreme Court, Special Term, Part 1, vacated Wednesday morning an order which he had granted on Monday directing the Frank Tousey Publishing Company to furnish information concerning the business of the concern to Lawyer George Gordon Hastings. The announcement was made Tuesday night by persons interested in Sinclair Tousey's side of the case that Justice Brady heard further argument Tuesday in the chambers.

George Gordon Hastings has been trying to find out why no dividends are declared by the publishing company, which, it has been admitted, makes large profits. His wife, who was a sister of Frank Tousey, founder of the concern, and of Sinclair Tousey, who has been running the business, inherited the publishing business from her brother Frank and assigned half of it to Sinclair Tousey and half to her husband, George Gordon Hastings.

OBITUARY NOTES.

DR. SENECA D. POWELL, for many years professor in the New York Post Graduate Medical School, died Sunday, August 25, aged sixty, in consequence of experiments before his class with alcohol and carbolic acid three years ago. Dr. Powell was born in Alabama, January 5, 1848. He was the author of several works on toxicology and antiseptics.

DR. OREN ROOT, brother of Elihu Root, Secretary of State, and professor of mathematics and natural science at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., for twenty-seven years, succeeding his father, died Monday, August 26, at his home in Clinton, N. Y., from cirrhosis of the liver. He had been ill for about a year. Dr. Root was born in Syracuse, N. Y., May 18, 1838. He received the degree of D.D. from Rutgers College in 1891, and that of L.H.D. from Union College in 1895. He was the author of a textbook on elementary trigonometry, and was the editor of various works on declamation and oratory.

THE EARL OF DUNMORE, leader of the Christian Scientists in England, died Tuesday, August 27. Charles A. Murray, seventh Earl of Dunmore, was born on March 24, 1841, and succeeded to the title when four years old. His mother was a daughter of the eleventh Earl of Pembroke. He married the third daughter of the Earl of Leicester in 1866. During the years 1874 to 1880 he was Lord-in-Waiting, acted at one time as Lord Lieutenant of Stirlingshire, and was colonel of the Fourth Battalion Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders. He owned 78,800 acres of land. His best-known publications are "Western Tibet" and "Ormisdale."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

DR. EDWARD R. TAYLOR, recently elected mayor of San Francisco, has several volumes of poems to his literary credit.

RICHARD PRYCE, author of "The Successor," just issued by Duffield & Co., after already going through five editions in England, is noted for his plays as well as his novels, one of which was recently played at Sandringham in honor of King Edward's birthday.

PROFESSOR DAVID P. TODD, of the astronomical department of Amherst College and head of the Lowell expedition to the Andes, in an interview at Lima, Peru, on Tuesday of this week, was quoted as saying that he is preparing a book on his recent important observations of the eclipse of the sun, of the rings of Saturn, and of the canals of Mars.

DR. DUBOIS, a well-known neurologist of Berne, has successfully applied the principles of psychology to the cure of certain diseases. His theory has just been set forth in a small book entitled "The Influence of Mind on Body." For a number of years he has been reporting cases in the Swiss and French scientific reviews. Without entering into the discussion of the relation between psychical and physical processes, he goes directly to the treatment of diseases by means of suggestion and the training of the will.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Contemporary Review for August contains a fine essay by Emily Crawford on "Mediæval and Renaissance Portraiture."

IN Everybody's Magazine for September President Roosevelt returns to the attack upon the "nature fakers" in an article with that title, published over a facsimile of his autograph signature. An editorial note, preceding a symposium gathered for the magazine by Edward B. Clark, author of the original article, "Roosevelt and the Nature Fakirs," and containing the opinions of nature authorities on the controversy, explains that the President intended to take no part in the controversy. The information of the projected publication of the symposium, however, led him to allow Everybody's Magazine to publish a note on the subject which he had intended to append to a forthcoming volume of his public papers.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE FIDUCIARY PRESS, 907 Tacoma Building, Chicago, a new publishing concern, has just ready "The Law of Financial Success," by Edward E. Beals, the Vice-President and Treasurer of the newly incorporated firm.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish September 5 "Brunhilde's Paying Guest," by Caroline Fuller, a book of many romances breathing the spirit of the South. Later in the month they will have ready "The Red Reign," a story of a year's travel in Russia, by Kellogg Durland; and "Gret, the Story of a Pagan," by Beatrice Mantle, with scene in an Oregon lumber camp.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have just brought out "Garibaldi's Defense of the Roman Republic," by George Macaulay Trevelyan, to which considerable new material has been added; and "The White Man's Work in Asia and Africa," by Leonard Alston, M.A., being a discussion of the main difficulties surrounding the color question, has just been brought out in this country by this firm.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will have ready in September, "The Sea Charm of Venice," by Stopford A. Brooke; "A History of Astronomy," by W. W. Bryant; "Church Furniture," by J. C. Cox and A. Harvey; and "The Care of the Body," by T. Cavanagh, in The New Library of Medicine. They publish this week a new edition of "Mary Stuart," by Florence A. Maccunn, and "European Animals: Their Geological History and Geographical Distribution," by R. F. Scharff.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have a new Entre Nous series, gotten up with the pretty daintiness for which the name stands, with special attractions of typography and illustrations. Thus far it includes the following titles by well-known writers: "Allee Same," by Frances Aymar Mathews; "Good Night," by Eleanor Gates; "Schmidt," by Lloyd Osbourne; "In the Deep of the Snow," by Charles G. D. Roberts; "Dawn," by Katharine Holland Brown; and "Araminta and the Automobile," by Charles Battell Loomis.

It does not often happen that a prophecy is fulfilled so quickly as in the case of "Beatrix of Clare," the new John Reed Scott romance. When this story was published late last June, a great many critics wrote that it would no doubt join the list of the "Six Best Sellers" before the summer was over. This prediction has already come true, for in the current number of The Bookman this spirited novel appears within the "charmed circle" as one of the six best selling books in the country. In this connection J. B. Lippincott Co. announce a new large edition, the fifth, by the way, for publication this week.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready "The Antidote to Christian Science," by Dr. James M. Gray; and announce for early fall publication "God's Message to the Soul," the last work of "Ian Maclaren," (Dr. John Watson;) "The Rhodes Esperanto English Dictionary," a translation of "The Pilgrim's Progress" into Esperanto by Dr. Rhodes; and a new novel by Dr. W. J.

Dawson, entitled "A Prophet in Babylon," the story of a minister who leaves his rich New York congregation and becomes a minister to men's souls regardless of ecclesiastical organization, forming a "League of Social Service" that proves a great help to all its followers.

HARPER & BROTHERS announce for immediate publication "The Weavers," by Gilbert Parker, which has had a most successful serial run in Harper's Magazine, and will appear in the largest first edition ever published by the house; "Discoveries in Every-Day Europe," by Dan C. Seitz, constantly on the lookout for the unexpected amid the well-known sights of ordinary European travel; "The Secret Agent," by Joseph Conrad, a life-like representation of anarchists, in which the hero, tenant of a small, little shop in London, plays against the existing order of things in the most remarkable manner; and "Stories of Symphonic Music," in which Lawrence Gilman explains the meaning of symphonies, overtures and tone-poems from Beethoven to the present day.

JOHN LANE COMPANY (The Bodley Head) have among their newest books, "The Strongest Plume," by Hugh De Selincourt, the story of a girl who gradually learns that she cannot overcome a moment's mistake even by a marriage for life; "On the Wall: Joan and I in the East End," a volume of a dozen short stories of the slums of London, told by Richard Free, a missionary preacher, already known by his work on similar lines, called "Seven Years' Yard"; "Ralph Heathcote," letters of a diplomatist during the time of Napoleon, by the Countess Gunther Groben; and two new volumes in the Spanish Series, so ably edited by Albert F. Calvert: "Spanish Arms and Armour" and "Cordova," a historical and descriptive account of the Royal Armoury at Madrid.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD Co. will publish eighteen books on September 3. Seven of these were mentioned in last week's issue. Among the remaining ones are: "Love Is the Sum of All," a plantation romance of Virginia, and "Long Knives," a story of Clark's Expedition, both by George Cary Eggleston; "Gayle Langford," the romance of a Tory belle and a Patriot captain, by Harold Mortimer Kramer, a talented Indiana journalist; "Songs of the Average Man," by Sam Walter Foss; "Defending His Flag; or, a Boy in Blue and a Boy in Gray," by Edward Stratemeyer, who also has written "Treasure Seekers of the Andes; or, American Boys in Peru" for the fifth volume of the Pan-American Series; "Five Little Peppers in the Little Brown House," Margaret Sidney's eleventh volume in the famous Pepper Books; "The Boys of Pigeon Camp, Their Luck and Fun," by Martha Jones, the second volume in the Pigeon Camp Series; "A Little Pioneer in Nevada," by Edith M. H. Baylor; "Helen Grant Senior," by Amanda M. Douglas; "Marion's Vacation," by Nina Rhoades; "Ruth Erskine's Son," by "Pansy"; "Randy's Prince," by Amy Brooks; "Dorothy Dainty at Home," by same author; and "Kitty-Cat Tales," by Alice Van Lee Carrick. All these books are illustrated and foretell the coming holidays.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

THE JACOBS LIST

A TALK TO BOOKSELLERS

The new Jacobs Announcement, which should receive your consideration before you complete your Autumn stock, contains one of the most complete selections of books for young readers that will be placed before the trade this year. Always "ready-sellers," the new titles, five of which are here listed, are distinctive in their character and make-up.

The Jacobs announcements yet to be made will merit the attention of every bookseller in the country. Some of the volumes embraced in the list are destined to be among the foremost titles of the coming year—one, at least, will make a profound impression on the 1908 book world.

New titles have been added to the American Crisis Biographies ; several notable English books have been imported ; the American rights to a brand new Dickens have been secured—in fact, no other publishing house in America will make announcements surpassing in importance those contained in the Jacobs list.

Hearty co-operation with the bookseller in exploiting these books, the increasing prominence of the Jacobs publications among bookmen, and the timeliness of many of the volumes included in the list, are excellent reasons for giving more than passing consideration to the titles embraced in the Jacobs announcement, sent upon request.

THE JACOBS LIST

THE NEWEST IN JUVENILES

These five books promise to be among the best-selling juveniles of the year. Mechanically, they are admirably adapted for young readers and will strengthen the best made-up list for the Holiday season. All have handsome decorative covers.

US FELLERS (Square 8vo, cloth), $1.00

8 Pictures in Color by B. CORY KILVERT
Text by IZOLA L. FORRESTER

Irresistibly funny as are Mr. Kilvert's drawings, the recital of the adventures of "Us Fellers," a band of frisky youngsters, is well calculated to hold the attention of the young reader.

JACK, THE GIANT KILLER, JR. $1.00

By DWIGHT BURROUGHS. (Square 8vo, cloth.)

Twelve Color Illustrations by HELEN ALDEN KNIPE and ELEANOR PLAISTED ABBOTT

Jack is the son of the Giant Killer of ancient fame. He outdoes his father by killing giants with electricity, the automobile, the air-ship and other modern agencies.

THE FOUR CORNERS IN CALIFORNIA

By AMY E. BLANCHARD $1.50

(12mo. Cloth. Five full page illustrations)

A wholesome book for girls from ten to fourteen, in which the Corner family makes a pilgrimage to California which is beset with many adventures. This is the newest volume in the "Corner Series."

JOAN OF JUNIPER INN $1.50

BY EMILIA ELLIOTT

(12mo. Cloth. Five full page illustrations)

A story for girls of 12 to 16 that is justly entitled to a position in the very front rank of books for girls of this age. It evidences a rare insight into the young nature.

PIXIE O'SHAUGHNESSY $1.50

BY JESSIE DE HORNE VAIZEY

(12mo. Cloth. Six illustrations)

A sprightly story for girls. Pixie is the youngest in a family of Irish children, and her exciting invasion of an English boarding school results in no end of fun and frolic.

Nearly five years ago we were invited to become associated with those Bible publishers who are governed by an agreement to maintain high prices. We refused to do so. The wisdom of our refusal, and its importance to booksellers, becomes apparent when at this time we are able to say that our Bible business is entirely satisfactory, and Bibles of equal quality to ours cannot be purchased elsewhere at prices less than from 25 to 50 per cent. more than we ask for them. JUST THINK THIS OVER.

Any of our books can be purchased of us direct or of your jobber if more convenient to you. Don't pay Dictionary Trust or Bible Combination prices for Dictionaries or Bibles. Buy our books and make more money.

Beau Brocade

By BARONESS ORCZY

Author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "I Will Repay," etc.

Baroness Orczy returns to the field of romantic fiction in which she first became famous.

This romantic tale of the chivalrous highwayman, Beau Brocade, is full of go, there is real ingenuity in the plot, and the interest is kept up at an intense pitch.

Four illustrations in color by Clarence F. Underwood. 12mo. Cloth, $1.50

When Kings Go Forth to Battle

By WILLIAM WALLACE WHITELOCK

Author of "The Literary Guillotine."

A modern story, in a setting of love and adventure. The action takes place in a small German principality, and involves a thrilling change of rulers, mainly through the instrumentality of an American man and girl, strangers to each other, who become involved in the intrigue in delightfully unconventional fashion.

Three illustrations in color by Frank H. Desch. 12mo. Cloth, $1.50

THE YOUNGER SET

By Robert W. Chambers

Author of "Iole" and "The Fighting Chance."

Some Early Comments of the Press

BROOKLYN EAGLE: "He has never yet scored a failure. He has always given his readers the best that is in him. 'The Younger Set' is better than even 'The Fighting Chance.'"

PITTSBURG PRESS: "Strong, virile, brilliant, Eileen is a creation whom every reader will love at all times. The book will rank with the very best and most popular novels of this writer."

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER: "The book is well worth the reading, for it is worth re-reading."

NEW YORK SUN: "Telling stories is an amazing knack with Robert W. Chambers. 'The Younger Set' will unquestionably make a best seller. It has all the elements of popularity."

D. APPLETON & CO., NEW YORK

BETTER THAN "THE GRAFTERS"

Francis Lynde wrote "The Grafters," "The Quickening" and several other stories, but none approaches in breeziness or intensity this latest story, "Empire Builders," of "a master of men," who awakened new fields in the mighty West and wrested the sinews of war from unwilling hands.

EMPIRE BUILDERS

"It is a brilliant story."—Brooklyn Eagle.

AN INGENIOUS ROMANCER

Miss Rives has done a wonderful lot of work in "Satan Sanderson." No unskilled artisan could possibly have built it so successfully.

No dull-minded narrator could have kept together the threads of plot and character so nicely. A mere contemplation of the maze through which Miss Rives leads the reader in "Satan Sanderson" is provocative of astonishment.

Questions of morality, of propriety and of retribution, in "Satan Sanderson," are wondrously mixed with psychological problems that baffle, and the reader is frequently as dumfounded as the good old bishop himself must have been when he peered into the chapel window and saw his rector throwing cards in a poker game with the outlaw Hugh.

THE NEW "OZ" BOOK

OZMA OF OZ, by L. Frank Baum. Beautifully illustrated by John R. Neill. The most gorgeous Baum book ever produced. In this new "Oz" story the author tells more about Little Dorothy and reintroduces the Scarecrow and Tin Woodman and all the old favorites, at the same time bringing forward Tiktok, the machine man; the Wheelers; the Yellow Hen; the Nome King; and the Hungry Tiger. 8vo, nearly 150 pictures, largely in colors, 280 pages. Extra cloth binding, side and back stamping in four colors. Price, $1.25.

POLICEMAN BLUEJAY, by Laura Bancroft. A nature story told in fairy tale form, in which Twinkle and Chubbins are transformed into little birds and live in the forest. Illustrations, including eight colored inserts, by Maginel Wright Enright. Octavo. Boards. $1.00.

SHAKESPEARIAN FAIRY TALES. First steps for little folks in Shakespeare. Eight of the plays retold in fairy tale fashion suited to the minds and imaginations of little tots. Illustrated in colors. 12mo. $1.00.

THE SUNBEAM BOOKS. Three tiny volumes in gay bindings. Illustrated with colored pictures. Little Farmers, by W. O. Krohn. Little Stories of Our Country, by John Hazelden (George Ade). Little Rhymes and Jingles, by Amalie Hofer. 18mo. All three titles boxed, 60 cents.

THE AUNT JANE BOOKS, for girls, by Edith Van Dyne. The author's first book, AUNT JANE'S NIECES, has been praised as being a decided step forward in girl's literature. The new book, AUNT JANE'S NIECES ABROAD, is just as good. 12mos. Gold stamping; colored inlay. Six half-tone illustrations. $1.25 each.

THE SAM STEELE BOOKS, for boys, by Capt. Hugh Fitzgerald. SAM STEELE ON LAND AND SEA was a decidedly successful story. The new title is SAM STEELE IN PANAMA—a thrilling automobile story. 12mos. Stamping in colors and gold. $1.25 each.

The Story of a Fight

FROM CONCORD BRIDGE TO A FIELD AT YORKTOWN

By Hugh Lloyd

Crown Octavo, 250 pages, with colored frontispiece done in lithography and ninety halftone illustrations. Price $1.25.

This book is unique, not only in juvenile literature but in historical literature. It supplies a need that every teacher knows exists, and a need which every boy and girl feels unconsciously exists. It is history built on the plan of a story, but it is not historical fiction in any sense. It is what its name suggests, the STORY OF A REAL FIGHT. It contains only enough detail to sustain interest, and is therefore above all things readable. The plan of construction is popular, each year of the war being done in a chapter by itself.

THE GREAT NOVEL OF 1907

THE WEAVERS

By GILBERT PARKER

Author of "The Right of Way"

THE WEAVERS

A novel that can be called truly great. In its sweep and immensity—a tale of rural England and the glittering Orient;—in its novelty and heroism—a sturdy Quaker youth in the toils of Mohammedan Egypt;—in its web of cross-purposes and contrasted types strangely linked together, The Weavers presents a story intensely human, a story of love, high resolve, and wonderful achievement.

A hero of peaceful Quaker blood, swaying the destinies of turbulent Egypt, and his heart far away in England—an English woman, hedged in by high social position, whose thoughts go out to the distant desert land and its great uncertainties—strange crossings and recrossings of the strands of Fate weaving mysteriously to a glorious ultimate triumph—this is but to hint at what the book holds—a rare combination of elements that defy description.

For mere surge of interest and excitement it outranks its great predecessor, The Right of Way.

NOTES IN SEASON.

McLOUGHLIN BROS., New York, will bring out on the 15th inst. "The Story of a Fight, from Concord Bridge to a Field at Yorktown," by Hugh Lloyd, a rattling good book for boys and girls, with a colored frontispiece and ninety half-tone illustrations.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will bring out in October an entirely new poem by Will Carleton, entitled "In Old School Days," full of the sentiment of old days. The book will be attractively gotten up for the holidays, with twelve illustrations in colors by James Montgomery Flagg.

THE fall publishing season of the J. B. Lippincott Company opened this week, and three important volumes were issued—"Antony and Cleopatra," a new volume of the Variorum edition of Shakespeare, edited by Horace Howard Furness; "The True Patrick Henry," by George Morgan, the tenth volume of The True Biographies series; also, "François Rabelais," by Arthur Tilley, the third volume in The French Men of Letters series.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. publish to-day Colonel Herbert H. Sargent's important work on the Spanish American war, entitled "Campaign of Santiago de Cuba," already fully described by us. On the 21st inst. they will bring out Randall Parrish's new story, "Beth Norvell," a story of life in the mountains of Colorado. The romance, which is of an immensely fascinating kind, develops in a small mining town of the present time on the "circuit," and moves to a tragic climax at the Little Yankee mine, amid some surprising complications.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. will bring out shortly "The Code of Victor Jallot," a new story by Edward Childs Carpenter, author of "Captain Courtesy," which received general commendation last fall from press and public. The story deals with the dramatic life of early Louisiana. Victor Jallot, "the gentleman in motley," as he was sometimes called, the hero of the story, was the first Louisianian to write a play—"The Gateway of Dreams"—which was performed at the Theatre St. Pierre, in New Orleans, as early as 1803, and he promises to be an original and fascinating character in American literature.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY, after many delays, will bring out on the 18th inst. the second volume of the new Library edition of the poems of William B. Yeats. It will be recalled that the first volume, containing Mr. Yeats's lyrical poems, appeared about a year ago. The forthcoming volume will contain his dramas in verse, and includes in addition to those already published, but not easily accessible, the drama "Deirdre," which was first produced in Dublin last winter, and has never appeared in print. They will publish shortly a work on "The United States as a World Power," by Professor Archibald Cary Coolidge, of Harvard University, a critical study of the international position of the United States to-day. The author discusses in detail and with many comparisons the situation arising from the formation and growth of the United States, the composition of its white population, the colored elements, the Monroe Doctrine, the Spanish War, and the acquisition of colonies; the economic status of the country, the relations of the United States with continental Europe and with England, the relations with Canada and with the countries of Latin America; the presence of the United States in the Pacific and its relations with China and Japan.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk **, and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☞

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; m. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Baker, Louise R. Bettie Porter, Boardwalk Committee. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1907.] c. 352 p. il. D. cl., *$1.50.

Bettie Porter was the inciting cause of a board walk being put down in the muddy little town of Primrose Hollow. She and four other girls form themselves into a committee, of which she is made the president, to raise funds for her enterprise. They give entertainments and picnics and gradually accumulate a small amount of money, sufficient to begin buying lumber. In all their plans they are opposed by an old man, who aims to "boss" the town. Poor Bettie Porter breaks down under the strain of her responsibility, but the board walk does get built.

Balzac, Honoré de. Ursule Mirouët; ed., with introd. and notes, by F: Hay Osgood. N. Y., Henry Holt & Co., 1907. c. 15+262 p. S. cl., *$80 c. net.

Blanchard, Amy Ella. Three little cousins. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1907.] c. 222 p. col. il. D. (Little maid ser.) cl., *$1.

The story of a happy summer spent by three little girls at their aunt's cottage by the seashore. They were cousins but had never met before. One lived in the East, one in the West, and one in England. They are full of fun, and have an Uncle Dick who is a never ending joy to them all.

Brisco, Norris A. The economic policy of Robert Walpole. N. Y., Macmillan, 1907. c. 8°, (Columbia Univ. studies in history, economics and public law.) pap., *$1.50 net.

Brown, Katharine Holland. Dawn; il. by F. Walter Taylor. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] c. '04, '07. 53 p. D. (Entre nous ser.) cl., 50 c.

A great surgeon suffering from nervous prostration goes to the northern wilds to recuperate. He is called upon by a neighbor for help in a case of extreme danger, and is forced to gain control over himself. This is the beginning of his cure—his forgetfulness of self being his restorer.

Browne, Edith A. W. S. Gilbert; with 23 illustrations. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 10+96 p. por. D. (Stars of the stage; ed. by J. T. Grein.) cl., *$1 net.

Browne, Sir T: The religio medici; Letter to a friend; and Christian morals; with an introduction by C. H. Herford. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] 20+243 p. por. S. (Handy volume classics, pocket ed.) cl., 35 c.

Bruce, Philip Alexander. Robert E. Lee. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1907.] c. 380 p. por. D. (American crisis biographies.) cl., *$1.25 net.

Like the other biographies which make up this series this account of the life of the Confederate general is quite impartial. The nobility of his character is strongly dwelt upon, and his motives for casting in his fortune with his native state are made quite plain. His part in various battles of the Civil War is sketched clearly, and a history of the war given from the Southern standpoint, but without any bitterness. Bibliography (2 p.). Index.

Buxton, E. M. Wilmot. Stories of early England. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] c. '06, '07. 15+340 p. il. pls. S. (Children's favorite classics.) cl., 60 c.

California. Supreme ct. and district cts. of appeal. Complete digest of the decisions of the supreme court and district courts of appeal of the state of California: covering the cases officially reported in vs. 1 to 147 of the supreme court reports, v. 1, of the district courts of appeal reports; also all California decisions contained in vs. 1 to 88 of the Pacific reporter, with complete table of cases referring to subject matter and page, and reverse table, containing names of defendants alphabetically arranged; by Edmund Samson Green. In 6 v. v. 3, Executor de son tort-levdness. San Francisco, Cal., Bancroft-Whitney Co., 1907. c. 9+1128 p. O. buckram, $8.50.

Calvert, Albert F: Spanish arms and armour: being a historical and descriptive account of the Royal Armoury of Madrid; with 386 illustrations. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 30+142+248 p. D. (Spanish ser.) cl., *$1.25 net.

"The present work is based on the admirable catalogue prepared in 1898 at the instigation of Queen Maria Cristina by the Conde de Valencia de San Juan. . . . To the formal descriptions of the exhibits, which the Conde de San Juan has collated with invariable accuracy, I have prefixed a brief sketch of the historical development of Spanish arms and armour. . . ."—Preface.

Calvert, Albert F.; and Gallichan, Walter M. Cordova: a city of the Moors; with 160 il-illustrations. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 16+108+159 p. D. (Spanish ser.) cl., $1.25 net.

A historical and descriptive account of the ancient city which the Carthaginians style the "Gem of the South."

Christmas (A) anthology: carols and poems, old and new. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] c. 11+85 p. pls. D. (Chiswick ser.) cl., $1.50 c. net.

A little holiday book, in appropriate Christmas attire, embracing a selection of the carols and poems which seem to breathe the true spirit of Christmas.

Coutts, Francis Burdett T. Money-. The heresy of Job; with the inventions of W. Blake. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 7+40+21 p. il. O. cl., $2 net.

The author contends that Job was a type of humanity put upon the earth to be taught that the search for an infinite God must be an infinite search. Job did not deny God, but he could not accept the teachings of religion as final and he vindicated the right of all men to seek God in their own way. The scope of the Book of Job is the relation between God and man. The author follows the track of Job's reasoning across the wondrous Oriental imagery through which it passes. Gives the illustrations of the Book of Job invented and engraved by William Blake; also notes, appendix and list of commentaries consulted.

Cunliffe, J. W. The influence of Seneca on Elizabethan tragedy: an essay. N. Y., G. E. Stechert & Co., 1907. 4+155 p. O. (Anastatic reprint, 1907.) cl., $4 net.

Author is late Berkeley fellow of the Owens College, Manchester. An essay submitted to the examiners for the doctorate of literature in the University of London, and accepted by them as a sufficient qualification for the writer's degree. First published in 1893.

De Sélincourt, Hugh. The strongest plume. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 284 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of a girl who gradually comes to see that she cannot be purified from a moment's mistake by a lifetime's marriage. She touches life at its very heart, and gains at last the courage from her experience of life and death to stand by herself without the props of convention, which help the weak as much as they bruise the strong. The title of the novel is taken from the motto: "The strongest plume in wisdom's pinion is memory of past folly."

Deutsche sprache und Deutsches streben in Amerika. N. Y., Lemcke & Buechner, 1907. 14 p. O. pap., 15 c.

An anonymous German-American enthusiastically urges the preservation of the German language among the American born descendants of Germans. He points out the various German habits and customs that still maintain their ground, dwells upon the singing societies and philanthropic institutions, and shows how the German-Americans have influenced education, the theatre and the great literary movement. The writer does not wish the Germans to become Americans; they are always to remain conscious of their German-American heritage.

Dickinson, Captain F. A. Big game shooting on the Equator; with an introd. by Sir C. Norton Eliot; 77 il. reproduced from photographs. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1908, [1907.] 285 p. pls. O. cl., $5 net.

A series of sketches written to try and help young sportsmen who come out to East Africa to find their way round, particularly at the present time, when this part of the world seems to be a most popular paradise for the big-game shooter. The great variety of wild animals to be found here are all fully described, as well as the scenery of East Africa.

Dillard, R.; M.D. At autumn time: half remembered echoes from the woods and fields. [Edenton, N. C., Dr. Richard Dillard,] 1907. 17 p. il. O. cl., 50 c.

Verses and views. Text and pictures printed in red ink.

Douglass, Beaman. Nasal sinus surgery with operations on nose and throat; il. with 67 full-page half-tone and colored plates, including nearly 100 figures. Phil., F. A. Davis Co., 1906, [1907.] c. 16+264 p. 8°, cl., $2.50 net.

Drummond, H. Natural law in the spiritual world. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] 19+321 p. por. S. (Handy volume classics, pocket ed.) cl., 35 c.; leath., 75 c.

Edgar, Madalen G. Stories from Morris. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] c. '06, '07. 14+336 p. pls. S. (Children's favorite classics.) cl., 60 c.

Prose versions of stories taken from William Morris' celebrated poem, "The earthly paradise," written between the years 1868 and 1870. They are: "The man born to be king," "Atalanta's race," "The writing of the image," "The fostering of Aslaug," "Bellerophon at Argos," "Bellerophon in Lycia," "The proud king," "Acontius and Cydippe," "Ogier the Dane," "The golden apples," "The lovers of Gudrun," "The lady of the land," "The story of Rhodope," and "The land east of the sun and west of the moon."

Elliott, Emilia. Joan of Juniper Inn. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1907.] c. 395 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A Southern family impoverished by the Civil War seek shelter in an old roadside tavern deserted by the former tenant. It is in good condition and quaintly pretty. The mother is a widow and not in good health, the children running wild. One of them in joke hangs out again the old sign of Juniper Inn, and Joan the elder, surprised by the appearance of customers, experiments at inn-keeping to increase the family income. Out of this grow many amusing scenes and unexpected experiences. The children are bright and happy, the fun never lagging.

Elshehus, L.: Michael. The poet; and Elegiac poems; cover design and decorations by the author. Pocket ed. N. Y., Eastman Lewis, [1907.] c. 156 p. T. cl., $1; pap., 75 c.

Ewell, Alice Maude. A long time ago in Virginia and Maryland, with a glimpse of old England. N. Y., Neale Publishing Co., 1907. c. 246 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Stories of colonial life in Virginia and Maryland in the days bordering on the Revolutionary War. Contents: Grandpapa's coat; The white and the red; The ducking of Goody Grill; Master Muffet's mishap; The passing of General Bacon; My neighbour's goose; One Christmas Eve at Master Muffet's; An errand of warning; The lass o' the lamp.

Fanshawe, Ann Harrison, Lady. The memoirs of Ann Lady Fanshawe, wife of the Right Hon. Sir Richard Fanshawe, Bart., 1600-'72; reprinted from the original manuscript in the possession of Mr. Evelyn J. Fanshawe of Parsloes; with four photogravure portraits and 29 other reproductions. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 42+617+6 p. O. cl., $5 net.

A little more than a third of this volume is given to the memoirs, following which are exhaustive notes by the editor, five appendices and a pedigree of the Fanshawe family from 1400 to 1907. Lady Fanshawe was a true, pure-minded woman in a profligate age, and her husband was a chivalrous man of honor, against whom no word of blame or depreciation has been found in any of the records of the day. Their time was the troublous civil war period in England during the 17th century, and Sir Richard occupied positions of trust at home and abroad under the Royalists before and after the war. Illustrated from portraits by Lely, Teniers, Velasquez and others, and from photographs of places.

Fischer, Martin H., M.D. The physiology of alimentation. N. Y., John Wiley & Sons, 1907. 8+348 p. il. 12", cl., $2 net.

Fox, Irving P., and Forbes, B. A. One thousand ways and schemes to attract trade; gathered from actual experiences of successful merchants. Bost., Spatula Publishing Co., [1907.] c. 208 p. il. O. pap., $1.

Will be found valuable to the retailer for what it suggests as well as for what it says, as many of the schemes mentioned will readily bring to mind new ideas, many of which could doubtless be followed out with equal success. It is not a collection of advertisements, nor is it devoted to describing various window "trims," although a few remarkable "ads" are reproduced and several novel, inexpensive and unusually effective window displays are described.

Francis of Assisi, St. The little flowers of the glorious Messer St. Francis and of his friars; tr. by W. Heywood; with an introduction by A. G. Ferrers Howell. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] 39+331 p. front. S. (Handy volume classics, pocket ed.) cl., 35 c.; leath., 75 c.

Franz, Rob. [Songs:] a collection of sixty-two songs with piano accompaniment; preceded by a biographical and critical essay by H. E. Krehbiel; published in two eds., one for high voice and one for low voice. N. Y., G. Schirmer, [1907.] c. 20+165 p. por. F. (Golden treasury of music.) ea. edition, cl., $1.50 net.

There are three indexes—one of German titles, one of English titles, and one of first lines. The words of the songs are both in German and English. Biographical essay of ten pages is by the eminent musical critic.

Free, Rev. R.: On the wall: Joan and I in the East End. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 303 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A volume of a dozen short stories of slum life in London told by a missionary preacher. The author is known by his previous and similar work, "Seven years hard." The twelve tales are as many documents of a very real humanity.

Fuller, Caroline. Brunhilde's paying guest: a story of the South-to-day. N. Y., Century Co., 1907. c. 5+348 p. front. D. cl., $1.50.

A prologue tells of a great storm and of a little girl on horseback saving a woman lost in the woods of Carolina just after "the war." That night a little boy is born. Thirty years after a tired New York journalist goes South to rest his nerves and becomes "the paying guest" of the little girl, now left with all her pride and poverty on her desolate estate. She is a great contrast to Northern boarding-house keepers. She has talents of every kind, especially a magnificent singing voice. Although over thirty she is still unawakened, owing to her peculiar circumstances. The "paying guest" comes under the spell of his own Southern ancestry and finally Brunhilde is conquered, also by fire, and all makes a typical Southern romance.

Ganong botanical apparatus for use in plant physiology. Rochester, N. Y., Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., [1907.] c. 36 p. O. pap. (Address pubs. for price.)

A catalogue covering sixteen important pieces of apparatus, developed under Prof. Ganong's advice for use in plant physiology, by the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. They are fully described, detailed directions being given for the use of the instruments.

Gates, Eleanor, [Mrs. R.: Walton Tully.] Good-night (Buenas noches); il. by Arthur Rackham. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] c. '06, '07. 53 p. col. pl. D. (Entre-nous ser.) cl., 50 c.

A pathetic little story of a parrot, very human in its wickedness—and in its love. Her fierce battle with Tomasso, the cat, for Tony, the canary, is quite thrilling. The scene is the beautiful garden of an old Spanish monastery, with its quaint monks and soothing quietude. By the author of "The plowwoman."

Heathcote, Ralph. Letters of a young diplomatist and soldier during the time of Napoleon, giving an account of the dispute between the Emperor and the Elector of Hesse; [ed.] by Countess Günther Gröben; with numerous illustrations. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 24+206 p. pors. pls. O. cl., **$5 net.

These letters, written a hundred years ago, have only recently quite by accident been brought to light. Ralph Heathcote belonged to an old English family. His father was British Minister at the courts of the Elector of Cologne and of Hesse-Cassel. He was born in Germany, where he spent the greater part of his childhood and youth; was in the English diplomatic service for a short time, and afterwards served as an officer in the British army. His letters, written to his mother, are chiefly interesting for the details given of historical events of his time, and comparisons made between English and German habits and customs of those days, and the lives of officers in the English and German armies.

Hervey, Arthur. Alfred Bruneau. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1907. 6+87 p. por. D. (Living masters of music; ed. by Rosa Newmarch.) cl., **$1 net.

This story originally appeared in "A little tragedy at Tien-Tsin," published in 1904 by Robert Grier Cooke. A Chinese boy is taken away from his parents to be educated, and in revenge an American child is kidnapped "allee same." The working out of these two lives is the story.

Matthews, Irma B. Under a circus tent. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1907.] c. 136 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

A lonely little boy, brought up in a circus, discovers one day that the animals can talk, the result being long conversations in which the lion, the bear, the elephant, the giraffe, and many other captives give him a great deal of information about their lives before captivity.

Meador, Herman Lee. Thro' the rye: more reflections by Herman Lee Meador; il. by his friends. Phil., Henry Altemus Co., [1907.] c. '06. 95 p. S. cl., 50 c.; ooze cf., $1, boxed.

Clever observations upon life in terms more often applied solely to bibulous amusements. The author begins with verses on "Green fields" and ends with "Red noses," yet he always speaks in the terms of Bacchus. His witty paragraphs are divided under the following headings, being the author's divisions of human life: "Sowing the grain" is youth, of course; "Moonshiners" are the lovmakers; "Off on a spree" is the wedding; "Blended spirits" is married life, and "Empty bottles" is the end of it.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LRYFOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 7, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

CATALOGUING FIFTEENTH CENTURY BOOKS.*

IN cataloguing a fifteenth century book the following points must be considered: (1) Name of author, or, if author's name is unknown a catchword subject; (2) title of book; (3) size and collation, giving the number of leaves and signatures, the paging, the number of lines to the page, the justification of the lines and the style of type; (4) plates, maps, the number of woodcuts, initials, miniatures and other decorations; (5) name and place of printer; (6) date; (7) binding and note of former ownership; and (8) bibliographical references to the book, and such other collateral information as may be within the reach or knowledge of the cataloguer.

The demands upon the bibliographer, it will be noted, are not so exacting as would appear at first sight; the points to be covered are to a certain extent identic with those which must be considered in cataloguing all books of a later period—the excess of detail being necessary because of the importance and scarcity of the earlier-printed book. Besides, in many cases, if not in all cases, it may be necessary to give but little thought to the drafting of the bibliographical form of the book, inasmuch as Panzer, Hain and his successors, Coppinger, Burger and Proctor, or Voynich, may already have relieved the present-day cataloguer of the necessity of setting up the title de novo. In any case, it will be advisable to refer to these authorities because they not only present the best models of cataloguing incunabula, but because frequent use and careful study of these helps will be of greater assistance in learning how to catalogue incunabula than will be a set of mere theoretical rules, however carefully drawn up.

In cataloguing the books that have already been noticed in any of the above-named bibliographies it will be necessary only to give a brief title with reference to whichever of the hand-books in which the book is first fully described, as it may be assumed that Hain's work, at least, is among the tools of every library, bookseller and collector interested in incunabula.

In case none of these standard works of reference give the needed information, * the bookseller will be obliged to depend upon the book in hand itself. In describing an early printed book, as E. Gordon Duff, in his work on "Early Printed Books," points out, care should always be taken not to confuse what is common to all copies of the book with what is specially the peculiarity of an individual copy. The description should therefore always be in two parts, the first general, that is the place, the date, the name of the printer, the size and collation, and the second special, that is an account of the binding, a list of the earlier owners and similar information.

In most cases incunabula have no title-pages in the modern sense of the word. The printed books generally begin, as did their predecessors, the manuscripts, with the text, and—if they give the information at all—usually give an indication of the character or contents of the work in the opening lines, beginning, as a rule, with the words: Incipit liber, or, Hier hebt sich an, etc. Occasionally the text is preceded with a preface, an epistle, or a so-called "register" or table of contents. In these sometimes the name of the author may be found. At other times this information is given in the explicit, colophon or rubrum at the end of the text, where the title, name of author, name and place of printer and publisher, date, etc., is recorded. Explicit derives its meaning from the fact that the end piece in most cases begins with the word explicit, "here ends;"

*Hain, for example, did not have opportunity to inspect personally all the books that he included in his excellent work and distinguishes with an asterisk [*] those which he actually had before him when collating.

*Continuation of "The Profession of Bookselling." Full credit for authorities quoted will be given on the conclusion of the article.

colophon is the Greek word for "the last," the end; and rubrum signifies that in the manuscripts the decorative end piece was written in red ink, or, at least, was underscored with red ink, and in the printed book was treated in the same manner. If any of the required information is missing at either end of the book it will be the duty of the conscientious bibliographer to supply the missing data. Should it be impossible to trace such information the hiatus must be indicated in brackets, ([,]) as sine loco, anno, et typogr., etc. Indeed, all information which is not derived from the title or book itself should be so indicated, and in cases where dates based on examination of water marks or other characteristics are supplied an interrogation point (?) should follow.

AN Iowa authoress has conferred a boon upon publishers and their readers—we mean their professional "tasters"—by relieving them of the necessity of wading through a whole manuscript. Her plan is described in the following letter:

"Appreciating the long delay in finding just the right publisher for a work when the author sends the manuscript from one publishing house to another, and realizing that often, no matter how excellent the subject matter, the particular class of material is not cared for by the publisher to whom it is submitted, I have thought it best to give you a brief synopsis of the theme and plot, and a few quotations from the different portions of the manuscript for which I seek a publisher; then in case you are sufficiently interested to care to read the entire manuscript I shall be glad to forward it to you.

"I trust if you feel there is even the slightest chance of your finding it suited to your wants, you will allow me to send you the book with the assurance that the complete work is of the same quality as the 'sample.'"

The plan will no doubt commend itself to publishers as a labor-saving device in transmitting such manuscripts to the waste-paper basket.

WE are about to close the list of forthcoming books for our Fall Announcement number, and therefore request those publishers who have not already sent us their announcements to send us promptly word of the books they may have in preparation. The forthcoming publishing season again promises to be a big one, and the prompt issue of the Fall Announcement number will materially assist the bookseller in becoming acquainted in advance with the books with which he is expected to stock up.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT CONFERENCE AT BERNE.

THE international conference of literary and artistic ownership was held in Berne the latter part of August. The report, which will be placed before the next official diplomatic congress at Berlin in 1908, will ask that the protection of copyright extend fifty years after the death of an author, and that it shall exclude architectural photographic work and newspaper and review articles.

The congress was particularly anxious that publishers and composers should be protected against manufacturers of mechanical musical instruments who avail themselves of an article in the convention of 1886, which allows manufacturers of street organs and musical boxes the free employment of the works of composers.

The conference voted that phonograph companies should also pay the composers and publishers of the music used.

THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION COMMITTEE ON COPYRIGHT.

At the meeting of the American Bar Association, held at Portland, Me., the last week in August, the committee on copyright of the association reported as follows, through Arthur Steuart, of Baltimore, chairman:

"The two bills now pending, one before the House and one before the Senate, differ slightly in some particulars. The Senate bill is somewhat broader and more comprehensive than the House bill. The proposed legislation includes certain general features which are worked out in detail in the bill. These features may be summarized as follows:

1. A broadening of the subject of copyright to include all classes of works, which can be included within the constitutional term "Writings of an author."

2. The recognition of a right of property in all the works of an author before, as well as after, publication, provided a notice of claim of copyright is impressed upon or attached to the work at the time of publication.

The requirement for registration of title is dispensed with, but two copies of the best edition are required to be deposited with the Librarian of Congress, and the Register of Copyrights is given the right to call for these copies if they are not so deposited, and a penalty is imposed upon the copyright proprietor for failure to comply with such notice.

3. The extension of the subject of copyright to include "all forms of record in which the thought of an author may be recorded, and from which it may be read or reproduced."

The intention of this language is to include all means of reproducing copyright music, such as phonograph disks and pianola records.

4. The character of the notice required by the statute is greatly shortened and simplified.

5. The remedies provided for infringement of copyright are consolidated, simplified and expanded. Formerly the infringers of dramatic works and musical works were punished criminally, while the infringers of books, works of art, and other subjects of copyright are not so punished. Now all classes of infringement are placed on the same footing, and wilful infringement is made a criminal offense. Civil remedies are also provided of a comprehensive nature.

6. The rights of aliens are enlarged to the extent that any person resident in any part of the world may obtain American copyright by first, or contemporaneously with its first publication in a foreign country, publishing his work within the limits of the United States.

"This places the United States law of copyright upon a par with that of Great Britain and some other foreign countries.

"This bill as now framed is comprehensive and quite complete, and it is believed that if passed it will mark a distinct advance in the protection of this class of property.

"Both of the bills were reported to Congress at the last session. It is the intention of those interested to reintroduce the bills as soon as Congress convenes and to press them for passage.

"The principal difference between the bills lies in the fact that the Senate bill included specifically the protection of musical copyright against reproductions by phonograph discs or pianola records. While the House bill does not extend the law in this particular, this difference was due not to any difference of opinion between the committees as to the propriety of protecting musical copyright to this extent, but the House committee felt that the language of the present law, which they have adhered to, might be broad enough to include such copies, and as there is now pending in the Supreme Court a case involving this question, they preferred to wait until the court has expressed its opinion before attempting to change the statute in this particular. The Senate committee felt that the proposition was inherently right, and that therefore it could do no harm to express it in the statute.

"The bill will be pending again before the next Congress, and your committee may be able to aid in securing its passage; therefore the committee would be glad to be continued."

The association also endorsed the plan for a Court of Patent Appeals consisting of five judges, four to be designated by the Supreme Court from the circuit and district courts, and the presiding judge to be appointed from the Supreme Court, for terms of six years, the court to sit in Washington and to have jurisdiction also of copyright appeals.

BOOK BINDING THAT ATTRACTS.

"THE color of a book's cover helps to sell it," said a publisher to a representative of the Philadelphia Bulletin. "If a row of books stands on a counter every visitor will examine first the volume with the strongest, brightest binding—that is to say, the volume bound in red.

"After red, a good clear shade of green is the most catchy color. Then comes blue, then gray."

THE FOUNDERS OF THE DIME NOVELS.

CHARLES M. HARVEY, in the July issue of The Atlantic Monthly, in an article on "The Dime Novel in American Life," gives the following facts relating to the pioneers in the field of publishing cheap fiction:

"Soon after the middle of the nineteenth century the Beadles began selling ten-cent books, each a complete work in its field. They comprised manuals of games of many kinds, family medicine, etiquette, letter-writing, dreams, cookery, prose and poetical quotations, and so on. Most of these attained such a sale that the publication of little books on American adventure suggested itself.

"Irwin P. Beadle, his brother, Erastus F. Beadle, and Robert Adams were the founders of the Beadle publications. Orville J. Victor was the editor. Beadle's dime novels, issued once in each month at first, but much oftener subsequently, made their appearance in 1860.

... These little books ranged from 25,000 to 30,000 words, or about a third of the average bound novel of to-day. Conveniently shaped for the pocket, they promptly became an inseparable part of the outfit of the boy, (and to some extent of the girl also,) of the period. Their paper covers were salmon-colored. And they were just as free from yellowness on the inside as they were on the outside.

"Orville J. Victor organized victory for the house of Beadle. ... Rules of possibility, morality and action in the narrative were laid down by him, which all writers had to observe. Mr. Victor himself, who, at the age of eighty, is to-day not only alive but also mentally and physically alert, had done some good journalistic and literary work before the first of Beadle's novels was issued. He had edited two or three papers, was a leading contributor to Graham's Magazine, and had written short biographies of Paul Jones, Israel Putnam and other American heroes. ..."

Among the contributors to the Beadle series in the beginning were Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Harry Cavendish, Mrs. Metta V. Victor, (the editor's wife;) Colonel A. J. H. Duganne and Mrs. Mary A. Denison. "One day in the fall of 1860," to continue Mr. Harvey's narrative, "a bustling youth of twenty crossed from the wilds of New Jersey, entered the office at 141 William Street, New York, and laid a manuscript on the desk of Editor Victor. It was a great moment in the annals of the house of Beadle. The boy was Edward S. Ellis. The manuscript told of the adventures of 'Seth Jones, or, the Captive of the Frontier,' the most successful novel which ever bore the Beadle imprint. ... Believing that this tale could be made a 'best seller,' the counting-room rose to the occasion with Napoleonic audacity. One morning the residents of most of the big towns of the United States found staring at them from gutters and dead walls the words, "Seth Jones," which were followed a week afterward by "Who's Seth Jones?" The book's appearance on the news-stands in immense stacks a few days later answered that query. The booming and plaudits of its readers quickly exhausted several editions, and sent the sales ultimately up to more than 600,000 copies in half a dozen languages.

"Maum Guinea," by Mrs. Metta V. Victor, a tale of slave life, which according to President Lincoln, "was as absorbing as 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,'" and which was reviewed by the New York Tribune, Evening Post and other prominent papers, sold to the extent of upwards of 100,000 copies and was translated into several languages.

"The Civil War, which started about three-quarters of a year after the advent of Beadle's novels, opened a new and vast market for them. In their leisure moments the soldiers craved cheap and exciting reading. Beadle bundled it like bales of hay and sent it to them in carloads. And, in their rate of increase, the carloads kept step with the expanding armies. . . .

"Prosperity killed Beadle. He would have done better had he done worse. The streams of money which flowed to him made 141 William Street seem, to some envious persons, like a branch of Secretary Chase's United States Treasury. Rivals sprang up in New York, Boston, Chicago and other places, who pandered to passions which Beadle shunned. These soon began to take away many of his patrons, and with the hope of regaining his ascendancy he lowered the tone of his publications. It was vain. The days of his supremacy never returned.

"The blow which hit Beadle first and hardest came from his own household. 'Over there is a man,' said Erastus F. Beadle, the head of the firm, one day, to one of his leading contributors, 'who will be content with his routine work forever.' He referred to George Munro, who was a bookkeeper for the house. The original partners had by that time been reduced in number by the withdrawal of Irwin P. Beadle, leaving in the concern Erastus F. Beadle and Robert Adams. Less than a year after Beadle passed this judgment Munro stepped out, hunted up Irwin P. Beadle, and the two began publishing Munro's Ten Cent Novels. That was in 1866. With the Munro competition began the decline and fall of the house of Beadle.

"Munro's novels won a large patronage from the start, and in connection with these he drifted into other fields of publication, establishing the Fireside Companion in 1867, and beginning the Seaside Library in 1877. The latter contained the work of many foreign writers of ability. At the time of his death in 1896 Munro had amassed a fortune of ten million dollars.

"Beadle's pocket-form publications were changed into the large folio page Beadle Dime Library in 1876, and the name Beadle and Adams still figures on dime and half-dime publications issued by N. J. Ivers & Company, New York. But the glory of the house of Beadle vanished when the pocket-form tales passed on."

In answer to the question, "What did the dime novel stand for?" Mr. Harvey says: "The aim of the original dime novel was to give, in cheap and wholesome form, a picture of American wild life. At the time when it began to be published, 1860, less than fifteen years had passed since the country's boundary had been pushed from the Sabine, the Red and the Arkansas rivers, and the Rocky Mountains, onward to the Pacific. In that decade and a half we had gained Texas, Oregon, New Mexico and California, and had enlarged the national area to an extent equal to that of the entire territory east of the Mississippi. A real frontier in 1860 along the line of the Missouri and the Arkansas, with thousands of fighting Indians beyond that line, and some of them east of it, gave the reader an ardent concern in the adventures in "Ma-laeska," "Seth Jones," "Massasoit," and other tales which told of life when the frontier was in New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. These tales had both contemporaneity and vitality.

"As editor I sought the best of work of the best writers in that particular field of action," said Mr. Victor a few years ago to the author of this article. "All was up to an excellent standard of literary merit. The detective and love story came later, when rank competition on the ten-cent trade made it seem necessary to introduce these elements. Almost without exception the original dime novels were good. Their moral was high. All were clean and instructive."

HOMER MERRIAM'S NINETY-FOURTH BIRTHDAY.

HOMER MERRIAM, well known as the head of the G. & C. Merriam Company, of Springfield, Mass., celebrated his ninety-fourth birthday on August 27, at the home of his son, Arthur G. Merriam, of Pasadena, Cal. Mr. Merriam, although very much advanced in years, is still strong and well and is enjoying life in California, where he has been for some time. His birthday was quietly celebrated. Mr. Merriam was born at North Brookfield, Mass., where he learned the printing trade at the same place where his ancestors for many years had learned it before him. When a young man he became associated with his brother in a bookstore and bindery at Greenfield, Mass., and a few years later the two brothers started a similar store at Troy, N. Y., where he remained for twelve years. In 1856 he joined with two other brothers, George and Charles, in the G. & C. Merriam Company, with which concern he was actively connected until about three years ago. George Merriam died in 1880, aged seventy-seven, and Charles died seven years later at the age of eighty. Mr. Merriam has three children living—Mrs. H. C. Rowley, of Springfield, Mass., Henry H. Merriam, of Worcester, and Arthur G. Merriam, with whom he is now living at Pasadena. Mr. Merriam also has seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Mr. Merriam resigned the active management of the Merriam Company soon after going to Pasadena, but he still holds a large part of the capital stock of the company.

BLACK LETTERING BREAKS PLATE GLASS.

THE hazard of black paint on plate glass is, it appears, by no means inconsiderable. Signs painted on plate glass done in solid black paint are in point of fact extra hazardous, as plate glass insurance companies have discovered to their cost. The practice of painting signs of this kind seems innocent enough, but the experience of conservative casualty companies fully justifies them in refusing to write such windows. The explanation of the hazard under consideration is to be looked for in the property of a black surface to absorb the sun's rays, by means of which, according to a writer in Rough Notes, an unequal expansion is produced throughout the plate and under the influence of a sudden gust of cold air or any other sudden change in temperature, a strain is developed which shatters the plate glass bearing the black paint. All black-painted signs on plate glass, no matter with what exposure, must be considered as hazardous risks.

RECENT POPULAR ENGLISH FICTION.

ACCORDING to the London Book Monthly the following fiction was most in demand in England during July and August:

Delicia, and Other Stories, by Marie Corelli.
The Botor Chaperon, by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, a romance of a pair of merry maids, a motor boat, a chaperon and the eternal ingredient love-making, all invitingly worked into a Dutch background.

The Marriage Lease, by Frankfort Moore, a "story of a social experiment," written with epigram and ease.

The Lodestar, by Max Pemberton, a romance of an East End boy, a Hampstead millionaire, Polish revolution and Russian terrorism.

Me and Myn, by S. R. Crockett, a story of love and postage stamp collecting.

The Count's Chauffeur, by William Le Queux, a sensational tale, the Count a jewel robber.

POSTAL MATTERS.

SECOND-CLASS MATTER WITH ILLEGAL INSERTS SUBJECT TO FIRST-CLASS RATE.

THE following notice was issued from the New York post-office on September 3:

TO PUBLISHERS: In connection with a circular letter of this office dated July 1, 1905, transmitting the order of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General dated June 26, 1905 (printed below), in which it was stated that samples of paper in periodicals would subject copies to postage at the fourth-class rate (one cent an ounce), you are informed that under an opinion of the Assistant Attorney-General for the Post Office Department it is held that illegal enclosures mailed with matter of the second-class subject the whole matter to postage at the first-class rate—two cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce—and not to the fourth-class rate as fixed in the order.

The order referred to above and extracts from the opinion of the Assistant Attorney-General for the Post Office Department relative to the application thereof are as follows:

ILLEGAL ENCLOSURES IN PERIODICALS.

OFFICE OF THIRD ASST P. M. GENERAL,

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26, 1905.

To all Postmasters: Periodicals mailed at the second-class rates are being made the vehicle or cover for the transmission of samples of paper (merchandise) to the detriment of the postal revenue from matter of the fourth class.

This is accomplished by printing advertisements upon sheets of the paper to which the advertisements relate and attaching them as advertising pages to the periodicals. The effect of this is that actual, tangible exhibits of stock, such as waxed papers, oiled papers, glazed papers, tissue papers, writing papers, cover papers, wall papers, wrapping papers, etc., etc., are passing in the mails at the rates provided by law for matter of the second class only.

This is an abuse of the second-class mailing privilege and will not be permitted. On and after Sept. 1, next, all publications containing such exhibits of paper will be charged with the fourth-class rate, regardless of the fact that such specimens or exhibits purport to be, and are inserted as "advertisements." The authority for surference until the date named is conferred by section 484, P. L. & R.

When, after Sept. 1, it can be determined from the advertisement, or the advertisement and the paper taken together, that it is printed upon the stock advertised to the end that the texture, finish, tensile strength, etc., thereof may be examined, it will be held to be merchandise and subject to the fourth class rate, regardless of any device or evasiveness in the language of the advertisement thereon. Care must be taken not to misapply this rule in cases where papers of different color or grade are used for the sole purpose of improving the appearance of advertisements.

As evidently contemplated by this order, and in reason, the proper test is whether the person receiving the advertisement understands that it is in fact a sample. The statements of the publisher and advertiser, while entitled to consideration, are not controlling. Neither can the fact of physical attachment to the magazine change the characteristics of matter inherently of the fourth class. In Conant v. The Postmaster-General, decided by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia (Equity No. 24,861), it was said:

"The law must not only, however, be honestly executed by the department itself, but it must be honestly and faithfully obeyed by the person who is seeking to obtain the benefit of its privilege. He cannot evade it by any sort of device. He must show the utmost good faith."

EDWARD M. MORGAN, Postmaster.

SIXTY PER CENT. REDUCTION IN FOREIGN POSTAGE.

POSTMASTER MORGAN has received an official bulletin from the department in Washington in which is printed an order from the Postmaster General arranging for the new foreign postal rates which are to go into effect the 1st of October, and which were agreed upon in the Universal Postal Union in Rome in May of last year.

The United States letter writers will have one big advantage under the new foreign agreement. Foreign postage, which has heretofore been 5 cents for a letter weighing a half ounce, will now be 5 cents for an ounce weight and 3 cents for each additional ounce. The rate as it now stands is 5 cents for the first half ounce and 5 cents for each additional half ounce.

Letters sent abroad which weighed two ounces cost 20 cents under the old rate, and the same weight will now go for 8 cents, a saving of 60 per cent. to those who like to make their letters voluminous, who have lots to tell, and like plenty of stationery on which to tell it. The crisp, word-sparing, adjectiveless and ungossipy letter writer will save nothing.

Another and important change of consequence will be in the system of return postage coupons, which will go into effect on October 1. Persons desiring to inclose return postage to their correspondents abroad will be able to purchase at the post offices in this country a coupon for 6 cents which will be redeemed in certain foreign countries and converted into 5 cents' worth of foreign stamps. This is, in a way, an international money system. The turning of 5 cents American postage into 5 cents foreign on the other side costs only 1 cent, about enough to cover the expense of exchange and printing.

In the order received here the other countries which have agreed to accept this coupon system of exchange of postage are given as follows:

Germany, the German Protectorate and German post offices in Asia, Africa and Australasia; Austria and the Austrian post offices in the Levant; Belgium, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Brazil, Bulgaria, Chile, Korea, Costa Rica, Crete, Denmark and the Danish Antilles; Egypt, Spain, France, the French post offices in Morocco, and the French colonies except Madagascar, Magotte, Mohele and establishments in India; Great Britain and the British colonies except Orange River, Antigua, Barbados, Bermuda, Cyprus, Falkland Islands, British Guiana, Jamaica, Southern Nigeria, Sarawak, Trinidad and Zanzibar; Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Republic of Honduras, Hungary, Japan and Japanese post offices in China and Manchuria; Luxemburg, Mexico, New Zealand, Norway, the Netherlands and the Netherlands Indies; Roumania, Siam, Sweden, Switzerland and Tunis.

All of these coupons will finally land in the International Bureau at Berne, Switzerland, where they will be redeemed by the various nations providing them to their subjects or citizens.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

"RITA," (Mrs. W. Desmond Humphreys,) has lately completed a new novel entitled "A Man of No Importance," which Hurst & Blackett, of London, will issue early in the fall. This will make at least her fiftieth book since she first tried her hand at authorship, for she began to write at an early age.

WHILE Thomas Dixon, Jr., has become identified in literature with the great question of the South, this subject is by no means the only one which interests him, and he is now planning his next book, which will deal with an entirely different theme, that of Socialism. Mr. Dixon considers the negro problem and Socialism the two greatest questions in the United States.

PERSONAL NOTES.

CHARLES W. COE has resigned his position as manager of the Congregational Bookstore, of Chicago, and connected himself with A. C. McClurg & Co. He will represent that firm on the road, carrying their own publications and a general book line.

R. K. SMITH, so long connected with A. C. McClurg & Co., has established himself in permanent quarters at 156 Fifth Avenue, New York, where he will carry a full line of samples of A. C. McClurg & Co.'s publications, and will be glad to see his many friends. Mr. Smith has for several years past covered the Eastern territory with the books of his firm.

OLD BOOK NOTES.

FEW books have become so scarce and valuable as the first edition of Walton's "Compleat Angler," published in 1653 at one shilling and sixpence. A fine copy is worth £1000 or more—in fact one was sold in London last spring at Sotheby's by auction for over £1200. We understand the same firm may have a complete set of the five editions published in Walton's lifetime for sale in October or November next.

A CAXTON MISSING.—The London Daily News reports that a Caxton first edition, "The Golden Legend," which had been housed in the Free Reference Library, King Street, Manchester, Eng., since 1864, is missing. Left in one of the rooms some little time ago, it has disappeared, and all search for it has proved abortive. It may have been mislaid, or accidentally packed up with books sent out, and a description has been circulated to antiquaries and book dealers. It is bound in dark-colored calf, and is an imperfect copy.

LORD AMHERST'S LIBRARY TO BE SOLD.—No event of the year will be more notable to book collectors than the sale in December, at Sotheby's, of Lord Amherst's splendid library at Didlington Hall. Lord Amherst of Hackney, who is not to be confounded with Earl Amherst, spent nearly fifty years in bringing together this collection, which he is now obliged to sell because of the loss through a dishonest solicitor of nearly $500,000. It has for its special gems no less than seventeen Caxtons, the most precious of them being Lefevre's "Recuyell of the Histories of Troye," being probably the only perfect copy extant.

RARE AMERICANA FOR THE BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.—Three important accessions to the Americana in the Boston Public Library are announced by the Boston Transcript as having been received through Henry Stevens, Son & Stiles, of London. Two of these relate to Quakers in Massachusetts, the more important being "A Demonstration of True Love unto You the Rulers of the Colony of Massachusetts," by William Coddington, 1674, a pamphlet of twenty pages, of which no copy is in the British Museum. Unfortunately, the last leaf is in facsimile. The second is Samuel Gorton's "Antidote against the Common Plague of the World," London, 1657, of which copies are in the British Museum and the John Carter Brown Library, of Providence, R. I. The third is a tract relative to the dispute between Governor Dudley and others in the colony, "The Deplorable State of New England by reason of a Covetous and Treacherous Governour and Pusillanimous Counselors, with a Vindication of the Hon. Mr. Higginson," etc., London, 1708. Of the last, only five copies have occurred in the open market during the past thirty years. Another rarity is Henry Pelham's map of Boston, published in London in 1777. Only seven copies are known. It is not to be found in the Boston, John Carter Brown, Lenox, New York Historical, or the Congress Libraries, whilst the copy at Harvard is imperfect. It represents accurately not only the Boston of its period, but also the exact position of the British and American troops before the evacuation of Boston. W. A. Butterfield, the Boston bookseller, lately obtained a copy of this map, and has had it engraved in facsimile.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

M. A. VINSON, 205 Caxton Building, Cleveland, O., is now the American agent for the Academy Architecture and Architectural Review, edited by Alex. Koch. The periodical, now in its thirty-first volume, is published twice a year, in January and in July.

THE publishers of McClure's Magazine are considering the advisability of increasing the price of that periodical from ten to fifteen cents. They have asked opinions of newsdealers all over the country, and it is said that in most cases the dealers recommend the advance in price.

POST-CARD NOTES.

A POST-CARD SHOW is to be a feature of the National Business Show to be held in New York in the Madison Square Garden from October 12 to 19, and in Chicago from November 9 to 16. It is promised by the management that post-cards from every part of the world will be shown.

THE DETROIT PUBLISHING COMPANY has brought out a line of "art nouveau" post-cards, six cards to a set, in a neat envelope bearing the title and a suitable inscription, to retail for twenty-five cents the set. The titles of the cards are Sensibility, Fragility, Elusiveness, L'Envoi, Inconsistency and Beauty.

BUSINESS NOTES.

AUSTIN, TEX.—H. A. Moos has opened a branch store at 1004 Congress Avenue. His specialty will be rare and out-of-print books and the branch will be in charge of Roland E. Kreuz, who has been connected with Mr. Moos for a number of years and thoroughly understands the old book business. Mr. Moos would like to receive catalogues of dealers in old books as well as the latest catalogues of publishers.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The assets of the Otis Book Company are placed at $14,000 and the liabilities at $10,000. Up to this year the concern has had the book selling concession at the Chautauqua assembly. The loss of this concession was what induced the failure.

CHELSEA, S. D.—Charles M. Mortenson has opened a new department store and will stock up with books and stationery.

GENEVA, IND.—Porter & Anderson, druggists, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by Anderson & Knipper.

MONTGOMERY CITY, MO.—It is reported that a voluntary application in bankruptcy has been made in the United States District Court by the Thompson Book and News Company. The liabilities are estimated at $1485.

NEW YORK CITY.—Sherwood's Supply House, to deal in novelties, etc., has been incorporated by R. E. Sherwood and Pauline F. Sherwood, of 144 Fulton Street, and Anna B. Graham, of 310 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

PAOLA, KAN.—D. M. Hays has sold out his interest in the Miami County Book and News Co.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The Albert Janits Company, booksellers, have dissolved partnership, J. C. Golden retiring from the firm.

SACO, ME.—L. M. Staebler, bookseller, it is reported, has made an assignment.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—B. G. Eichelberger has accepted a position in the retail book department of D. A. Callahan. Mr. Eichelberger would be pleased to meet his old friends in the trade when visiting Salt Lake City, and to receive current trade lists, etc.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—Seng & Church, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by the Texas Book and Stationery Co.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Cunningham, Curtiss & Welch are taking possession of their new building at 565-567 Market Street. The store occupies almost the whole of the first floor, the offices being at the rear of the ground floor, and separated from the store by glass partitions. The offices are well lighted from the Stevenson Street side. The ground floor as a whole is divided into two sections, one of which is used for books and the other for stationery. The firm has found business good all summer, and say that people all over the country are buying largely and paying up well. Good reports are also heard from the Los Angeles branch.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Walter S. Johnson and A. H. Kothler, formerly of the Johnson News Co., have sold out their interests in that concern and have purchased the stationery store of Cooper & Co.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—John J. Newbegin, bookseller, has moved to his permanent location at 242 Market Street.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Charles D. Raymer has bought out the Seattle Book Exchange at 1522 First Avenue and changed the name to Raymer's Old Book Store, and desires to be put on the mailing lists of publishers, wholesalers and others.

WENATCHEE, WASH.—Gideon Berger, bookseller, has been succeeded by C. H. Armstrong.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE REILLY & BRITTON Co., Chicago, announce that the sales of their Teddy Bear books, up to September 2, total 685,798.

ROBERT HARDING COMPANY, INC., 10-14 South Eleventh St., Richmond, Va., have in preparation "Little Guideposts in the Way to Life," by Edward Leigh Pell.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have ready a fifth edition of 5000 copies of Eliza Calvert Hall's "Aunt Jane of Kentucky," a book recommended highly by the President.

D. APPLETON & Co. announce a first edition of 100,000 copies of Robert W. Chambers's new novel, "The Younger Set," which has already been well received by the press.

THE RONALD PRESS Co., New York, have just issued "Financing an Enterprise," by Francis Cooper, a manual of information and suggestion for promoters, investors and business men generally.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have in press a volume by Ralph Waldo Trine, entitled "This Mystical Life of Ours," a selection of that forceful writer's ablest thought, arranged by himself in fifty-two chapters for the weeks of the year.

THE HILL PUBLISHING COMPANY have just issued "Grinding and Lapping: Tools, Processes and Fixtures," by Joseph V. Woodworth, a book wholly up to date, with text carefully and concisely arranged and a profusion of explanatory illustrations.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE will open the fall and winter season with a dinner to be given at the Aldine Association on the evening of October 9. At a meeting of the Board of Managers a report was made that upwards of 3000 volumes had been collected from the various publishing houses for the Grenfell Association, and that the finances of the League are in a flourishing condition. Two new members were elected.

LEMCKE & BUECHNER, by arrangement with Eugen Diederichs, of Jena, will bring out in the fall "Deutsches Leben der Vergangenheit in Bildern," an atlas with about 1800 reproductions of old copperplates and woodcuts, illustrating the German customs, art, etc., from the 15th to the 18th centuries. The work forms the conclusion of the illustrated series of Monographien zur deutschen Kulturgeschichte, and will be complete in about eighteen parts or two volumes.

SINGER & COMPANY, 1 Madison Avenue, New York, have in preparation an "International Insurance Encyclopedia," a reference work to be complete in six octavo volumes of about 700 illustrated pages each. In addition to the editorial board, of which Dr. Isidore Singer is the managing editor, an advisory board of eminent insurance men from all parts of the world will assist in the responsibility of producing the work. It will be remembered that Dr. Singer was the projector and managing editor of the "Jewish Encyclopædia"

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD will publish in November a new book by Charles Clark Munn, entitled "Boyhood Days on the Farm," to be illustrated by Frank T. Merrill. This book is not a juvenile, but rather for all ages, and will be of particular interest to the many successful men who have passed a similar boyhood. Common sports and merrymakings, the pleasures of woods and waters, and the life of a country boy, with its tasks, enjoyments, and ambitions have never yet been so fully and impressively told as they will be found to be by Mr. Munn.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD & Co. have just issued an interesting contribution to economic discussion by Henry Carey Baird, entitled "John Sherman: a Critical Examination of His Claims to Statesmanship," an essay in which Mr. Baird, speaking from keen observation and long experience, may give some new thoughts even to the most up-to-date of our large colleges, now making so strong a feature of economics. The house has also nearly ready a new edition of Brant's "Dry Cleaner, Scourer and Garment-Dyer," with many new additional recipes, which will be issued next month.

SOME curious statistics are issued by the Macmillan Company in connection with the publication of their new annual catalogue. The total number of titles included is 5758, and there are 2776 authors represented—an average of a little more than two books to an author. A glance at the catalogue shows a large number of authors who have produced only a single book, usually in some special scientific or technical field. When the number of such works is taken into consideration, the average seems large enough, and indicates that authors do not always wander so restlessly from one publisher to another, as is frequently supposed.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have taken over by arrangement with J. B. Lippincott Company, the Hon. Charles F. Warwick's important work on "Mirabeau and the French Revolution." They have in preparation a companion volume to the above to be entitled "Danton and the French Revolution," which will be issued some time next year, to be followed later by "Robespierre and the French Revolution." While each volume will be complete in itself, they are so planned that the three together will form a complete history of that turbulent period in the history of France that preceded, accompanied and followed the French Revolution.

THE LEGAL LITERATURE COMPANY, of Chicago, will issue early in September the fourth and last volume in the legal series which has been written by Henry S. Wilcox, of the Chicago Bar, on the shortcomings of judges, lawyers, juries and defects of the law. The volumes published last year are entitled "Foibles of the Bench, Foibles of the Bar and Fraillties of the Jury." This volume will be entitled "Fallacies of the Law." This completes the undertaking which Mr. Wilcox essayed more than a year ago, and if the coming volume is as praiseworthy as the previous ones, the series cannot fail to be a notable one and prove a public benefaction.

JOHN LANE COMPANY will bring out this month a volume entitled "Poetry and Progress in Russia," by Rosa Newmarch, a profusely illustrated biography of the living Russian poets, students and thinkers, containing examples of their work, with reproductions of their photographs. They have just brought out "Big Game Shooting on the Equator," by Captain F. A. Dickinson, illustrated with reproductions of rare photographs taken in the African jungles. The book contains valuable biological information, with descriptions of many comparatively unknown animals, showing photographs of the same. This will appeal to the student and librarian as well as the sportsman.

THE BOOK SUPPLY COMPANY, Chicago, will issue September 10 "The Shepherd of the Hills," by Harold Bell Wright, author of "That Printer of Udell's." It is a story of life among the Osarks of Southwestern Missouri, and the author makes them flesh and blood people and describes their beautiful country with poetry and enthusiasm. The shepherd is the power for good all through the tale in which rough men and elemental passions battle. His heroine, "Sammy" Lane, is a beautiful woman, brave enough to be the sweetheart of "the strongest man of the hills." Mr. Wright has been a missionary among these people. The publishers are sure of great demand, and begin the supply with an edition of 25,000 copies.

BREWER, BARSE & Co., a new publishing firm at 300 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, start out with the following announcements: "Billy Whiskers, Jr., and His Chums," "Billy Whiskers' Friends," and "Santa Claus' Twin Brothers," three new books for young people, by Frances Trego Montgomery, with illustrations in colors and black and white by Hugo von Hofsten; also, The Rainy Day Series, six famous classics for children. For older readers they have four books on entertainments compiled by Paul Pierce—"Dinners and Luncheons," "Suppers," "Breakfasts and Teas," and "Parties and Entertainments"—each one full of hints and new ideas for those desiring something to replace the old worn-out ideas, carefully prepared by the editor of "What to Eat."

SOMETIMES the delver in old manuscripts makes a most enviable discovery. Who would not rejoice to have had the experience of M. Pierre Champion! He was making researches in the history of François Villon, in order to supplement, if possible, the discoveries of the late Marcel Schwob, and in the midst of his labors fate vouchsafed him a work in manuscript which he presently identified as containing the poems of Charles d'Orléans, written in the poet's own hand and bearing his corrections. Among the poems are several in English, hitherto unknown. M. Champion, who is preparing the manuscript for the press, will do his best to settle the question as to whether these poems were composed by Charles d'Orléans or were copied by him from an English poet.

W. W. BLAKE, Calle Jalapa 1419, Mexico City, has just brought out a posthumous work by Don Joaquín García Icazbalceta, entitled "Informe sobre los Establecimientos de Beneficencia y Corrección de esta Capital; su estado actual; noticia de sus fondos; reformas que desde luego necesitan y plan general de su arreglo, presentado por José María Andrade. Mexico, 1864," edited by Luis García Fimentel. This forms the fifth volume of the series including (v. 1) "Memoriales de Fray Toribio de Motolinia," (v. 2) "Relación de los Obispos," (v. 3) "Mis Memorias Intimas, 1825-1829," por Aviraneta, and (v. 4) "Apuntes de la Vida de Guridi, 1801-1802," and is a report that was furnished to Emperor Maximilian on the hospitals and jails of Mexico City, containing much historical and statistical data.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will immediately issue "The Mistress of Bonaventure," by Harold Bindloss, author of "Alton of Somasco," "The Dust of Conflict," etc. An unauthorized edition of the same book is announced in this country at a dollar net. The Stokes Company were the first American publishers to recognize the excellence of the stirring fiction of this now successful novelist, and are his only authorized publishers here. As a lesson to poachers on their preserves they have quickly prepared an edition of the novel at fifty cents. It is equal in quality of manufacture, nevertheless, to much of the $1.50 fiction nowadays brought out. The story deals with life among the cattle ranchers of the Northwest, and is full of thrilling incidents. As a love story it is one of the author's best.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY will publish on September 11 "Memoirs of an Arabian Princess," by the daughter of the Sultan of Muscat and Zanzibar, translated by Lionel Strachey; "Alice in Blunderland," by John Kendrick Bangs, an irresistibly humorous fantasy on municipal ownership; "The Uprising of the Many," by Charles Russell, the mission of which claims to be "salvation from political corruption, money-madness and the manifold ills that modern so-called civilization is heir to;" "Famous Stories Every Child Should Know," edited by Hamilton Wright Mabie; "The Road to Happiness," by Mrs. Van Court Schuyler, who has a practical, common-sense way of looking on the bright side of everyday affairs; also, a work on "Artificial Soft Paste Porcelain," by Edwin Barber, in their Art Primers series.

CLAUDE GIGNOUX, 7 Rue Godin, Nîmes, France, has brought out a work on "Icaria and Its Founder—Etienne Cabet," by Professor Jules Prudhommeaux. Of the many communistic societies founded in America during the nineteenth century, none has been of wider repute than that of Icaria. From 1848 to 1898 its founder, Etienne Cabet, and his disciples have marked their way through Texas, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and California. The first part of the book provides complete information on the life of E. Cabot and on the evolution of the communistic systems at the beginning of the past century. Both for its historical accuracy and for its impartial criticism this book has been highly praised by Professor Espinas in his report to the Institute of France. The volume contains twelve illustrations, one facsimile and two maps. The price is $1.70.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish shortly a new book of "Sandman" stories by William J. Hopkins. This time the "Sandman" tells "ship" stories of the days when the East India trade was at its height. Each story begins with the same paragraph—"Once upon a time"—a method which made the two volumes of "Farm" stories so fascinating to children. They will add to their very successful Travel Lovers' Library a work in two volumes by A. M. and J. W. Cruickshank, on "The Umbrian Cities of Italy." Assisi, Perugia, Orvieto and the neighboring towns possess much artistic and historic interest, and the illustrations, many of them from private photographs, show great beauty and picturesqueness of landscape. They also will publish in September Mary C. Crawford's "Old New England Inns," a volume of exceeding interest and peculiar charm.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will begin this month the publication of a set of books for children under the general title of The Children's Hour. It will consist of ten volumes of stories, selected and arranged by Eva March Tappan. There are fairy tales ranging all the way from those of Germany and the Norse countries to India and Japan; there are classical tales from the Greek and Latin, and the myths of all ages; there are tales of the legendary heroes of the Middle Ages—King Arthur, Siegfried, Beowulf and Roland; while "Pilgrim's Progress," "Robinson Crusoe," "Gulliver," "Don Quixote," "The Arabian Nights," "Baron Munchausen" and Shakespeare are not neglected. There is a volume of adventures and achievements containing many true stories of valorous deeds. One volume is devoted to poetry, and the final volume is devoted to some of the best of the modern stories. Each volume will be adequately illustrated.

FREEMAN H. NEWHALL, 39 Commercial Street, Lynn, Mass., is taking up subscriptions for a privately printed work, entitled "The Memorial Volume of the 275th Anniversary of the First Congregational Church, Lynn, Mass." The work will contain much material, hitherto unpublished, of value to those interested in our colonial history, including a full account of the separation of town and parish, March 5, 1721-22, with many citations of the action taken by both parties at the time, this being the first instance of such separation in the Massachusetts Bay Colony; an illustrated description and critique of the Communion Set, which is one of the best examples of Colonial silver, and a list of ministers from 1632, with their colleges, dates of ordination (or installation), dismissal by council and death; also, the necrology and election of church and parish officers to date. This has never been published. The work will be ready this month in an edition of 200 copies at $1.25 each, postpaid.

THE HENRY ALTEMUS COMPANY, Philadelphia, will bring out in October the articles entitled "Your Savings," by Isaac F. Marcossion, which have been appearing in the Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia. The material has been brought together and revised by the author and will be issued in book form under the title of "How to Invest Your Savings." This department has been one of the most successful in the history of the Post and has attracted wide and favorable comment and interest. Among the chapters will be "Savings by System," "The A B C of Investment," "How to Invest," "Bonds," "Stocks," "Facts Every Investor Ought to Know," "Pit-falls for Investors," a "Financial Glossary" and a financial forecast. Mr. Marcossion is the financial editor of the Saturday Evening Post, and among other things writes the much-quoted department in it called "Wall Street Men." He is a well-known magazine writer, and was associate editor of the World's Work before joining the staff of the Post.

PAUL ELDER & COMPANY, in connection with Sisley's, of London, are about to publish a handy volume series of standard works under the general title of The Panel Books. Twenty volumes will be ready in September, including "Salammbô," "Don Juan," "Silas Marner," "Decisive Battles of the World," "The Art of Love," "Cranford," "Oliver Twist," "The Devil on Two Sticks," "Wuthering Heights," "Idylls of the King," "The Black Tulip," "The Maxims of Napoleon," "The Confessions of Rousseau," "Daudet's 'Sapho,'" "The Life of Beau Nash," Sheridan's plays, "Tales from the Decameron," "A Sentimental Journey" and Nelson's "Letters to Lady Hamilton." They also announce "Betel Nuts—What They Say in Hindustan," an English rendering, in rhyme, by Arthur Guiterman, of clever and pungent Hindu aphorisms; and "A Ball of Yarn," composed of four skeins of three yarns each, including the Yarn of the Two Tailed Pointer, the Yarn of the Sinner Stung and others, by Robert Rudd Whiting, with several illustrations in color by Merle Johnson.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS will add at once to their World's Classics: Butler's "Analogy," edited by Mr. Gladstone; Cervantes' "Don Quixote," (Jervas's translation in two volumes,) edited by J. Fitzmaurice Kelly; Smollett's "Travels Through France and Italy," with an introduction by T. Seccombe; Fielding's "Journal of a Voyage to Lisbon," with an introduction and notes by Austin Dobson; and the first volume of the copyright reprints of Ruskin, (the Ruskin House edition, by an arrangement with George Allen,) consisting of "Sesame and Lilies" and "The Ethics of the Dust." They have nearly ready in their Oxford Edition of Standard Authors Palgrave's "Golden Treasury," with no fewer than one hundred additional poems (to the end of the nineteenth century,) including the whole of Fitzgerald's version of Omar Khayyâm's Rubaiyat. They will add to the Oxford Library of Translations

Heine's "Buch der Lieder," translated into English verse by Dr. Todhunter; and to the Oxford Library of Prose and Poetry Galt's "Annals of the Parish."

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. have just ready "Quips and Quidits: Ques for the Quirious," by John B. Tabb, who shows himself as able in choosing humorous verse as in his more serious selections; "Occasional Papers, Dramatic and Historical," by Henry B. Irving; "The Parnassus of English Verse," by W. Garrett Horder; "The Book of Elizabethan Verse," edited, with notes, by William Stanley Braithwaite, and introduction by Thomas Wentworth Higginson; "The Way of Childhood," verses by well-known poets, edited by Emily W. Maynard; "Latter-Day Love Sonnets," edited by Laurens Maynard; and several juveniles which will be described later. They have among their fall announcements a volume of "Character Portraits from Dickens," edited by Charles Welsh, well known to the booktrade. The volume contains a hundred and fifty or more typical characters from Dickens's works, described in Dickens's own words, with brief editorial characterizations at the beginning of each extract and the exact source of every quotation at the end. The alphabetical arrangement by the names of the characters enables the reader to turn readily to any desired sketch. The editor knows his Dickens by heart, and few could have more excellently chosen and grouped this assemblage of picturesque and entertaining characters.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have in press a new book by Mark Lee Luther, entitled "The Crucible," the story of a girl who, as a result of indiscretion and a misunderstanding, is sent to a State reformatory for a term of years. The story traces her efforts after her release to rid herself of the stigma of this experience, and shows her final triumph in the face of discouragements that bring out the best in her character. They also announce "The Evolution of Modern Orchestration," by Louis Adolphe Coerne, a well-known musician and composer, the basis of whose work is a thesis, which, together with the orchestral score of the opera "Zenobia," was accepted by Harvard University when the degree of Doctor of Philosophy was conferred on Mr. Coerne in June, 1905—the first bestowal of the degree by Harvard for special work in music; "New Theology Sermons," by the Rev. R. J. Campbell, a companion volume to the author's "The New Theology," which aroused much discussion in this country and in England last spring; also, a work on "The Man-Eaters of Tsavo, and Other Adventures in British East Africa," by Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Patterson, a well-known English sportsman, who some years ago was sent out by the British Foreign Office to take charge of the construction of a railway from the east coast of Africa into the interior, and there he met with most of the thrilling adventures of which he writes.

DUFFIELD & Co. have arranged with Chatto & Windus to bring out a series of books to be called the Shakespeare Library, in which will be included various volumes indispensable to a thorough understanding of the poet, but never before issued at reasonable prices. The library will be divided into four parts, first of which will include The Old Spelling Shakespeare, published in forty volumes and in the orthography of the poet's own time, the text under the editorship of Dr. Furnivall. The second part will be devoted to The Shakespeare Classics, under the general editorship of Professor I. Gollancz, editor of The Temple Shakespeare, and will include the various romances, histories, plays and poems used by Shakespeare as the originals or direct sources of his plays. The third part, called Shakespeare's England, will include volumes illustrative of the life, thought and literature of England in the time of Shakespeare. A fourth part, to be called the Lamb Shakespeare for Young People, will be based on Charles and Mary Lamb's tales, in which an attempt will be made to insert skilfully within the setting of prose those scenes and passages from the plays with which the young reader should early become acquainted. The work will be done under the special supervision of Professor Gollancz, the editor of the library. The first of the volumes in the second part, the backbone of the library, will be Lodge's "Rosalynde," the original of "As You Like It," edited by W. W. Greg. Among the first volumes to appear in the Shakespeare's England section will be "Robert Laneham's Letter," describing the part of the entertainment given to Queen Elizabeth in Kenilworth Castle in 1575; Shakespeare's "Holinshed," edited by the late W. G. Boswell Stone; and the "Shakespeare Allusion-Book," in which the allusions originally collected by Dr. Ingleby, Miss L. Toulmin Smith and Dr. Furnivall, which will be for the first time arranged in chronological order and supplemented with further material. The whole library is expected to be completed between September, 1907, and 1909. They have purchased from Small, Maynard & Company the late Richard Hovey books, "Along the Trail," "The Birth of Galahad," "The Marriage of Guenevere," "The Quest of Merlin" and "Taliesin," and will bring out in addition to these "The Holy Grail, and Other Fragments," with an introduction and notes by Mrs. Hovey and a preface by Bliss Carman. The volume will contain Mr. Hovey's outline, never before published, of the entire nine volumes of the Launcelot and Guenevere Series as he had projected it, also certain perfected parts of the unfinished plays. Several other post-humorous volumes by Mr. Hovey, including a new book of lyrical verses are in prospect.

THE forthcoming fall and holiday books announced by John W. Luce & Co., Boston, cover a wide range of subjects from gay and humorous to profound and serious. While there are a number of holiday novelties which are expected to recommend themselves to the gift-book purchaser, and two novels, fully a half of the new titles will make a strong appeal to the more thoughtful reader. In the line of novelty books of humor there are "The Tale of a Checkbook," by Newton Newkirk, a strenuous love episode revealed by the tell-tale evidence of thirty facsimile checks, together with check memoranda, newspaper clippings, etc., illustrated by the author, bound in regulation pocket checkbook form; "Cupid's Pack of Cards and Some Twisted Chips," by Walter Pulitzer, reproducing all the cards in the pack with chips ornamenting the opposite pages, in color, and appropriate epigrams and proverbs on matters of love accompanying them; "The Simple Geography," by Peter Simple, an up-to-date burlesque on the school geography of our youth, illustrated with wondrous strange pictures and maps by the author. For the children there will be "A Guide to Fairyland," by Dion Clayton Calthorp, with many full-page illustrations in color. Dainty poetry gift books are "A Perfect Strength," a grouping of selections of notable poetry forming the story of an ideal love, arranged by Emily A. Maynadier; and "Love Songs and Lyrics," by Jessie A. Middleton. A decided holiday novelty will be Longfellow's "The Wooing of Hiawatha," printed in black and Indian red on imitation birch bark, with special illustrations and ornamentations by Wallace Goldsmith, tied with leather thong and boxed. In the department of fiction there will be Fogazzaro's "The Politician," translated by G. Mantellini, and "The Unpardonable Sin," by James Douglass, a novel of great strength by one of London's most distinguished writers. Among the miscellaneous items are "On the Death of Madonna Laura," by Francesca Petrarca, rendered into English by Agnes Tobin, with photogravure frontispiece; "Friedrich Nietzsche, His Philosophy," by Henry L. Mencken, who wrote for this house "George Bernard Shaw, His Plays," a popular review of the life and philosophy of this projector of "Superman," "Oscar Wilde," by "The Sphinx," the final word on the life and work of this brilliant writer, authorized by Robert Ross, Mr. Wilde's literary executor, who has written the introduction; "Henry Ibsen," by Boguslawsky; "The Storm," by Ostrovsky, translated by Constance Garnett; "The Father," a tragedy, by August Strindberg, translated by N. Erichsen, (uniform with "The Storm;") "From Carpathian to Pindus," by Tereza Stratielsco, a study from all points of the Roumanian peasant-nation, with maps and illustrations. To these will be added The Kings Classics, the exclusive rights in America to which series have been secured by this house by arrangement with Chatto & Windus. It is a notable library of masterpieces of English literature under the general editorship of Israel Gollancz, and thirty-five titles are now ready, with forty more in preparation. These very tastefully bound volumes are now offered at a uniform price of 75 cents, net, each. A descriptive circular, giving full list of titles, will be sent upon application. Luce & Co. also announce that the expense attached to producing "The Quest," a book of 519 pages, and rather larger than the average novel, has necessitated advancing the price to $1.50 net. L. W. C.'s translation of this Dutch masterpiece by Dr. Frederick Van Eeden has attracted widespread attention.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE editor of the annual volume of The English Catalogue of Books reports that he hopes to issue the 1907 volume in January next. Orders for the volume may be registered in the office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

KARSLAKE & Co., London, have just ready the third part of the fourth volume of their "Book Auction Records," edited by Frank Karslake. The work is a key to the auction sales of books at Christie's, Hodgson's, Puttick & Simpson's and at Sotheby's from April 1 to June 30, 1907—5015 records in all. The fourth part will be ready shortly.

PICK-UPS.

A BOOK-TITLE "BY EAR."—A Colonial bookseller sent an order recently to a London wholesale house for "1 copy of Eight ounce Lays." This was, of course, very easily interpreted to mean "Aytoun's Lays."—Publishers' Circular.

THE BOOKSHELF.—On a shelf in a New York bookstore where a grave attempt at classification by subject is made, a volume of Marten Maartens novels was found in the religious section, flanked by Baxter's Saint's Rest and other calls to the "higher life." Curious to discover the occasion of its being in such goodly company, I made an examination of the title page and found it to read "Greater Glory—A story of high life." On assuring the stock clerk that he had gotten the book a story too high, he meekly transferred it to the shelf with "East Lynne," and others of the classics. J. R. A.

TRAMP LITERATURE.—In our search for information for our "Weekly Record" we sometimes run across curious material, as the following will testify:

GRNTS: Replying to your card will say that the work you mention was printed by us about three months ago for two young men— and ———— it is not much of a book, just tells of their own experiences as tramps—just such a work as any common, ordinary person would write if telling of their own everyday life—it contains about 160 pages 5x7 & was bound in paper covers. The Publishers disappeared without keeping their promise to us, did not even leave us sample copy—so we cannot give you any further information.

HIS LIBRARY.—Winthrop E. Stone, President of Purdue University, in an address on Lafayette, said of ignorance:

"Ignorance makes all it touches ridiculous. Nothing, not even culture, is immune to its attacks. Did you ever hear of the ignorant millionaire's library?"

"Well, there was a millionaire, a cattle man, who led a visitor into a great room lined with thousands of volumes.

"See them books?" he said.

"Yes," said the visitor.

"They're all bound in calf, ain't they?"

"Yes," the visitor agreed; 'they seem to have a uniform calf binding.'

"The millionaire chuckled proudly.

"Well, sir," he said, 'I killed all them calves myself.'—Washington Post.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplaced advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

125 In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

126 Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE JACOBS IDEA.

Each book bearing the imprint of this house is worthy of becoming a permanent unit in any library, however well chosen.

Jacobs' publications are successful not only because of their immediate appeal, but because each succeeding year enhances their value and adds to their genuine worth.

THIS was originally printed in a Jacobs magazine advertisement. It sets forth clearly one of the fundamental principles of the house, and is therefore worthy of the consideration of every bookseller handling Jacobs' publications.

Probably never before has this platform been so rigidly adhered to as in the 1908 list, which embraces many of the most notable volumes announced this season.

You cannot, as a bookman or a bookseller, afford to make up your new list without including a representative selection of Jacobs' books. They're the kind you won't find still on your shelves when you take stock after the holidays.

THE JACOBS LIST

Five of the New Titles

IN binding, printing and color illustration these volumes rank with the most beautiful of the year. In subject-matter they are informative, enlightening and thoroughly charming pictures of the localities of which they treat.

SWEET ARDEN

By George Morley

An entrancing view of the Shakespeare country, taking one through the forest of Arden, along the banks of the Avon, into quaint old Stratford, and, indeed, covering the very fields where the bard was wont to stroll.

AULD AYRSHIRE

By T. F. Henderson

One of the most faithful pictures yet drawn of the beautiful Ayrshire which Robert Burns loved and immortalized in his verse. It gives an intimate description of the Burns country.

The HEART OF SPAIN

By Stewart Dick

Small 12mo. Decorative cloth cover. Six reproductions of author's water colors. Thirty other illustrations. Price, $1.25

An artist's impressions of Toledo, this delightful volume presents in word and picture the famous old city which has not changed in three centuries. Mr. Dick could not well have chosen a more picturesque field.

IN THE BOR- DER COUNTRY

Edited by W. Shaw Sparrow
8vo. Handsomely bound in cloth. Twenty-five separately mounted reproductions from water colors by James Orrock. Text by W. S. Crockett. Price, $2.50 net

An adequate description of the wonderful Border Country, pictured in all its beauty by Mr. Orrock, whose views may easily be removed, if desired, and framed.

IN RUSTIC ENGLAND

Edited by W. Shaw Sparrow

Uniform with above. Twenty-five separately mounted color illustrations by Birket Foster. Text by A. B. Daryll. Price, $2.50 net

The two volumes above form the most ambitious attempt made thus far to issue at a moderate price handsomely illustrated descriptions of rural England.

BOOKS FOR THE AUTUMN

BETTY, THE SCRIBE

By LILIAN TURNER

Drawings by Katharine Hayward Greenland

"Miss Turner is fast becoming to the world at large what the authoress of LITTLE WOMEN was for a generation past to America."

—Westminster Gazette.

"Miss Turner is Miss Alcott's true successor. The same healthy, spirited tone is visible which boys and girls recognized and were grateful for in LITTLE MEN and LITTLE WOMEN."—The Bookman.

ELIZABETH HOBART AT EXETER HALL

By JEAN K. BAIRD

Illustrations by R. G. Vosburgh

Every girl who has attended boarding-school and every school who wishes she might—and where is there one who does not?—will welcome this chronicle of a year at a school crowded with girls brimming over with life and love of fun.

There is a jolly, spirited, all-round girl for heroine, with a score of rollicking comrades at her beck and call to carry out innumerable pranks. It is a story that defies description.

8vo, cloth, illustrated, $1.50

BIGELOW BOYS

By Mrs. A. F. RANSOM

Illustrated by Henry L. Miller

The tale of a street-car strike in a large city.

From the day Mrs. Bigelow takes her family of fatherless boys to a suburb to live, Dame Fortune smiles on her household. The strike threatens their communication with the outside world, the strikers attempt to whitecap and boycott the "scribbler," but by chance her stalwart sons are instrumental in settling the whole controversy.

Manly heroes. Stirring action.

LITTLE RHODY

By JEAN K. BAIRD

Drawings by R. G. Vosburgh

Unkind fate sends Little Rhody, a delicate, hunchbacked boy, to an academy where every new student is welcomed according to his prowess in athletics. Notwithstanding his weak body, and the scorn with which the students regard him, the year is not completed before he is hailed the "honor man" at The Hall.

A pathetic story, told with rare sympathy.

IMPORTANT NEW PUBLICATIONS

JUST ISSUED

A new volume of the Variorum Shakespeare

ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA

Edited by HORACE HOWARD FURNESS

THE publication of a new volume of Dr. Furness's Variorum Edition of Shakespeare is always an event of importance in the literary world, and it is therefore with pleasure that the publishers are able to announce the completion of the fifteenth volume of this monumental work. This is the first volume to be put before the public since the publication of "Love's Labour's Lost" in the fall of 1904. The Text of this edition follows the text of the First Folio with all the fidelity that unstinted pains can bestow. In addition there are Textual Notes showing the different readings of the folios, quartos, and subsequent editions, similar in kind to the notes of the Cambridge Edition, but differing herein, that they enumerate the critical editions that have adopted the various readings. Then follows a Commentary in which the notes, worth preserving (in the opinion of the editor), of critical editions from Pope to the present day are condensed—at times, these notes merely illustrate the history of Shakespearean criticism. In an Appendix are criticisms by English, German, and French authors—in short, within one volume is to be found an epitome of a Shakespeare library that would cost a large expenditure of time and money to collect.

Royal 8vo. Cloth, gilt top, uncut edges, $4.00 net;

Three-quarter levant, $5.00 net.

A new volume of the "True" Series

The True Patrick Henry

By GEORGE MORGAN

Author of "John Littlejohn of J.,"
"The Issue," etc.

Mr. Morgan has in recent years made a special study of the life and times of Patrick Henry, and his book will take its place as the standard work dealing with the life of this great American.

Illustrated. Crown 8vo. Cloth, $2.00 net; half levant, $5.00 net.

The third volume of the "French Men of Letters Series"

François Rabelais

By ARTHUR TILLEY, M.A.

Fellow and Lecturer of King's College, Cambridge

Mr. Arthur Tilley is well known as an authority on French literature, his "The Literature of the French Renaissance" being accepted as the standard work on the subject.

With a frontispiece portrait and a bibliography. 12mo. Cloth, paper label, $1.50 net.

Illustrated in color by W. Herbert
Dunton. Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

Imagine a young man who changes a clean, laborious past for that of a wealthy scoundrel who resembles him in body only; imagine him bereft of his good name, shouldering the reputation and the enmities of the other; imagine him taking the threads of the other's life, weaving them into a better pattern, winning the respect of men and the love of a beautiful and proud girl. This unusual situation, full of unforeseen complications, makes WINSTON OF THE PRAIRIE a book of which you cannot read a part without wanting to know the end. The breath of the prairie sweeps through its pages, intensifying the power of the narrative.

By Hulda Friederichs. With Introduction by General Booth.

MISS HULDA FRIEDERICHS tells the story of many of the underlying forces which have helped to make the Salvation Army what it is. It is not probable that the general public is accustomed to associate romance with the work of this famous organization, yet few more romantic stories than this have been told in the records of social and religious effort. Miss Friederichs relates the remarkable sources from which the vast streams of Salvationist effort to-day have sprung, and she has had the advantage of obtaining information from the highest sources. The very simplicity and directness of Miss Friederichs' method adds to the effectiveness of her presentation of the facts, many of which she is able to supply from her own observation of the Salvation Army at work. The story is illustrated by many photographs of unusual interest.

The Coming of Isobel

By Helen Wallace. Author of "The Sons of the Seigneurs."

IN her new novel, the author of "To Pleasure Madame," turns from Cavalier times to modern days, and proves that everyday life of the twentieth century can furnish as exciting tales as "the days of old romance." The story opens with the sudden disappearance of a young girl on the eve of her wedding. How she is found and brought home by her cousin and bridegroom-to-be, and the development of a highly original plot, leading to the dramatic revelation of a hidden past, will hold the attention until at last, in an unlooked-for fashion, love and loyalty receive their due reward.

With Frontispiece in Colour. $1.50

The Land of Enchantment

Illustrated by Arthur Rackham, A.R.W.S., the famous illustrator of "Peter Pan" and "Rip Van Winkle."

MR. RACKHAM now occupies one of the foremost positions in the ranks of black-and-white artists, won by sheer merit.

In this volume we have a collection of Fairy and Fanciful Tales by A. E. Bonser, B. Sidney Woolf, and E. S. Buchheim, all charmingly illustrated by the artist whose "Peter Pan" and "Rip Van Winkle" have proved so successful. "The Maker of Ghosts and the Maker of Shadows"—"Stories from the Edda"—"Harry and Herodotus," are some of the titles of the tales.

The frontispiece is printed in colours, and is a typical example of Mr. Rackham's delicate colouring. The book also contains 36 other illustrations by the artist.

The book is printed upon imitation Japanese Vellum in handsome cloth binding. $3.00 net

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will bring out on the 21st inst. "The Harrison Fisher Book," a collection of drawings in pen and ink reproduced in full colors, with an introduction by James B. Carington, the first collection ever published of this distinguished artist's work; "Major Vigoureux," by A. T. Quiller-Couch, an exquisitely written romance of life on a little island off the coast of England, told with the keen humor and the power of dramatic narrative that rank "Q" among the first story tellers of the day; also, "Nursery Rhymes from Mother Goose," illustrated in colors and in black and white by Mrs. G. G. Wiederseim, a new and quaintly humorous interpretation of the old nursery favorite.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will issue on the 20th inst. Harold McGrath's new book, "The Best Man." They will bring out at the same time the seventh edition of Brand Whitlock's "The Turn of the Balance," which promises to bring about important prison reforms in the middle west, especially in Ohio, where the book has already made an impression. The recent serial publication of the book in one of the New York papers increased the sales of the book in New York City very materially, especially in the downtown district, and the effect was noticeable throughout the State. They will issue at once "The Geography of Palestine," by Martha Tarbell, a pamphlet describing the physical and political geography of Palestine in the time of Christ, designed for use of Sunday-school teachers.

B. W. DODGE & Co. will publish on the 21st inst. "The First Secretary," by Demetra and Kenneth Brown, author of "Sirocco," etc., with illustrations by Sydney Adamson, the story of an American attaché and a Turkish maid in which the Turkish harem and the Turkish ruler are intimately pictured by a writer who has lived for years in Constantinople; "A Noble Company of Adventurers," by Rufus Rockwell Wilson, a book for boys; "The Harringtons of Highcroft Farm," by J. P. Fletcher, author of "When Charles the First Was King," etc., with eight illustrations by J. Ayton Symington, a novel of real characters, but not historical characters, which will no doubt please and interest judges of literature; also, "The Dumping," by Coulson Kernahan, a detective story of a great labor rising in London. They will publish on the 28th inst. "Feminine Finance," by Frances Crouch, a delightfully amusing story of New York life.

HARPER & BROTHERS bring out this week a new story by Joseph Conrad, entitled "The Secret Agent," a story of anarchistic plot and counterplot, in which a small, commonplace, ordinary-looking little shop in London furnishes "the secret agent," who plays against the existing order of things; "Discoveries in Every-day Europe," by Don C. Seitz, a record of delightfully amusing facts, with numerous pen-and-ink sketches, which amusingly and adequately supplement the text; "Mam' Linda," a stirring tale of life in old Georgia, by Will N. Harben, with illustrations; "In Wildest Africa," by C. G. Schillings, translated by Frederic Whyte and illustrated with more than 300 photographs of animal life in the African wilderness; "Santa Fé's Partner," a story of life in a mining town, by Thomas A. Janvier, with illustrations; also, "Eben Holden's Last Day a-Fishing," by Irving Bacheller, in which his old hero appears while fishing on a summer day and again in the old-fashioned country home at Christmas time.

Bixby, Lydia R. Louella; or, the mystery of Marsh; il. by Hudson. N. Y., Broadway Publishing Co., [1907.] c. 6+265 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Louella, when little over a year old, is deserted one stormy evening at the house of the curate of the village of Marsh. The curate and his wife adopt her and try in vain to learn something of her history. When the story opens she is a pretty girl of fifteen, and circumstances have arisen which seem to indicate she is of noble birth. The unravelling of the mystery that surrounds her is the story. The scene is laid in England.

Book (A) of American humorous verse: being a collection of humorous and witty verses, composed by the best known American writers; [comp. by W: de Groot Cecil Rice.] N. Y., Duffield & Co., 1907. c. 27+251 p. pors. T. limp leath., $1.25.

Names like James Russell Lowell, Eugene Field, Joel Chandler Harris, Carolyn Wells, Paul Laurence Dunbar and Wallace Irwin show the wide range of this book of representative humorous verse. Published in 1904 by H. S. Stone & Co.

Book (A) of American prose humor: being a collection of humorous and witty tales, sketches, etc., composed by the best known American writers; [comp. by Melville E. Stone, jr.] N. Y., Duffield & Co., 1907. c. 9+249 p. pors. T. limp leath., $1.25. Humorous and witty tales and sketches composed by the best American writers, from Artemus Ward and Josh Billings down to George Ade and "Mr. Dooley," and including, of course, the ever popular "Mark Twain." Published in 1904 by H. S. Stone & Co.

Book of Mormon; tr. by Joseph Smith. Independence, Mo., Central States Mission, 1907. 323 p. 12°, cl., 50 c.

Brennan, B. A. Brennan's hand book: a compendium of useful legal information for business men. Pittsburg, Pa., Bernard Publishing Co., 1907. c. 571 p. S. russias, $6.

The compilation of this handbook was occasioned primarily by Mr. Brennan's effort to arrange a compact and systematic compendium of useful legal information for ready reference in connection with his duties as contract manager of the Westinghouse Machine Company, of Pittsburg, Pa. The volume also contains a synopsis of the statutes bearing on the collection laws of different states and likewise presents a number of useful legal forms.

Bridgham, Alice Maud. Day by day in the primary school. In 3 v. [v. 1.] Autumn; plans for September, October and November; [v. 2.] Winter; plans for December, January, February; [v. 3.] Spring; plans for March, April, May. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1907. c. il. diagrs., O. cl., vs. 1 and 2, ea., $1.25; v. 3, $1.50; per set, $4.

Suggestions for young teachers who have had but little experience in selecting and adapting material to the comprehension of small children. The three volumes are for use in the autumn, winter and spring and are made up of questions directly connected with the special season then present. Each day has its plan of questions to be put by the teacher and answered by the pupil. First there is a morning talk, one on language, history, geography, etc. Poems, stories, pictures, legends and games aid the teacher in making his theme understood.

Canfield, W. Walker. The spotter: a romance of the oil region. N. Y., R. F. Fenno & Co., [1907.] c. 9-360 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Pennsylvania is the scene of the coming of the "spotter" to buy up the oil regions from the scattered, contented farmers. Duncan Cameron holds out longer than all others, but is finally coerced into leaving his well-loved land. The Cygnets Oil Producing and Refining Co. is a kind of prototype of the Standard Oil. Its methods are totally unprincipled and it does many cruel and some criminal deeds. The description of the change in the farmers who become suddenly rich and wander through the world shows some original character-studies. A love story brings the facts together. By author of "Legends of the Iroquois."

The purpose is that for the honor of their school they may achieve a "great year" of triple victory over their traditional rival, "Hillbury." How they develop their material, rise superior to discouragement, and fairly attain their ambition, together with many jolly incidents of real school life, forms the story.

- A story of a Virginia plantation of the present day. Warren Rhett left his father's plantation when he found that the father intended to marry his ward, with whom the son was also deeply in love. Some years after he returns at the widowed stepmother's call to straighten up her hopelessly involved business affairs. The story is a study of the ideas of liberty as held by the freed slaves on the old estate. The young master is at first very severe, but after a time is himself conquered by love and a wish to live and let live. The spell is cast upon him by a young painter of animals, with whom he finally goes abroad to his old profession of civil engineering.

Especially the design is to include things which are unget-atable—things which "everybody ought to know" but usually does not. Each volume is printed in two colors, with appropriate marginal decorations especially made for it, and bound in a shapely format. "The canticle of the sun" is the most celebrated of the writings of St. Francis, made into a decorative book with illuminated and hand-lettered text and marginal designs of mediæval character. Decorations by Marion C. Bridgman. The other volumes so far published are Lincoln's "Gettysburg addresses" and "The Rubaiyat."

- While the life of Madame de Staël has been written many times, few of the earlier biographies are adequate, owing to the scantiness of the material then available. They give, this writer says, "a somewhat uncritical relation of her public life, but leave her personal life wrapped in mystery, without even suggesting that there are secrets unrevealed." His work is a pitiless narrative, sustained by human documents only accessible in recent years, throwing light on Madame de Staël's many intrigues and so-called friendships, especially on the lifelong relations that existed between herself and Benjamin Constant, whose "Journal intime," never translated into English, is largely quoted from. Author is instructor in biology in the De Witt Clinton High School, New York. "The aim of this book," he says, "is to correlate the allied subjects of botany, zoology, and human physiology in a general course of biology for the first year of the high school. The foundation principles upon which this correlation is made are that the life processes of plants and of animals are similar and, in many respects, identical." Each chapter is followed by two lists of reference books—one for the teacher and one for the pupil. Index.

Thirteen of the most noteworthy addresses delivered within the past six years by the pastor of Broadway Tabernacle, New York. Their temper is shown in the opening paper, "The new crusade," a trumpet call for volunteers in the present-day march of conquest on the part of the church. Following this comes a discussion of "Religion as a form of power," and addresses on "Liberty, its dangers and duties," "The man of the sea," "The puritan vision of God," "Consecrated personality," "The angel in the sun," and others equally strong. The final chapters sound a typical closing note to the opening theme, being entitled, "Christian unity" and "International peace."

Author is superintendent of playgrounds, recreation parks, and vacation schools, Pittsburg, Pa. President G. Stanley Hall, of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., to whom the book is dedicated, writes an appreciative introduction. The study of which this book is a revision was begun at Clark University and published in the Pedagogical Seminary in 1894. Since then the writer has been in very intimate and almost constant touch with children. "The theory, history and place of play in education," the subject of Pt. 1, is considered in three chapters, namely, The meaning of play, Play in education, and The periods of childhood and their relation to a course of plays and games. Following in Pt. 2, A suggestive course of plays and games, is given, graded by age from infancy to middle teens, and also analyzed so as to show the chief mental and physical activities involved in and developed by each of them. - Marsh, R: Who killed Lady Poynder? N. Y., Appleton, 1907. c. 6+337 p. D. cl., †$1.50.
 A detective story evolved by means of clever dialogue and an airy style. Claire Seton, the friendless heroine, finds herself alone in a dark room of a strange house with a bag of jewels in her hand; she is trying to find the owner. The light turned on reveals a woman who, upon hearing Claire's story, leaves the room to investigate. Claire then discovers the body of a murdered woman, and dazed she stoops and picks up a revolver. Two men enter, and as she turns toward them the revolver is discharged and the woman's husband is wounded. Claire and another woman are accused of the crime, and some fine detective business follows. Nihilism plays a part in the plot. The scene is fashionable London.

 The fortunes of an English family named Muncassen, consisting of the millionaire father, who has made his money in trade, his wife, eight boys and girls and a few cousins, are followed in this long story, the scene being a magnificently appointed London house. To this home comes a niece of Mrs. Muncassen, little Dolores Ellerson, after the death of her parents, her father having committed suicide at sea. She grows up a lovely girl, but has many abnormal traits, her supernatural gifts making her a not very desirable companion. She constantly sees visions and foretells all the many disasters of the story. She seems to be "the burning torch," her inward fires gradually consuming her. There is scarcely a ray of sunshine in the story. By the author of "Into the highways and hedges," etc.

A number of clever schoolboys in a small town conceive the idea of giving novel circus performances for the benefit of their library. They are so successful that an offer is made them to go on the road for a six weeks' tour as professionals under salaries. As several of the boys are ready to go to college the next year, but lack the money to pay their way, they are allowed by their parents to accept the offer. Their manager is a big-hearted man, who asks for no moneyed return. He takes his recompense in fun and fresh air, and divides all the profits among the boys. They all make plenty of money and have no end of good times and exciting experiences.

The author of "Historic Illinois" and "When wilderness was king" presents some of the romantic and picturesque features of the great West in an interesting yet historically accurate manner. The work is divided into three parts, "Exploration," "The struggle for possession," and "Occupation." The first part describes briefly the nature of the great plains, its flora and fauna, and the various Indian tribes, the first Spanish and French explorers, the expedition of Lewis and Clark, the fur traders, etc. In Pt. 2 are chapters on the first emigrants, early army service, during the war with Mexico, the reign of the prairie schooner, the overland route, the army of the plains, etc. Pt. 3 depicts the beginning of settlement, the struggle of eastern Kansas, days of the cattle kings, building the first railroad, etc.

The author of "Prince Chap" has made an exhaustive study of the Assyrian legends regarding Queen Semiramis, the wife of Ninus, king of all the world. He weaves into his story of fierce passions and great wars nearly 800 years before Christ, descriptions of the habits and customs and cruelties of those bygone days. Especially the long wars and the huge weapons of those days are described in great detail.
